Counselor Instructed to Hold Conferences With McDonnell and Officials of Lambert-St. Louis Field.

St. Louis County Counselor Herbert C. Funke was instructed at yesterday's meeting of the County Council to undertake a series of conferences aimed at lessening the danger to county residents near Lambert-St. Louis Field from military jet testing and training operations at the field.

Council Chairman Harold D. Carey directed Funke to confer with representatives of McDonnell Aircraft Corp. which manufactures jet fighter planes at the airport, of the Naval Air Station at the field and with representatives of the airport itself "to see what can be done to lessen the danger that is so prevalent there."

Carey last week asked Funke to determine the county's legal jurisdiction with respect to the operation of the airport after the third crash of a jet fighter in seven months had seriously damaged a residence near the field and narrowly avoided personal injuries last Jan. 25.

Goal of Efforts.

Goal of the county's efforts should be the eventual removal of the training and testing of jets at the field, Carey told the Post-Dispatch. However, pending achievement of that objective, he said he felt the county should try to have the jet operations limited or handled in some way that would remove the danger that now threatens nearby residents.

Funke said he expects to schedule such a meeting within the next few days. In a preliminary report, he told the council he had conferred by telephone with a McDonnell representative who had pointed out the company had previously announced its intention of seeking a more remote base for its jet operations and that the company was minimizing its testing activities in this area as far as possible.

Tax Bill Defeated.

A bill calling for a 6-cent increase in the county tax rate on real and personal property failed to receive the required four votes for passage at yesterday's meeting, which was attended by only four of the seven members of the council.

The measure, which would set the rate at 72 cents on each $100 of assesed valuation for this year, received three votes but was laid over for later consideration when Councilman Maurice Abramson, Third District Democrat, cast a dissenting vote.

Abramson said he was opposed to a tax increase because he felt it was unnecessary. He said it could be avoided, in his opinion, by eliminating waste and unneeded expenditures in some county offices.

Among three supplementary appropriation bills introduced yesterday was one that would add $10,000 to a previous bill proposing $14,250 in extra funds for the office of County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews. The additional $10,000 would pay the county's share of a one-year budget for the Metropolitan Youth Commission in which the City of St. Louis is a partner.

One of the other bills would give $12,180 to the Department of Public Works to employ two mechanical inspectors and provide each with an automobile allowance. A third bill would allot an extra $1608 to the traffic division for certain salary increases. With other measures offered last week, these bills would provide total supplementary appropriations of $73,300 in addition to the $9,-

CITIZEN GROUP TO HELP PICK FREEHOLDER CANDIDATES

Tucker Says Several St. Louis Award Winners Will Be Asked to Name Chairman.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker announced today plans for the formation of a citizens committee to select and back qualified candidates for the board of freeholders to be chosen in a special election May 8 to study modernization of the city charter.

The announcement was made in a talk at Kiel Auditorium, at the closing session of the three-day institute on municipal government sponsored by the St. Louis League of Women Voters.

Tucker said that within a short time he will call a meeting of a representative group of the 16 recipients of the St. Louis Award, and ask them to name a man to serve as chairman of a Freeholders Citizen Committee.

The person they select, who would not necessarily be one of the winners of the annual civic award, would then undertake the "tremendous task of organizing the large and representative citizens committee," the Mayor said.

The first job of the committee, Tucker continued, will be to "encourage unselfish men and women of this community to become candidates for the board of freeholders."

Those selected as freeholder candidates will have the "all-out and complete support" of the citizens committee. The Mayor also pledged to support the slate of candidates selected by the citizens group.

Tucker said he decided to use this method in setting up the citizens committee to assure the people a voice in the selection of candidates for the charter board.

"Those who are elected to this important body will decide the fate of the city for many years to come," the Mayor declared. "They must be unselfish of their time and energies."

The freeholders who draft the proposed new charter revisions, he added, must be persons who will not give in to the interests which fear any change in government.

"It is my fervent hope that each of the 13 freeholders to be elected will be completely objective," he added, "and that they will not fall victim to the

WILSON TO NAME GUIDED MISSILES CHIEF; DEFENDS U.S. PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson announced yesterday that he would appoint a special assistant with authority to act in his name to co-ordinate the guided missile program when he can find the right man.

Announcement of this plan followed by a few hours the prediction of Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, that the Soviet Union would fire an intermediate-range (1500-mile) ballistic missile before the end of the year.

Wilson, in a press conference that lasted an hour and a half, said that the Russians had taken great interest in ballistic missiles and had carried on where the Germans left off.

Asked whether the United States was ahead or not, he said that the answer depended on the particular field. Although he did not amplify this statement, opinion in the Pentagon is that the United States is well ahead in the development of short-range missiles, particularly anti-aircraft such as the Army's Nike and the Navy's Terrier, and in the air-to-air missiles, used by fighters against bombers.

It is also generally believed that the Soviet Union is far ahead in the development of intercontinental and medium-range ballistic missiles, the so-called ultimate weapons.

Trying to Speed Program.

Asked whether he thought the United States was doing everything possible to speed the development of long and medium-range ballistic missiles, Wilson hesitated and then said: "I think the answer would be yes."

Money is not the limiting factor in the missile program, Wilson declared, for there is no way to make scientists come up with ideas twice as fast. A poorly planned program, he said, with unlimited money, easily could stumble over itself and accomplish little.

Wilson said the idea of a special assistant for guided missiles had been in his mind for some time. He contended that more emphasis had been placed on the guided missile program for some time. The Army and Navy had been put into the program in a way they had not been before, he said, and the Air Force part of the program had been increased.

Leaving for Arsenal.

He disclosed that he is leaving today for an inspection of the Army Redstone arsenal at Huntsville, Ala. This arsenal has developed the Redstone ballistic missile with a range of from 200 to 300 miles. The same scientists are now engaged in an effort to develop a medium-range ballistic missile that can match the Soviet 1500-mile missile now reported as near reality.

In the past Wilson has been inclined to discount Soviet progress in guided missiles as ahead of the United States. It is now obvious that intelligence has been obtained that shows rumors of Russian progress to be accurate. Until recently the United States had no positive information about advances by the U.S.S.R. in the ballistic missile field.

Draft Term May Be Cut.

Wilson also announced that he is considering a cut in the length of service of drafted men. This would necessitate doubling the draft for the Army, which now is running about 6000 a month.

Under provisions of the present law, passed in August last year, men drafted before its passage go into the ready reserve when they are discharged. However, there is no means of compelling them to join reserve units and take reserve training.

The law provides, however, that men who volunteer to join reserve units and continue training in the active reserve for a total of active and reserve service of four years, may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Defense, be released from active service before their two years of service are completed.

They also may be legally compelled to carry out the reserve obligation they have accepted. Men drafted after the passage of the law can be required to continue training in the ready reserve for two years after discharge.

The object of early release—after 18 months' service is being considered—would be to start immediately to build up the ready reserve and get men into units.

Wants Volunteers.

Wilson said the Defense Department would not enter into the program unless there was a good chance of obtaining at least 100,000 volunteers in the next 18 months after which the program will expire.

Early release offers difficulties, he explained, because it could not be applied to men serving overseas. After deduct-

EDEN OFFERS BLUEPRINT FOR FREE WORLD TO MEET SOVIET 'BLANDISHMENTS'

Signing Joint Declaration

—United Press Telephoto.

TELLS SENATE U.S. AND BRITAIN MUST MAINTAIN THEIR ALLIANCES

Asserts West Should Not Try to Outdo Every Offer Russians Profess — Calls for Unity of Purpose.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP)—British Prime Minister Eden today offered Congress a three-point blueprint for the free world to meet Russia's "blandishment and threat."

"It would be a useless exercise to chase Soviet activity all round the world in the sense of trying to cap every offer they profess to make by a better one on our own account," Eden said in a speech before the Senate.

He urged that the United States and Britain maintain their alliances "firmly, loyally and without apology."

Three Points of Blueprint.

Eden's blueprint called for maintaining and strengthening the free world alliance; posing a united front in such crises as the Arab-Israeli dispute, and continuing aid to underdeveloped countries without trying to top Russia's offers.

Fresh from his three-day conference with President Eisenhower, Eden spoke first in the Senate and then in the House. The packed Senate galleries and the 60 or so Senators gave him a rousing 30-second ovation. He was interrupted by applause six times during his talk.

In his Senate speech Eden said the potential for nuclear warfare of both the free and the Soviet worlds has provided a "mutual deterrent" to world conflict. But he said "the indirect threat remains and its consequences can be equally mortal."

Praises Declaration.

Lauding the Declaration of Washington agreed upon yesterday by the United States and British governments, the Prime Minister offered these suggestions "to give it effect:"

"First, we should maintain our alliances and friendships firmly, loyally, and without apology. This does not exclude a willingness to meet and talk with Communist powers.

"We cannot expect all the world to love each other, but we can try to allay hatreds. All such efforts should, however, be attended by an awareness of the methods which will be used against us.

"Secondly, in the areas where the danger of conflict is most acute, we should whenever we can declare our unity of purpose. For instance, between the Arab states and Israel, where the danger has increased, we have done well to make clear that we are to discuss together what action we should take. The more prepared we are, the less likely is an emergency to arise.

"Thirdly, it would be a useless exercise to chase Soviet activity all round the world in the sense of trying to cap every offer they profess to make by a better on our own account. I doubt whether even the resources of your great country could stand that strain, and it would be a foolish effort anyway. I am convinced that our methods should be different, that we should continue to give economic help in those areas where it is most needed, putting first the reasonable requirements of our own friends, but not forgetting others."

Discusses Middle East.

Eden devoted much of his Senate speech to the threat to peace in the Middle East.

"From the Kremlin," he said, "stream forth into the lands of what we call the Middle East, and into all Asia, a mixture of blandishment and threat, offers of arms and menaces to individuals, all couched in terms of fierce hostility for Western ideals.

"In the face of this, what answer should the West give? We do not intend to base our policies on the revival of old hatreds or the creation of new ones."

"Apart from a measure of defense aid," Eden said, "we now stand on our own feet. We intend to continue to do so.

"I know it is sometimes said in this country that the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom only comes to the United States in order to get dollars. I should like to lay this ghost."

He expressed gratitude for

MORE SNOW, DROP TO 10 DEGREES BY MORNING LIKELY

Colder weather, with more snow, is in prospect today and tomorrow, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren forecast. He reported .79 of an inch of precipitation yesterday.

A slightly warming trend held the temperature at 33 degrees, one degree above freezing, last night, averting serious icing conditions. Traffic, snarled seriously yesterday, was near normal today.

Yesterday's precipitation, snow and rain, brought the total since Jan. 1 to 1.52 inches, compared with the normal of 2.46 inches.

A fall in temperature to 10 degrees is expected tomorrow morning, with a high in the low 20s later in the day. Snow is predicted for today and tonight and continued cold and cloudy conditions through Saturday.

Although not regarded as accurate weather indicators, groundhogs and prairie dogs at the Zoo stayed in their snug burrows, displaying no interest in the outdoors, attendants reported today, groundhog day.

FOLIES BERGERE A BUST IN ROME, GIRLS COVERED

ROME, Feb. 2 (UP) — The famed Folies Bergere of Paris drew more hisses than applause last night at its opening in Rome. The girls wore brassieres instead of the traditional rosebuds.

Police and city officials sat in the first three rows of seats to protect both the public morals and the performers. With some 40 policemen looking on the girls in the chorus line were almost afraid to wiggle in front of an overflow audience.

PRESIDENT HALTS AUTO TO HELP DRIVER IN DISTRESS

About two miles from Emmitsburg, Md., the President spotted a car, headed in the opposite direction, which was in the ditch, spinning its wheels trying to get out of the snow.

Immediately, he ordered his seven-car motorcade to stop and detailed a Secret Service car directly behind his to help the distressed motorist. Otherwise the trip was without incident.

MURDER MOTIVE A MYSTERY, SAYS BROWN'S WIFE

Affairs Would Have Been in Better Order if He Had Feared Death, She Asserts.

Mrs. Ann Brown, wife of Robert L. Brown, murdered Board of Aldermen parliamentarian, said today she could think of no reason why anyone would have wanted to kill her husband.

In the first interview she has given since Brown was shot to death Jan. 24 in an alley near his home at 4562 Holly place, Mrs. Brown told the Post-Dispatch:

"I've been trying so hard to think of something—some reason for Bob's death — but I can't. It's a complete mystery to me."

Asked if she thought the gang-style killing of her husband might have resulted from hoodlum opposition to his expanding cigarette and vending machine firms, she replied: "I know of nothing to support this theory more than any other."

Mrs. Brown, an attractive, auburn-haired woman, and John B. Sharpe, an attorney who was present during the interview at the large north St. Louis home, said that Brown would have left his affairs in better order if he feared his life was endangered.

Because no will can be found, an application for letters of administration was filed yesterday in probate court.

Mrs. Brown recalled that her husband made a will two years ago, but a search of his law office at 705 Olive street, the home, safety deposit box and other places has failed to uncover it.

Sharpe, a friend who shared offices with Brown, said the murdered man had been meticulous about his papers and records. Brown never left the office without having his desk in neat order.

"Bob never gave the slightest indication there was anything wrong," Mrs. Brown said. "I am sure that if he had received a threat, he would have told me. He didn't keep matters to himself. We always talked things over."

Sharpe agreed, saying he felt he knew Brown well enough to be certain he would have told him and Mrs. Brown about any worries over his safety.

Recalling the night of Brown's death, Mrs. Brown said she was sitting in the living room when she heard her husband's Cadillac pull up across the street under a street light about 6:30 p.m.

"He tooted his horn," she related. "I went to the door, opened it slightly so he could

8 ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN CENTERS TO BE BUILT IN AREA

Each to Be 12-18 Miles From Downtown and Contain Four 90 Mm. Weapons.

Plans for construction of eight anti-aircraft gun centers around the St. Louis area in the near future were announced by the Army here today. Each is to have four 90-millimeter guns and be 12 to 18 miles from the downtown area.

Lt. Col. Edward S. Mathes, an anti-aircraft officer from Fifth Army Headquarters at Chicago, outlined the plan to officials of many municipalities in the metropolitan area at a meeting in the office of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

The Army is to build the installations and turn them over to the Missouri National Guard, which will use them for drills one night a week.

In addition to the guns, each installation is to have four one-story concrete buildings. Fifteen full-time civilian employes are to be assigned to each, for maintenance and care of the equipment. Locations of the centers have not been selected yet.

Col. Mathes said the cost of each installation would be approximately $200,000, exclusive of land. He estimated that the men at each one would spend about $100,000 a year in the community.

Officials at the meeting were from St. Louis and St. Louis county, and Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties on the East Side. Col. Mathes said he wanted to enlist their co-operation in the project.

Some sites are to be on the East Side, but they, too, will be manned by the Missouri National Guard. Whether Illinois personnel eventually will be used for that part of the work is still to be determined, it was explained.

The plan here is similar to those being developed for Chicago, Detroit and Milwaukee.

The guns will be manned day and night. Besides the 15 civilian employes, about 100 National Guardsmen will be assigned to each location.

31 BELOW; WATER SPRAYED ON RINK FREEZES IN AIR

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 2 (AP)—It was too cold here yesterday to freeze a smooth surface on the municipal skating rink. After a low of 31 below zero, water sprayed on the rink produced only a pebble-like surface.

"Apparently the water turns to ice before it flattens on contact with the rink surface," said City Manager Henry Rolfes Jr.

It was too cold for salt to melt street snow and ice. Sand would not stick to the ice which has a granite-like surface.

LIFTS 300-POUND SAFE IN COURT, FREES BROTHER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP)—Joe and William Elbers, brothers, were on trial yesterday on charges of stealing a safe.

Joe, 34 years old, insisted he was alone in the theft and demonstrated by lifting the 300-pound safe to the witness stand in criminal court.

"That was about the same height from the ground as the trunk of the car," Joe said. The jury acquitted William, 42. Joe was convicted of burglary and is awaiting sentence.

ARAB STATES TELL U.S., BRITAIN NOT TO IMPOSE POLICY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP)—Eight Arab states warned today they will not let any British-American decisions on the Middle East be imposed on them.

The warning was given to Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen by Lebanon's Ambassador Dr. Victor Khoury. Khoury told reporters he represented all Arab missions in Washington.

The warning referred particularly to any decisions reached during the three-day conference here between President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden.

Khoury did not specifically object to any one point included in the Eisenhower-Eden statement issued at conclusion of the talks yesterday, but said:

"No discussion can bind us unless we agree. We believe that any policies pursued in our area which are not accepted by us will not be a factor for stability in the area."

The Lebanese envoy said he spoke for Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Libya, Yemen and Syria as well as his own government.

CHARCOAL GRAY SUITS CREATED THROUGH ERROR

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Along with a prediction that American men are about to emerge from charcoal gray suits comes the story of how it all began, as told on Savile Row, London style headquarters.

According to F. G. Lintott, presently in this country representing a London tailoring firm, the six dark years are about over (six years is the normal life of a suit).

Charcoal gray was created when somebody goofed. Or, in Lintott's words, "It was a bit of a mistake." A British woolen mill, aiming for oxford gray, mixed too many black strands in with the white, and the result was a sort of off-black.

Many Savile Row tailors vetoed the material, but Lintott's firm kept the charcoal gray bolt around for a while. One day in walked a customer who had lived many years in Spain, where black is favored for business wear, ordered the dark suiting. Soon other London tailors were getting requests for dark, dark gray. Within two years the trend had jumped to New York.

$1,000,000 Vienna Cable Fire.

VIENNA, Feb. 2 (AP)—Austrian officials believe a fire today at the big Vienna Felten Cable works will delay reparations shipments of cables to the Russians. The fire damage was estimated at about $1,000,000. The plant is producing most of the large consignment of cable which Austria is obligated to deliver to Russia.

AIKEN SAYS GAS LOBBY CONTACTS FAMILY, FRIENDS

Declares Pressure to Pass Bill Is Most Varied and Intensive of His Career.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Senator George D. Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, said today that the oil and gas lobby has compiled a complete genealogy on United States senators as a key factor in their pressure drive in behalf of the Fulbright bill to exempt producers of natural gas from federal price regulation.

Aiken, who denounced the lobby Tuesday and said he would vote against the bill, told the Post-Dispatch in an interview that the propaganda machine behind the bill, reportedly financed by a $1,500,000 fund from major oil companies, obviously ran records on relatives of the Senators and contacted them to join in persuading Senators to vote for the Fulbright measure.

In his case, Aiken said, he received a telephone call from a lawyer in the midwest of whom he had never heard. The caller identified himself as having attended school with Aiken's mother 75 years ago and urged him to vote for the bill, the Senator said.

Acquaintances Contacted.

In other instances representatives of the oil companies were in touch with persons believed to be acquaintances of the Senator who were urged to write, telephone or telegraph him in behalf of the bill. They even contacted friends of his relatives, Aiken added.

Leading citizens in communities of Vermont whom the Senator was known to admire for their community service also were contacted, he said.

"This campaign among relatives and real or forgotten acquaintances began intensively about two months ago and has been picking up ever since," Aiken said, noting that his office staff has been harassed by unprecendented mail and jangling of telephones.

"My decision to vote against the bill was partly a rebellion against the methods of the lobby," Aiken continued. "It made me realize that the big oil companies exerting themselves so much for this bill meant only one thing—higher

The author: Langer.

Langer had clerks read his speech because he has eye trouble. Soon he was the only one listening.

Occasionally a few other Senators appeared on the floor. About page 4 Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson asked Langer if he would call off the reading. Langer refused.

Mostly it was a two-man affair: the clerk reading, Langer listening.

Once, Langer interrupted the speech to emphasize a point to the empty Senate.

Even with large deletions, the speech lasted two hours and 10 minutes. Among other things, it charged Government seizure of German property in the United States in World War II was a Communist plot engineered by the late Harry Dexter White, former Treasury official.

At the end, Langer stood up and announced:

Dior's Fashions Go to Waist With New 'Arrow Silhouette'

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Christian Dior this morning pushed the waistline up to just under the bust. He calls the new effect the "F line" or "arrow silhouette."

While he sticks largely to the sheath, with tricky cuts, drapery and pleats for daytime, dressy styles have never been so full-blown. Mannequins floated in and out like puffy clouds.

The "F line," based on the longhand letter rather than the printed one, is achieved by a belt smack under the bosom.

Dior's newest costume is neither a dress nor a suit but a "caraco"—a sort of loosely fitted, bolero-style jacket to the waist. It appears on both dresses and suits, and is the most insistent note of the collection.

Something similar in earlier collections this season has been called a "canezou." Apparently both are borrowed from an obsolete garment our grandmothers wore over their corset covers while combing their hair.

In any case, the waist has reappeared, and is even snugly belted at its normal place on some models.

BRITISH PRESS DISAPPOINTED IN TALKS BY EDEN AND EISENHOWER

Only One Paper Praises Declaration — Others Say It Will Have 'Negligible' Effect on World Problems.

By ERNIE HILL

LONDON, Feb. 2 — British government officials are expressing the hope that the Eisenhower-Eden communique makes a greater impact on Asia, Africa and the Middle East than it did on Britain.

British newspapers today failed to exhibit much enthusiasm for the communique or accompanying "declaration of Washington."

Of the 10 morning newspapers six failed to comment editorially on the Washington conference. Among those remaining silent were the London Times, the Daily Telegraph, the Manchester Guardian and the Daily Mirror.

The Daily Mail and News Chronicle expressed disappointment in the meeting. The Communist Daily Worker carried the headline: "Washington is a failure."

Praise by One Paper.

"President Eisenhower and Sir Anthony Eden," said the Express, "have expressed their joint convictions in a way that will invigorate the strength of purpose of all the free nations."

Beaverbrook's afternoon newspaper, the Evening Standard, yesterday carried a Washington dispatch from Randolph Churchill describing the meeting as a failure.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail recommended editorially that London and Washington should use their radios for propaganda purposes without pulling punches or softening their attacks against the Communists.

"We should like to think," said the Daily Mail, that "Sir Anthony Eden and Mr. Eisenhower have been working on a plan of campaign to win the cold war . . ."

'Was It Necessary.'

The News Chronicle entitled its editorial "Was It Really Necessary?"

"It was unwise," it stated, "as we pointed out a week ago, to expect a world-shaking communique to emerge from the Eisenhower-Eden talks. But what has now been issued is, on the face of it, negligible.

"Behind the barrier of platitudes it is hard to see a single sign of positive advance on the various fronts of discussion."

The paper said the communique will have little lasting effect and added: "The moral surely is that deeds are more important than words. The deeds we must hope may follow."

Reaction in Hong Kong, Taipei to Declaration.

HONG KONG, Feb. 2—So far as observers could see the Eden-Eisenhower talks contributed little or nothing to settlement of Far Eastern problems. On the contrary, the talks merely served to emphasize the basic British-American differences in approach to Communist China and the Nationalist regime on Formosa.

This British trading post naturally gave top play to the fact that the Red China trade embargo will stay but hopefully noted that the United States agreed to review controls on specific commodities from time to time.

In this connection the British-owned newspaper China Mail observed: "The real issue was whether the embargo could be adjusted to the more liberal levels of the embargo applying to Russia. And there are suggestions that Sir Anthony's pleadings have not been in vain."

(In Taipei, Chinese Nationalist officials appeared fairly well satisfied by the joint pledge of President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden, the Associated Press said.

(They said the promise to deter Communist aggression could be read by Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai as a reply to his threat to seize the Nationalist island stronghold "by war if necessary."

(Kyodo News Service in Tokyo said Japanese government sources feel the Eden-Eisenhower understanding will lead to more trade with Red China.

(Kyodo said the sources believe the agreement has "guided current control on Red China trade in the direction of relaxation, although no . . . immediate easing . . . is expected.")

Pravda Says Eisenhower, Eden Can't Settle Crisis.

MOSCOW, Feb. 2 (UP)—The official Communist party newspaper Pravda asserted today that the Eden-Eisenhower conference in Washington could not settle the crisis in the Middle East and Far East.

Pravda carried its assessment of the Washington talks between President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden under the headline "Under a Banner of Disagreement."

"It is clear," the newspaper said, "these talks cannot solve the problems exciting the people of the Middle East and Far East nor eliminate the sources of tensions, vitally necessary in the interests of peace and international security."

The official Soviet news agency Tass, in dispatches from New York, drew heavily on the comment of American observers to the effect that British-American differences on the Middle East is growing sharper and is incapable of an easy solution.

Declaration Gets Bipartisan Support on Capitol Hill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP)—Senate foreign policy spokesmen of both parties generally indorsed the "Declaration of Washington" issued by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California, said the joint declaration "ably states the case of the free world in seeking peace with honor," but serves notice the free world will "not be paralyzed in event of Communist aggression."

Senator George (Dem.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, approved the decision to hold British-French-American talks to chart joint Western action to curb aggression in the Middle East.

Senator Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, praised what he called the "good general statement" and the emphasis by the two leaders "on the need for the peaceful development of the atom and their reiterated faith in West Germany."

Mansfield said he was disappointed in his hope that Mr. Eisenhower and Eden would consider pooling research in development of ballistics minsiles "because the Soviet Union apparently is ahead in this field."

Senator Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he wished "there had been a more positive statement on the Near East, such as a joint offer to negotiate between the two sides." On the whole, however, Sparkman called it "a very good statement" that serves "clear notice on the Soviet bloc, and indeed to the whole world, just where the two countries stand."

$25,000 BONDS SET IN PLOT TO KILL PAIR

2 Men Plead Not Guilty — Another Charge Filed Against Girl.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP)—A teen-age high school girl and two men were held in $25,000 bond each today on charges they plotted to kill her parents and divide their wealth.

Held also on a charge of felonious assault in the shooting of Mrs. Joseph Chomko, 38 years old, at nearby Taylor last Monday were her 16-year-old daughter, Marlene; John Pitta, 34, and Samuel Diana, 22, both of Scranton.

Both men pleaded not guilty to the charge while the girl because of her age was not permitted to enter a plea.

In addition the Chomko girl was accused of carrying a concealed weapon in an automobile and the two men were charged with unlawfully loaning a deadly weapon and carrying a concealed weapon.

Assistant District Attorney Ralph Needle said Diana, a Sicilian immigrant, masterminded the plot against the Chomkos.

The motive, said Needle, was the girl's intent to marry Diana and "live happily ever after" in her parents' home in nearby Taylor. Pitta was to get a truck belonging to her father, a well-to-do trucker.

Needles said all three had signed statements admitting taking part in the plot which resulted in the shooting of the girl's mother Monday at their home.

Mrs. Chomko was reported in serious condition.

Needle said Marlene shot her mother in the back and then, with Diana, set out by car in pursuit of the girl's father, who was driving to New York.

Mrs. Chomko was able to reach a telephone and an operator who heard her moans sent police. The police found Mrs. Chomko on a floor in her home and intercepted Diana and the girl before they could catch up with the father. A revolver was found in their car.

In addition to the home, the girl and Diana hoped to get possession of her parents' two cars and their money. The Chomkos have two younger sons who were at school during the shooting.

FIRM TO PAY UNION FOR ANY NON-UNION WORK

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—The A.F.L.-C.I.O. hat union agreed yesterday to plans of a northern cap manufacturer to open a plant in the South. But the union announced that it approved only after the manufacturer agreed that if the new plant is not unionized by Jan. 1 he will pay the union 50 cents to $1.50 for each dozen caps produced after that date with non-union workers.

The unusual agreement involves the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers international union and the American Needle & Novelty Co. The union said the company employs 200 union capmakers in plants in Chicago and Harrisburg, Pa., and plans to open a third plant employing 100 workers in Franklin, Ky.

Alex Rose, union president, said the payment arrangement was exacted as part of the union's determination to give the employer an incentive to see that unionization is not opposed." He said the 50-cent to $1.50 payments would represent the manufacturer's profits. The union's aim he said, is to protect the jobs, wages and working standards of the northern workers by insuring that the union and its standards will be received in the South.

'RED DEAN' FORBIDDEN TO TALK IN BRITISH HALL

Johnson was invited to speak at a meeting of the Post Office Engineering Union in Telephone House, Canterbury.

But manager W. Scarborough told union officials that the meeting would have to be held elsewhere if Johnson spoke. The union moved its meeting across the street to the British Legion Club.

TRUE DEMOCRACY BEST REPLY TO REDS, NIXON SAYS

Tells Brazilian Labor Leaders Free Unions Combat False Philosophy of Communism.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Vice President Richard Nixon told Brazilian labor yesterday the best answer to Communist tyranny is a "true people's democracy" striving for betterment of all its citizens.

Nixon, who headed the United States delegation for the inauguration of President Juscelino Kubitschek, spoke to about 100 labor leaders at the anti-red Confederation of Industrial Workers' headquarters. He was accompanied by William C. Doherty, a vice president of the AFL-CIO.

Nixon said free trade unions throughout the world are doing much to combat the "false philosophy of Communism, which represents for the working class industrial and political slavery."

"Our trade unions in the United States have made and are making an important contribution toward the achievement of this fundamental goal," he said. "Intelligent labor-management relations in my country have contributed greatly toward strengthening our economy.

Healthy Economy.

"The best answer to Communist dictatorship and tyranny is a true people's democracy working slowly but surely toward achieving for all of the people increased purchasing power, higher wages and a more perfect and healthy economy."

Fausto Cardoso, president of he confederation representing 600,000 members, told Nixon that Brazilian labor was faithful to democracy, but that existing labor legislation here is obsolete and no labor leaders are permitted to act freely.

(The United Press said Kubitschek announced today he has created a National Development Council to carry out his promise to give Brazil 50 years of progress five years in office. The council will include all of Kubitschek's cabinet, plus the heads of his civil and military staff and top government economic experts.

Council's Powers.

(The decree creating the development council empowered it to draft bills and degrees, "co-ordinate national economic policy . . . (and) draw up plans and programs to improve government efficiency and promote private enterprise.")

Nixon and Kubitschek will visit the Volta Redonda steel mills, tomorrow, 75 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro. It was financed with United States aid.

President Must Have More Time To Decide, His Doctor Asserts

Dr. Snyder, However, Won't Indicate When Eisenhower Can Tell Whether He Will Run Again.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower's personal physician said today "no man who is just four and a half months past a heart attack is in a position yet" to decide whether to seek a second term.

The White House doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, told reporters with respect to Mr. Eisenhower and a decision regarding a second term:

"He should have more time—all the time he needs. He is not at a point yet to know whether he can go ahead and hit the ball."

Asked how much more time the President should have before he will be in a position to decide on a basis of physical fitness, Snyder replied:

"I would prefer not to say."

Snyder's statement that the President should have more time for a decision was bound to be disappointing to Republican supporters who have been hoping that Mr. Eisenhower would announce his political plans very shortly.

Some aspirants for the Republican presidential nomination, such as Senator William F. Knowland of California, likewise have been hoping for an early announcement.

No Indication of Delay.

Despite Snyder's views, however, there was no indication whether Mr. Eisenhower actually might decide to put off announcement of a decision for a while.

As recently as a week ago he said he still had not made up his mind whether to bid for another four years in the White House. But he said he would not Dilly-Dally about making an announcement once his mind was made up.

Although he called for giving the President more time to reach a decision, Snyder said Mr. Eisenhower's recovery progress from his Sept. 24 heart attack is entirely satisfactory at this point.

The White House physician's remarks were made in an interview arranged as a result of numerous requests by White House reporters.

At the outset Dr. Snyder was asked specifically about a statement attributed to him in an interview by Andrew Tulley of the Scripps-Howard newspapers. The statement was that in Snyder's judgment Mr. Eisenhower would "prefer to die with his boots on."

Happier at Work.

Discussing that remark, Snyder said:

"I was talking about the general proposition that he (Eisenhower) certainly would be happier at work, any kind of work. That simply makes for greater happiness and well being. If a man is discontent he never will develop good health."

Snyder added that in his opinion the "die with his boots on" remark was "used out of context." He said he did not mean to imply that Mr. Eisenhower would necessarily prefer to run again at the risk of dying in office.

Asked whether he felt the President now is physically able to go through another term, Snyder said:

"I don't think I would put myself in the position—except maybe in confidence to the President—of saying whether or not a man who has had a heart attack should continue (for a second term) the duties in the vocation he had before his attack.

"I don't think any cardiologist could, with the limited knowledge we have. I wouldn't say to the President, 'I think you are fit to again take on the presidency'—that is, for another term.

Must Decide Himself.

"All we can do is to give him a good exposition of his present condition. In the final analysis he must make his own decision.

"No man who is just four and a half months past a heart attack is in a position yet to determine his own physical fitness. It takes longer. He should have more time—all the time he needs. He is not at a point yet to know whether he can go ahead and hit the ball."

Recalling that the President spent 12 days in Key West, Fla., in late December and early January, Snyder said that trip did the chief executive a lot of good.

"Since Key West I have been satisfied," the doctor said. "Before that it was not an ideal convalescence program. He has made a big gain since Key West."

In saying the convalescence program was not ideal prior to the Key West trip, Snyder was talking about the cold weather which prevailed in this part of the country after Mr. Eisenhower's return from Denver on Nov. 11.

The President's physicians recommended that he go south for sun and outdoor exercise.

Snyder and Mr. Eisenhower's other physicians, including the Boston heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, have announced they plan a new full scale physical examination later this month.

Snyder said today he hoped preliminary tests—dealing with such things as blood chemistry—can be completed by Feb. 13, with the rest of the examination the next day.

NORWAY AWAITS COURT RULING ON BOATS IT SEIZED

Prosecution Reported Begun Against 14 Soviet Fishing Vessels Accused of Poaching.

OSLO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Norway apparently will wait for a ruling from its courts before acting on Russia's mildly worded demand for release of 14 Soviet fishing boats seized as poachers by the Norwegian navy.

The Soviets termed the affair a "misunderstanding."

The trawlers were rounded up this week in the rich herring banks off the west coast of Alesund. Norway protested formally to the Soviet government that its waters had been invaded by about 75 Russian trawlers.

Reports from Alesund said no Soviet craft had been seized since early yesterday and the Russian fleet apparently had put out to sea. Eight Norwegian naval craft were standing by in that area. Earlier the Norwegians said the Russians had returned each time the navy patrol chased them beyond the four-mile limit.

Another Seizure Reported.

(A United Press dispatch from Alesund reported the capture of another Soviet trawler shortly before dawn today. It also quoted a navy spokesman as saying continued violations proved Moscow assertions of a misunderstanding are wholly groundless.)

Russia, via a Tass agency dispatch yesterday, denied that the fishing boats were in Norwegian territorial waters and demanded that Norway "promptly release" the 14 vessels.

A Norwegian foreign office spokesman commented:

"Our immediate reaction to the Moscow statement is that it will be for the courts to decide whether the vessels seized have violated the boundary. Prosecution against the trawlers has started and the cases will be dealt with according to Norwegian law."

Protest Not Answered.

The Norwegian embassy in Moscow said today it had received no reply to its protest, which was sent to the Soviet foreign ministry yesterday by messenger.

The Tass statement said Russian fishing boat captains operating off Norway have "strict instructions not to violate the frontiers of Norwegian territorial waters and the fishing zone of Norway."

5 SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS SAY DYER ASKED FOR FEE LIST NAMES

Report He Queried Them About Suggestions for Possible Receivers of Money on Policies.

At least five Board of Education members were asked by board member Charles J. Dyer last year whether they wanted to suggest names of persons to receive brokerage fees on school board insurance, the members said today.

Two members—Dr. James J. McCaffery and H. Lee Bruns—said they recalled mentioning some names to Dyer, who directed school officials to credit 11 persons, including five Democratic state Senators, with brokerage fees last year.

Louis H. Antoine, Oscar A. Ehrhardt and Edward C. Donnelly said Dyer approached them on the subject but said they did not suggest any candidates for the fees, which amount to about $15,000 a year.

Mrs. Irma H. Friede said she could not recall whether Dyer made any such suggestion to her.

Morrell Not Positive.

James F. Morrell, president of the board, said Dyer might have mentioned the subject to him. Morrell said he could not be positive on the point, nor, he said, could he say definitely whether he supplied any names.

Four other members said Dyer never approached them for names. They are Charles H. Christel, Daniel L. Schlafly, Mrs. Edward M. Harrington and Dr. Walter A. Younge.

Dyer said he had no comment on the matter.

Except for Dr. McCaffery, the seven board members who commented on Dyer's action in naming insurance brokers have declared themselves opposed to selection of brokers by one board member alone.

Dr. McCaffery defended Dyer. Mrs. Friede declined to comment. Donnelly, Mrs. Harrington and Dr. Younge said they would not comment until they had further information.

Dr. McCaffery said he felt Dyer was being "fair" in asking other members if they had any names to suggest. He said he recalled submitting several names to Dyer, but said he did not remember what the names were.

Mentioned Hilsman.

Bruns said one of the names mentioned in his conversation with Dyer was that of State Senator William E. Hilsman, one of the five Senators named by Dyer for brokerage fees.

Antoine, an insurance executive and a member of the board's insurance committee, which is headed by Dyer, said he told Dyer he "wanted no part of it" and "wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole" when Dyer asked him if he wanted to supply names.

Antoine also said Dyer asked him whether some fees should be offered to members of a committee of the Insurance Board of St. Louis which had been advising the board on insurance coverage.

Antoine said he replied the committee had provided its services without charge and its members would undoubtedly refuse fees. Later, he said, he heard that checks were sent to some members but were returned by them.

Reports Giving No Names.

Ehrhardt said he supplied no names when asked "because I didn't think it was my place to be submitting names." He said he assumed Dyer was collecting names for consideration by the board's insurance committee.

However, both other committee members, Antoine and Donnelly, have said the subject of names was never brought up before the committee.

Donnelly said he submitted no names to Dyer. He added that he felt if any names were to be suggested, they should have been sent to Mervyn E. Wiethaupt, secretary-treasurer of the board, who picked brokers until last summer when Dyer began naming them.

Housewife Fires Rifle, Routs Burglar From Her Kitchen

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MRS. WILLIAM HARBISON displaying rifle with which she routed a burglar from her home early today with one shot.

Mrs. William Harbison, 4626 Bircher boulevard, routed a burglar from her home early today by firing a shot at him from a .22-caliber rifle.

She told police she was awakened by the sound of broken glass coming from the kitchen. In the absence of her husband, a telephone worker who was at work at the time, she picked up a rifle he had given her for protection and walked toward the kitchen.

Seeing a man standing just inside the kitchen door, she asked him what he wanted. When he failed to reply, she repeated the question but still received no reply. Then she fired the rifle at him and apparently fainted, she told police. She is 20 years old.

When she regained consciousness, the man was gone and there was a bullet hole in the kitchen door, indicating she had missed. Nothing was missing from the home, she said.

Police said entry had been gained by breaking a glass pane in the door.

Mrs. Olda Klein, night manager of the Fulton Hotel, 4489 Washington boulevard, reported the loss of $55 to a robber who entered the hotel last night and pointed a revolver at her.

The holdup man, a Negro, demanded the hotel funds and then fled with the money north on Taylor avenue.

URGES U.S., ALLIES GIVE DEFENSE ARMS TO ISRAEL

The United tSates and its allies must arm Israel without delay "for defense purposes" if the Middle East is to be saved for democracy, Mendel N. Fisher of New York, national executive director of the Jewish National Fund of America, said here last night.

Fisher, in an address before a meeting of the Fund's St. Louis Council at the B'nai Amoona Auditorium, called on President Eisenhower and Sir Anthony Eden to announce a security pact "which is in the best interest of the Arabs as well as the Jews."

"Communism threatens the entire area, and it will engulf it unless the only bastion of freedom, which is Israel, is given the necessary defense arms," Fisher said. "Arms for Israel equals peace in that area of the world."

5 INDICTED ON CHARGES OF HAVING NARCOTICS

Four Indictments charging five persons with illegally purchasing and possessing narcotics were returned today by a United States District Court grand jury.

One indictment charged Edith MarieMarie White and James Madison Gaddie with possessing 16 grains of heroin and 106 grains, respectively, last Jan. 26 when police raided a house in th e3000 block of Easton avenue, where seven persons were discovered lying on mattresses on the floor. All are Negroes.

Homer Phillips and Reola Johnson, 2700 block of Hickory street, were charged in another indictment with possessing 1.8 grains of heroin. Earl Roger Moody, 4200 block of St. Louis avenue, was charged with illegally buying 83 grains of heroin and four grains of marijuana last Jan. 21. They all are Negroes.

Hilton to Build Tokyo Hotel.

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (UP)—American hotelman Conrad N. Hilton and a Japanese industrialist today announced plans to build the biggest hotel in Japan. It will be erected in Tokyo at a cost of more than $5,000,000 and will be completed in 1958, a Hilton spokesman said.

CIGARETTE BUYERS GET 'THANK YOU' FROM MACHINE

When a customer drops in his money for a package of cigarettes, organ music plays and a soft feminine voice says politely: "Thank you. Call again."

"The purpose," Price said, "is to make the customers feel they are appreciated."

AILING RHINOCEROS EATS AGAIN AFTER TREATMENT

The St. Louis Zoo's 26-year-old Indian rhinoceros, Harry, began eating again last night after refusing nourishment for three days, Director George P. Vierheller announced. Harry has been ailing for 10 days apparently with an abscess under the jaw.

Application of hot compresses to the infected area and a little petting calmed Harry and at the 10 o'clock feeding last night the rhino ate a loaf and a half of bread, five or six apples and some spinach, Vierheller reported.

The animal was brought to the United States in 1934 by Frank Buck. His usual diet consists of large amounts of hay, vegetables, bran and crushed oats. "His condition undoubtedly has been relieved now, Vierheller said.

SPECIAL POLICE INTELLIGENCE UNIT AGAIN URGED

Government Research Institute Reports to Board on Survey of Other Cities.

A recommendation that a special intelligence unit be established in the St. Louis Police Department to keep close watch on all gangsters and hoodlums, as well as check activities of police personnel, has been made by the Governmental Research Institute, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

A spokesman for the institute, a non-profit organization, said the comprehensive report to the Board of Police Commissioners was made after an exhaustive survey of other cities in which such units have been established, but declined to discuss the findings.

I. A. Long, board president, ordered the Institute's report received and filed several weeks ago. He has said no action would be taken at this time to establish such a unit here.

Meanwhile, it was learned from Charles P. Orchard, vice president of the preceding police board, that it had adopted a motion in early 1953 setting up an intelligence unit. The present board took office before the other board could get the unit in operation, he said.

Orchard said he made the motion to establish the intelligence unit. It followed public criticism of some police officers who were said to frequent Genovese's Steak House, a gathering place of hoodlums where a policeman was accused of beating a customer, John Randazzo. The officer was exonerated.

The unit proposed by Orchard would have been composed of a captain, a lieutenant, a sergeant and "nine young men especially trained with at least seven years association with the department." The unit would have been answerable only to the chief of police and the board.

In his motion, Orchard stressed the personnel of the unit should be carefully screened and "must be of known integrity, honesty, above reproach and fearless."

Duties of the unit would include "a continued and everlasting surveillance of all undesirable characters of all types in our community; the building of a complete dossier on all objectionable characters and the keeping of these files current, and the making of complete and thorough investigations of general police personnel conduct and the reporting of their findings to the chief of police."

More recently and following the mysterious murder of Robert L. Brown, tobacco firm operator and parliamentarian for the Board of Aldermen, Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd recommended establishment of such a unit.

Prior to that, James W. Connor, operating director of the St. Louis Crime Commission, suggested an intelligence unit to keep a running file on the activities, meetings, and intentions, if possible, of hoodlums in the area.

DOWD'S OFFICE SLIPS UP, THEFT CASE DISMISSED

Aid Fails to File Necessary Data — Complainant Out $800, Ex-convict Freed.

Failure of the circuit attorney's office to obtain necessary information so that the names of essential witnesses could be filed in circuit court resulted in dismissal of a case against a former convict for lack of evidence, the Post-Dispatch learned today. A used car dealer had paid $800 to have the man arrested and returned here from California for prosecution.

Russell Lewis Turner, who has served four prison sentences, was charged with embezzlement by bailee in failing to deliver a used car to a purchaser in San Rafael, Calif. Last month Assistant Circuit Attorney Henry J. Fredericks nolle prossed the case for lack of evidence.

Turner had entered into an agreement with John F. Reed, 9850 Gravois avenue, Affton, to drive a 1955 model Oldsmobile to the buyer in California late last winter within six days. When he failed to do so, Reed employed a private detective agency to investigate.

Turner was arrested last April by private detectives Frank Richardson and Robert Ross in California and turned over to Los Angeles police, who held him.

In explaining the dismissal of the case, Fredericks said that although he issued a warrant in June against Turner, he was "under the impression" he had been arrested by Los Angeles police and not private detectives. He said he learned a few days before Turner's scheduled trial last Jan. 9 that he had no case without the private detective's testimony.

He admitted he had failed to indorse them as witnesses in the case when the information was filed in Circuit Judge J. Casey Walhsh's court.

Fredericks said when Richardson and Ross arrested Turner in the Oldsmobile, they found papers that indicated Turner had taken the machine to Georgia where he had obtained an owner's title for the car. Also in his possession was the agreement he made with Reed. Their testimony to these facts was necessary to make a case against Turner.

The private detectives wanted fees, hotel reservations and transportation to and from California to come here to testify against Turner, Fredericks said, adding "we couldn't pay that much." Reed having spent $400 to get Turner here and another $400 in detective fees, refused to pay their way.

Police records show Turner was convicted of a Dyer Act violation in Ohio in 1931 and sentenced to three years; in 1938 he was sentenced to seven years for grand larceny in Carthage, Mo.; in 1947 he was sentenced to four years for automobile theft in El Paso, Tex., and in 1952 he was sentenced in Cincinnati to three years in a federal prison for interstate transportation of a stolen automobile.

Turner, who resisted extradition, was held in Los Angeles city jail from the time he was arrested in April until he was brought here last Aug. 9. He was held in city jail here from that date until the case was dismissed last month.

Fredericks said another reason for nolle prossing the case was that he did not want Turner detained in jail here any longer.

BI-STATE REAPPOINTMENT

AUTO HITS POLE, POWER OFF IN 3100 COUNTY HOMES

More than 3000 St. Louis county homes were without electric power for 40 minutes late yesterday after a skidding automobile crashed into a utility pole at Hillside avenue and Kirkham road, Webster Groves, knocking out service.

Live wires fell across the machine but the current did not reach William L. Lehman, the driver, who escaped with bruises of the face. Lehman lives at 6 Holiday lane, Frontehac.

Union Electric Co. said 3100 customers in Webster Groves, Richmond Heights and Maplewood were without power following the accident, which occurred at 4:35 o'clock. The same users were affected by power failure Tuesday night.

JOBBER COFFEE PRICE RISES

An increase of 2 cents a pound in the wholesale price of Maxwell House coffee was announced today by the Maxwell House Division of General Foods Corp.

The increase is not expected to be reflected in retail price here for about 30 days because of large stocks of coffee on hand. A spokesman for General Foods said the increase was due to the higher price being paid for Colombian and Central American coffees.

FIRE IN SCHOOL DESTROYS OFFICE OF PRINCIPAL

Fire which appeared to have been of incendiary origin last night destroyed the principal's office at Chouteau elementary school, 1306 South Ewing avenue.

The blaze, which Fire Chief Hugh Lyon said "got a good start" before it was discovered by a passerby shortly before 10 o'clock, was confined to the office and a small balcony above it which served as a rest room for teachers. A second alarm was sounded 10 minutes after firemen arrived.

The desk of Miss Dorothy E. Behrens, the principal, was destroyed, as were records in the office. Filing cabinets, two film strip projectors and other office equipment were severely damaged.

Chief Lyon estimated damage to the building at $2000 and to the contents at $500.

Boys who had been disciplined recently by the principal were being sought for questioning. The office had not been locked, Miss Behrens said, because of a recent Board of Education rule forbidding it.

Two firemen were taken to City Hospital after they fell through the office floor 12 feet to a concrete basement while removing debris. They are Herman Steinkoetter of Hook and Ladder Company 1, 5517 Murdoch avenue, and Charles Schmitt, driver for Chief Lyon, 2019 Menard street. After X-rays were taken they were released.

So extensive was damage to the office that wiremen at first thought there had been no desk in it until Miss Behrens arrived and asked what had become of it.

R-1 HAZELWOOD SCHOOL UNIT VOTES ON BONDS SATURDAY

Voters of R-1 Hazelwood School District in St. Louis county will vote Saturday on a $1,200,000 bond issue proposal for two new elementary schools, four-room additions to the Twillmann and Larimore elementary schools, an eight-room addition to the high school and a site for a future high school.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. A two-thirds majority will be required. School Superintendent Clifford B. Kirby said passage of the bonds would result in a tax rise of about 30 cents on each $100 of valuation.

FRENCH ASSAIL MOLLET'S PLAN FOR ALGERIA

100,000 Colonists Cheer Retiring Governor General Whom Catroux Will Replace.

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP)—Premier Guy Mollet's solutions for Algeria's problems already are getting a rocky reception in that country.

Mollet's cabinet, in its first meeting tomorrow, will consider his proposals for dealing with the 15-month rebellion of anti-French nationalists.

In Algiers a crowd of 100,000 Frenchmen cheered retiring Governor General Jacques Soustelle today and condemned policies of the new Paris government.

The demonstration signaled difficulties and perhaps violence for the expected arrival next week of Mollet and his minister for Algeria, Gen. George Catroux, on a peace-making mission.

Departure Delayed.

Soustelle's departure for France was held up for more than an hour by the crowd. Mainly made up of war veterans, who chanted such slogans as "Resign Mollet" and "Catroux, au poteau" which translates roughly as "burn Catroux at the stake."

Three Algiers newspapers, which reflect the views of French residents, are bitterly critical of Mollet's program to meet the nationalist threat.

One of the new Premier's proposals, outlined in his initial statement to the National Assembly Tuesday is an election in the near future to choose Algerian leaders with whom France can negotiate.

The newspapers disagreed especially with Mollet's plan to conduct these elections through a single-college system which would end the division between French and Moslem voters and candidates. At present, under a two-college system, seats in the Algerian Assembly are split between French and Moslem deputies. French and Moslem Algerians vote separately for their own candidates for these seats.

French Complaints.

The French in Algeria were quick to point out that French residents, who number about 1,500,000, will be "drowned" by approximately 9,000,000 Moslems.

While Mollet declared France and Algeria must maintain an "unbreakable union," he also said France must respect Algeria's "personality." Some commentators took this to mean Mollet would end the traditional fiction that the four departments (counties) of Algeria are as much a part of France as any of the European departments.

The newspaper Echo d'Alger said a single-college election could only mean, sooner or later, the eviction of Frenchmen from Algeria.

Text of President's and Eden's Declaration and Communique

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP).

Following are the texts of a joint declaration and communique summarizing this week's conferences between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden:

JOINT DECLARATION

WE ARE CONSCIOUS that in this year of 1956, there still rages the age-old struggle between those who believe that man has his origin and his destiny in God and those who treat man as if he were designed merely to serve a state machine.

Hence, we deem it useful to declare again certain truths and aims upon which we are united and which we are persuaded are supported by all free nations.

1. Because of our belief that the state should exist for the benefit of the individual and not the individual for the benefit of the state, we uphold the basic right of peoples to governments of their own choice.

2. These beliefs of ours are far more than theory or doctrine. They have been translated into the actual conduct of our policy both domestic and foreign. We are parties to the Atlantic Charter, the United Nations Charter, the Potomac Charter and the Pacific Charter. In them we have, with other friends, dedicated ourselves to the goal of self - government and independence of all countries whose people desire and are capable of sustaining an independent existence. During the past ten and more years 600,000,000 men and women in nearly a score of lands have, with our support and assistance, attained nationhood. Many millions more are being helped surely and steadily toward self-government. Thus, the reality and effectiveness of what we have done is a proof of our sincerity.

Economic Growth.

3. Further, we know that political independence cannot alone assure men and nations full opportunity to pursue happiness and to fulfill their highest destiny. There is likewise need for economic sustenance and growth. This, too, we have helped to provide. We seek to develop with others a large volume of mutually beneficial trade. Likewise we seek, through technical assistance, the Colombo plan and other programs we support, to help economic progress in the less developed countries and to raise the living standards of their peoples. In these programs we have not sought nor desired extension of either economic or political power. The purpose is not to dilute, but to enrich and secure their freedom.

4. During this period of notable co-operative progress in the free world, those who assert the supremacy of the state and deny the inherent rights of men have also been active. Millions of people of different blood, religions and traditions have been forcibly incorporated within the Soviet Union, and many millions more have in fact, although not always in form, been absorbed into the Soviet Communist bloc. In Europe alone, some 100,000,000 people, in what were once 10 independent nations, are compelled, against their will, to work for the glorification and aggrandizement of the Soviet Communist state.

Use of Force.

The Communist rulers have expressed, in numerous documents and manifestos, their purpose to extend the practice of Communism by every possible means, until it encompasses the world. To this end they have used military and political force in the past. They continue to seek the same goals, and they have now added economic inducement to their other methods of penetration.

It would be illusory to hope that in their foreign policies, political and economic, the Soviet rulers would reflect a concern for the rights of their peoples which they do not show towards the men and women they already rule. Any free nation that may be persuaded by whatever threat, promise or enticement to embrace Communism will lose its independence and its people will forfeit their rights and liberties. These contrasting records of recent years reflect the essence of the struggle between free countries and the Communist rulers.

5. In the face of the Communist challenge, almost 50 nations which cherish freedom have drawn together in voluntary associations for their collective security. These associations uphold for all their members the right to independent existence, the right to free expression and the right to differ. The purpose of their union is to preserve those national rights, just as within a state people join together to preserve their individual rights.

Violence Rejected.

6. We reject any thought that the cleavage we have described should be resolved by force. We shall never initiate violence. Moreover, we shall use our full influence to assure that Soviet efforts to inflame old antagonisms will not succeed in breaking the peace. The United Nations provides appropriate machinery to assist countries desiring peacefully to bridge their differences and to settle disputes.

Many nations of the free world are ever anxious to proffer their good offices to promote the same end. Our two countries stand constantly ready to aid in negotiation and conciliation with others directly concerned, so as to achieve just settlements of the concrete issues that now trouble the world.

7. We shall persevere in seeking a just and lasting peace and a universal and effectively controlled disarmament which will relieve mankind of the burden and terror of modern weapons. Meanwhile the society of free nations must retain the power needed to deter aggression. We recognize that such power should never serve as a means of national aggrandizement but only as an essential shield for every member of the community of nations.

We are determined to make the conquest of the atom a pathway to peaceful progress, not a road to doom.

8. We will not be deflected from the policies and purposes we have herein stated. On the contrary, we will maintain and, where necessary, strengthen and extend them. Thus, we shall help ourselves and others to peace, freedom and social progress, maintaining human rights where they are already secure, defending them when they are in peril and peacefully restoring them where they have temporarily been lost.

While resolutely pursuing these aims, which are the products of our faith in God and in the peoples of the earth, we shall eagerly grasp any genuine opportunity to free mankind of the pall of fear and insecurity which now obscures what can and should be a glorious future.

(Signed) Dwight D. Eisenhower.
(Signed) Anthony Eden.

STATEMENT.

At the end of three days of friendly and fruitful reunion, the President and the Prime Minister issued the following statement.

Conscious of the unity of purpose of our two countries, we have restated in a separate joint declaration our views of the challenge which confronts the free world and the principles which it seems to us are required to meet it. In our conversations, we have also reviewed other matters of mutual concern to the two governments in various areas of the world.

I.
EUROPE

We reaffirm that the North Atlantic Treaty is essential to our common security. We regard this association as far more than a military alliance. We welcome the increasing range of consultation in the council on political and other problems.

In the economic field we recognize the contribution which the OEEC (Organization of European Co-operation) makes to the stability of Europe. Within the framework of the Atlantic community, and with regard for its broader interests, we support further progress on the Continent toward unity, both political and economic.

With respect to Germany, we agree that so long as it remains divided, there can be no genuine and stable peace. We shall continue our efforts to bring about the reunification of Germany in freedom. We regard the government of the Federal Republic of Germany as the only German government freely and legitimately constituted, and therefore alone entitled to speak as the representative of the German people in international affairs.

We reaffirm our abiding interest in the security and welfare of Berlin. We shall continue, as we have stated in the past, to regard any attack against Berlin from any quarter as an attack upon our forces and ourselves.

II.
MIDDLE EAST

We discussed the tensions which prejudice the stability of the area and carry a potential threat to world peace. It was agreed that every effort should be made to decrease sources of misunderstanding between this rest upon arms alone but are eager to contribute wherever possible to the settlement of difficulties between states in the region. We wish to help peoples of this part of the world achieve their legitimate aspirations.

A settlement between Israel and her Arab neighbors is the most urgent need. This will be possible only if both sides are willing to reconcile the positions which they have hitherto taken. Our two governments have declared their readiness to contribute to such a settlement by assisting financially in regard to the refugee problem and by guaranteeing agreed frontiers.

In the meantime we are concerned at the state of tension in the area and have considered what steps can be taken to reduce it. The tripartite declaration of May 25th, 1950, provides for action both inside and outside the United Nations in the event of the use of force or threat of force or of preparations to violate the frontier or armistice lines. We are bound to recognize that there is now increased danger of these contingencies arising. Accordingly, we have made arrangements for joint discussions as to the nature of the action which we should take in such an event. The French government is being invited to participate in these discussions.

We believe that the security of states in this area cannot best upon arms alone but rather upon the international rule of law and upon the establishment of friendly relations among neighbors. The action of the Soviet bloc in regard to arms supplies to Middle East countries has added to the tensions in the area and increased the risk of war. Our purpose is to mitigate that risk.

We express our full support for the efforts of Gen. Burns, head of the United Nations truce supervisory organization, to maintain peace on the borders. We would favorably consider recommendations for any necessary enlargement of his organization and improvement of its capabilities.

We discussed the work of the Baghdad pact and agreed upon its importance for the security of the Middle East. We noted that this association, in addition to its defense aspects, has an important part to play in the economic and political development of member countries. We believe that it serves the interests of the area as a whole and provides no reason for impairing the good relations we wish to maintain with non-member countries.

The United States government will continue to give solid support to the purposes and aims of the pact and its observers will play a constructive part in the world of its committees.

We reviewed the situation in Arabia and the Persian gulf, with particular reference to current disputes and differences in that area. We believe that these differences can be resolved through friendly discussions.

III.
SOUTH AND SOUTHEAST ASIA.

We reaffirm our view that the Southeast Asia treaty organization is a stabilizing influence. We will continue to give it our full support and to work with those countries who are associated with us as our allies in this organization. We welcome the co-operation of our allies and ourselves with other free nations in this important area, through such organizations as the Columbo Plan, in developing the resources and well-being of all participating countries.

IV.
FAR EAST.

We discussed the situation in the Far East. We are firmly united in our purpose: to deter and prevent aggressive expansion by force or subversion, and to assist the free nations of the area in their self-defense and in maintaining domestic stability and welfare. We are agreed that our policies must be directed to achieve these ends. After frank discussion, some differences remain in our judgements as to the most effective means to achieve these purposes.

We are agreed that trade controls should continue and should be reviewed now and periodically as to their scope, in the light of changing conditions so that they may best serve the interests of the free world.

V.
ATOMIC ENERGY MATTERS

We noted with great satisfaction that atomic energy information now being exchanged as a result of the agreements concluded between our governments last June represents a gain to the common security. We discussed the development of our close co-operation in this field. We confirmed our resolve to push forward with the setting up, with suitable safeguards, of the international agency for the promotion of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Eden Offers Blueprint To Meet Soviet Threats

past economic aid which helped repair the damage of "six years of bombardment and war."

2 LEADERS WARN OF SOVIET LURE

(Text on Page 4A)

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—The "Declaration of Washington," signed yesterday by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden, amounts to a joint appeal to the new nations of Asia and Africa to reject Soviet efforts to draw them into the Communist fold.

The argument employed by the two Western leaders was that it is illusory for peoples outside the Soviet world to think that Russia has a genuine solicitude for their welfare when the Russians show no solicitude for citizens of the Soviet Union.

Facts of Life Presented.

The declaration and accompanying communique outlining the results of the three-day British and American talks were regarded by the United States as not routine but as important in their timing. The United States felt it would be useful at this time to draw the attention of the nations of Asia to certain facts of life, and to emphasize that the Western nations have favored political independence while the Communists have tried to extinguish independence.

The declaration said that in the last 10 years nearly 600,000,000 persons in almost 20 lands have with Western assistance attained nationhood. In contrast, the declaration continued, in Europe alone some 100,000,000 persons in what were once 10 independent nations now "are compelled, against their will, to work for the glorification and aggrandizement of the Soviet Communist state."

Reds Active in Mideast.

The declaration was issued at a time when new efforts at economic penetration of Asia and Africa were being made by the Russians and when the Communists were increasing tension in the Middle East by furnishing arms to Egypt, leader of the Arab states in the dispute with Israeli.

Asserting the reality and effectiveness of what the West has accomplished is proof of its sincerity, Eden and Mr. Eisenhower declared:

"Any free nation that may be persuaded by whatever threat, promise or enticement to embrace Communism will lose its independence, and its people will forfeit their rights and liberties."

The communique covered the areas of Europe, the Middle East, South and Southeast Asia and the Far East and touched upon atomic energy. No action was taken on British suggestions having to do with the control of hydrogen bomb tests. The view of the United States is that there is no danger to human welfare in properly conducted tests and that discussion of controls comes under the head of disarmament.

The communique made these points:

The United States and Britain pledged to take action in the Middle Fast in the event of force or threat of force or of preparations to violate Israeli-Arab frontiers or armistice lines. Arrangements have been made for joint discussions of what action should be taken.

The French government, a party to the United States-British-French tripartite declaration of 1950 on a power balance in the Middle East, has been invited to participate in these talks.

The United States strongly indorsed and promised to support the Baghdad pact alliance of Britain, Turkey, Pakistan, Iran and Iraq. Nothing was said about a possible membership for the United States.

There was agreement that controls on trade with Red China would be reviewed.

Better Understanding.

As to whether the British were pleased with the results of the talks, the United States thinks that not everything the British proposed worked out precisely as they hoped but that where there was a divergence of opinion between the two countries there was evolved a better understanding of the reasons for the position of each participant. This was said to be particularly true in the case of British proposals to loosen the embargo on trade with Red China.

The communique stated the United States and Britain were agreed they must prevent "aggressive expansion" in the Far East and assist the free nations in their efforts at self-defense and in maintaining domestic stability.

"After frank discussion," the communique said, "some differences remain in our judgments as to the most effective means to achieve these purposes. We are agreed that trade controls should continue and should be reviewed now and periodically as to their scope, in the light of changing conditions, so they may best serve the interests of the free world."

Britain recognizes the Chinese Communist regime; the United States does not. Britain and some members of the British Commonwealth are vastly more interested in the China trade than is the United States.

The British almost certainly won a point on the China trade issue. They brought a proposal to reduce the level of the controls to that of the controls on trade with the Soviet bloc, but that plan was dropped. The view of the United States after the conference had ended was, however, that this country may have been a bit too rigid in some matters and was now prepared to sit down and talk and to consider relaxation if a case could be made for specific items.

The criterion to be applied is whether relaxation of the embargo on some items would assist the free world, not whether some nation would derive a commercial advantage. There appears to be no question of altering at the moment the total United States embargo on trade. The possible relaxation would be on commodities affecting other free nations.

Mentioned in this connection are such nations as Indonesia, Malaya and Ceylon. They can find a ready market for rubber in Communist China. Rubber will be one of the items to be considered on a multilateral discussion basis. The United States has, of course, no legal power to control the trade of other countries, but the granting or withdrawal of aid and other considerations gives this country a powerful lever.

Controls on trade with Iron Curtain countries have been reviewed and changed from time to time in the light of changing world conditions, and the same principle of review will now be applied to Chinese trade. It was emphasized that the only agreement reached was an agreement to study the controls.

It was agreed by the participants in the discussions that to prevent war in the Middle East the area should be put on notice that Britain and the United States are prepared to consider such steps as military action, a naval blockade, and economic and financial measures.

In addition, it was noted in the communique, that the two countries would favorably consider recommendations for the enlargement of the United Nations truce supervisory organization. This might add an unspecified number of unarmed U.N. personnel charged with trying to maintain peace on the borders.

While there was no decision as to precise action, it was decided that the time had come to think of the problem in terms of concrete assets, probabilities and alternatives. To that end discussions are to be held at lower levels in Washington shortly.

Just what action the United States and Britain might take in the event war should break out in the Middle East was not clear. It was plain, however, that the United States was placing at least some reliance on the policy of deterrence of Secretary of State Dulles. The idea is to put each side on notice that something will happen to the side that violates the truce.

In the event of war the United Nations might be called upon first to take action, but that action might be subject to a Russian veto. Congress would be consulted before military action was taken, by the United States, if there was time. Possible procedures remained obscure.

There was no action on the request of Israel to buy additional arms from the United States and no immediate prospect of United States approval.

There was no British-American agreement in support of the United States policy of preventing admission of Red China to the United Nations, but it was assumed Britain would continue for at least another year voting with the United States to delay a membership test.

BODIES OF 10 PLANE VICTIMS TO BE BROUGHT TO CARACAS

CARACAS, Venezuela, Feb. 2 (UP)—The bodies of four Americans and six other persons killed last week in a light plane crash in eastern Venezuela will be brought here today.

The remains of the four Americans, Capt. and Mrs. Charles P. Boughan and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Edgerton, of Stamford, Conn., will be returned to the United States for burial.

Boughan was the owner and piloti of the sightseeing plane in which the 10 victims were flying here from Angel falls at the time of the crash.

KEEL OF WORLD'S LARGEST CARGO SHIP LAID IN JAPAN

KURE, Japan, Feb. 2 (AP)—The keel of the world's largest cargo ship, an 83,900 gross ton tanker, was laid here Monday, the newspaper Asahi said today.

The ship is being built by National Carriers, Inc., an American firm with yards here, and is one of a pair scheduled for completion this year. The two 860-foot-long tankers will be exceeded in tonnage only by the Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, Asahi said.

BRITISH TO CUT PRODUCTION ON SUPERSONIC HAWKER JET

LONDON, Feb. 2 (UP)—Britain announced yesterday that it plans to cut production of its supersonic Hawker Hunter jet fighter plane as part of an over-all review of defense needs.

This is the first major cutback disclosed since Prime Minister Eden said recently that defense spending must be revised under the impact of rising costs.

Informed sources said that the United States may ease some of the strain on Britain's economy by taking over part of the research job into expensive new weapons such as guided missiles.

MURDER MOTIVE A MYSTERY, SAYS BROWN'S WIFE

come in, and turned on the porch light. Then I went back in the kitchen. At the door, I saw Bob's car, but I didn't see him. It was dark.

"Little Jimmie stayed at the door, peeking through the blinds."

Later, James Patrick Brown, 8 years old, youngest of the Browns' four children, said he saw "daddy get into another car and go away." Police believe two or more men took Brown in their car to an alley behind 4118 Margaretta avenue, where he was shot three times.

When Brown failed to appear, his wife thought at first he had decided to go to the polls to vote on the state bond issue proposal. Investigation showed later he had voted at a polling place at 4326 West Florissant avenue a few minutes before driving home.

Called Sharpe's Wife.

"When it became much later than 7 p.m., I telephone to John Sharpe's wife, Avis, and asked her if she knew where the two men were," Mrs. Brown said. "I thought perhaps John had followed Bob home and they had gone somewhere for a beer.

"Avis said John had arrived home long ago and gone out to a meeting. She said they had stopped at John Toman's repair shop on Jefferson avenue after leaving the office to pick up Sharpe's car. I called Toman, whom we had known for a long time, but he said he had not seen Bob since about 6 p.m."

Mrs. Brown was a partner with her husband in the W-R Cigarette Co. and Brown & Sons Tobacco Co., both at 3723 Goodfellow boulevard.

Some acquaintances of Brown were under the impression his wife assisted him in business affairs and helped him in making decisions.

"That's not true," she asserted. "I was just a housewife. I knew nothing of business matters. What Bob did along those lines was his own affair, and I never interfered."

Established in 1945.

The two firms were established in 1945, when Brown bought a small wholesale company on West Florissant near his home. His wife worked for a short time at the firm. In 1949, the offices were transferred to Goodfellow boulevard. James Holland, formerly in the brokerage business and a longtime friend of Brown, became business manager about that time.

"Jim Holland took care of handling the firms," Mrs. Brown said. "Bob went out there only once every two or three months."

Police have been told Brown had an annual income of $45,000. His wife and Sharpe said profits from the tobacco and vending machine companies were not so large as believed, but they did not comment on Brown's income.

Had Country Home.

In addition to the well-appointed home on Holly place, a one-way street ending at O'Fallon Park, Brown also had an elaborate home in Jefferson county, on a hill overlooking Highway 30, three miles south of High Ridge.

The country estate includes a large, white stone house with tile roof; extensive grounds, and a separate home for the caretaker, William Heinz. A swimming pool is behind the house.

On Jan. 4, Brown obtained articles of incorporation from the state for his firms on Goodfellow—a move that would have hindered attempts by hoodlums to take over the business in event of his death.

However, Sharpe said Brown decided to incorporate only for the purpose of taking tax benefits under the 1954 Internal Revenue Act—benefits which would not be available to the partnership.

Firms Still Operating.

Mrs. Brown, who has been under a physician's care since her husband's death, has not decided whether she will continue in the tobacco and vending machine business. However, the firms, which have 10 to 15 employes, are continuing in operation.

The Browns were married in 1939, when he was in law school and working as a clerk in the police department. She is 38 years old and he was 41.

Asked if her husband kept firearms, Mrs. Brown exclaimed: "Goodness no, he wouldn't allow a gun around the house. He always said his experience in the police department convinced him that the value of having a gun was outweighed by the dangers involved."

Referring again to her husband's conduct in the days just prior to the murder, Mrs. Brown said: "Aside from a cold which was bothering him, he was the same as always. He didn't seem to fear a thing."

Giardano Arrested.

In the continuing round-up of hoodlums in the murder investigation, police last night arrested Anthony (Tony) Giardano, a representative of the Anthony Novelty Co., vending machine firm headed by John J. Vitale, which has been branching out on a large scale recently.

Giardano, arrested in the 1000 block of Hodiamont avenue, said: "I've nothing to say. I want to talk to a lawyer." He refused to drive his automobile to police headquarters, so police called on Nelson's Service to tow it to their lot, where it will be examined by police laboratory technicians. Giardano was released today.

WILSON TO NAME CO-ORDINATOR FOR GUIDED MISSILES

ing basic training, furloughs and transportation time, it would not be worthwhile to send men overseas with only 18 months of total service.

The men concerned would be exchanging six months of active duty for two and a half years of service in the ready reserve, in a unit and taking part in training.

Unification Extension.

The single manager system will be extended to cover additional common use items and service activities, Wilson announced. The additional activities will be in petroleum, medical-dental, clothing-textiles, photographic equipment and, in the service field traffic management.

The single manager system has already been applied to the purchase and distribution of food, to sea transportation and to air transportation.

Under the single manager concept the secretary of one of the three services is designated as the single manager for the activity. He appoints an executive director and sets up an operating agency.

The executive director is responsible for the purchase, quality control, storage, inventory control and distribution of the supplies to the retail supply point.

The extension of the single manager system will place the purchase and distribution of supplies under military departments as follows:

Army: Food, clothing-textiles and, in the service field, traffic management.

Navy: Petroleum, medical-dental supplies and, in the service field, military sea transportation service.

Inventories to Be Cut.

The largest savings that will accrue immediately from the extension of the single manager system, assistant secretary of defense for supply and logistics Thomas P. Pike said, will come from reduction of inventories.

The annual turnover in the common use items affected is about six billion dollars.

Pike said there was no intention of extending the single manager system beyond the fields now proposed.

Two months ago when the Post-Dispatch inquired of his office if there was any intention of extending the single manager system beyond subsistence the answer was no.

Wilson said yesterday that the armed services would grant discharges based entirely on character of service and without regard for allegations of preinduction associations or activities contrary to the nation's security policy.

The new policy results from hearings conducted late last year by the subcommittee on constitutional rights in which it was brought out that an inductee who admitted membership in the wide variety of suspect organizations on the so-called attorney general's list, who associated with someone who was a member of the organizations or who pleaded constitutional privilege against answering the questions, automatically was placed on limited service and pre-judged to receive less than an honorable discharge regardless of the character of his service.

Communists now are barred from acceptance by the services. The new policy means that prospective members of the services will be examined prior to induction and rejected if their civilian activities are deemed objectionable.

NEW JET THAT CAN GUIDE ITSELF TO TARGET FLOWN

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2 (AP) —The F100-D, a new Super Sabre jet that can guide itself to a target, has been flown for the first time by test pilot Dan Darnell, North American Aviation, Inc., announced yesterday.

The new model of the fighter-bomber capable of exceeding the speed of sound in level flight is equipped with an auto-pilot.

"This electronic device will control the F100 at supersonic speed, enabling the pilot to concentrate on navigation or other tactical phases of his mission," Darnell said.

'SECOND CHOICE' STASSEN GROUP ORGANIZED HERE

Republicans Say They Want to Be Prepared if President Does Not Run.

A movement to support Harold E. Stassen for the Republican presidential nomination if President Eisenhower does not seek re-election was started yesterday by a group of St. Louis and St. Louis county Republicans.

Ancel A. Skaggs, former head of the Republican City Committee, was named chairman of the group; Mrs. Mabel L. Miller, Washington township committeewoman, secretary, and Marshall H. Reynolds, Twenty-sixth ward committeeman, treasurer.

"Members of the group agreed unanimously that they are for Mr. Eisenhower if he runs," Skaggs reported. "They believe the President by all means should be encouraged to seek re-election, but they want to be prepared in case he does not.

"They unanimously named Stassen as the second choice and considered him the best candidate next to Ike. They intend to invite other Eisenhower and Stassen admirers to join with them."

In the maneuvering which preceded the 1952 Republican convention, a majority of the city and county Republican committee members were pledged to Stassen, but after Mr. Eisensower entered the picture, E. W. Bromwich, manager of the Stassen campaign in Missouri, released them from their pledges and most of them supported Mr. Eisenhower.

Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota, is now a special presidential assistant on disarmament matters. He was the principal speaker here at the $100-a-plate Repubiican "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner on Jan. 20.

Asked if he would run for President if Mr. Eisenhower does not, Stassen told St. Louis interviewers he did not care to speculate about that.

"We must act on the basis that the President will run," he said.

How Discouraging.

MUNCIE, Ind.—(UP) — A bright-eyed, eager young couple entered the county clerk's office with the necessary papers to obtain a marriage license. They waited in a long line for several hours and finally reached the clerk's window. The line was for support payments.

PREDICTS RULING ON COCA COLA STRIKE SOON

NLRB Official Asserts Board Will Act on Petition by Teamsters Local Here.

A ruling will be made "soon" on a petition filed with the National Labor Relations Board by Teamsters Local 688 seeking recognition of that union as bargaining agent for 200 drivers of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. here, Frank M. Kleiler, executive secretary of the NLRB in Washington, said today.

Kleiler refused to comment on a recent charge by the union that the NLRB has denied the drivers an election. He said that the petition is "being studied now and a formal decision will be announced soon." He declined to be more specific on when the ruling might be expected.

On Strike Since Nov. 9.

The company's drivers have been on strike to obtain recognition of the union as their bargaining agent since Nov. 9.

An injunction sought by the NLRB to halt picketing by Local 688 at the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. was denied last Friday by United States District Judge George H. Moore. He held that the NLRB failed to establish "reasonable cause" to believe that the union was engaging in unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The NLRB had contended that the union violated the act by striking to force management to recognize it as collective bargaining agent for the company's drivers. Judge Moore ruled that the union had gained the support of a "clear majority" of the drivers.

Assails Company.

Meanwhile, Harry Craig, attorney representing the union in the NLRB case, charged the company is attempting to block the election through legal maneuvers "because they are aware of the fact their drivers want the Teamsters Union."

Accusing the company of dilatory tactics, Craig said that various court actions have been instituted by Coca Cola for the purpose of influencing the NLRB to delay its decision.

"I have observed in the last two years from my reading of NLRB decisions that the NLRB has become increasingly sympathetic to the position of management," Craig added.

Criticizes Teamsters.

Nelson Hartman, attorney for the Coca Cola Bottling Co., said that the drivers could have been working and drawing their pay the entire time the representation case has been before the labor board "if Harold Gibbons (head of Local 688) hadn't elected to call them out. The company didn't put the men on the streets. The Teamsters put them there.

"The company emphatically denies it is trying to block a decision by the NLRB. When and if the Teamsters refrain from unfair labor practices so a free election can be held, we feel satisfied the labor board will take the necessary action."

He disagreed also with the union's contention that the drivers "want the Teamsters" to represent them. "We don't know what the drivers want. That's the reason we have a labor board."

HOME LOAN AGENCY BORROWING $100,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) —The Federal National Mortgage Association announced yesterday it will borrow $100,000,000 to expand its underwriting of Government-backed home mortgages.

J. S. Baughman, president of the Government agency, said the money will be raised by selling nine-month debentures to be dated Feb. 20 and to pay 3⅛ per cent interest.

The proceeds will be used, he said, to finance the associations' secondary market operations (purchases of Government-insured mortgages) and to repay past borrowings from the United States Treasury used in secondary mortgage purchases. The move is part of a program by FNMA to inject more funds into the mortgage market for the financing of new home building.

HOUSE OK'S NAVY'S ATOM, MISSILE SHIPS

$1,500,000,000 Bill Also Approves Supercarrier, Conventional Ships.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) —The House voted overwhelming approval yesterday of a new $1,500,000,000 Navy shipbuilding program "marking the transition from steam to atomic energy."

House members passed 358 to 3 and sent to the Senate a bill providing for atomic-driven and guided missile craft as well as the latest in conventionally propelled vessels.

Representative Vinson (Dem.-Georgia), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said "the day is not far distant when every ship in the American navy will be driven by nuclear power."

The bill would authorize what may be the world's first nuclear surface ship, an 11,000-ton cruiser armed with guided missiles. It also includes six more atomic submarines, in addition to the eight already built or planned, and allows for a start on a nuclear power plant for an aircraft carrier.

Beyond that, it calls for construction of another Forrestal class supercarrier, four guided missile frigates, eight guided missile destroyers and a number of smaller craft. It also would authorize modernization of four carriers, five cruisers, a guided missile submarine and other ships.

In total the bill authorizes building and improvements worth $1,414,661,000. Actual funds for the work, recommended by President Eisenhower, must be appropriated in separate legislation.

Opposition was raised to the new supercarrier, but Vinson said it had the indorsement of Mr. Eisenhower and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He added it probably would be the last of the Navy's big carriers not operated on atomic energy.

ARAB-ISRAELI ROW ALMOST INSOLVABLE, WRITER SAYS

The present Arab-Israeli controversy is almost insolvable, Richard Pattee, columnist for the Catholic press, told students yesterday at Fontbonne College.

Israelis believe that Palestine is the traditional Jewish homeland and the Arabs consider the modern Jew an interloper in the land, Pattee said. He spent last summer in Israel and other parts of the Middle East.

GETS 30 DAYS, FINED $10 FOR DRIVING WRONG WAY

Aloys Ils, 4929 Market avenue, East St. Louis, an automobile assemblyman, was sentenced to 30 days in jail yesterday and fined $10 for driving the wrong way on a one-way street by Police J... Robert G. Dowd. Ils' dr...s license was suspended for 90 days.

Police testified Ils was arrested about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday driving north on Sixth street between Walnut and Elm streets. They testified he was unable to stand erect after the arrest, and an intoximeter test showed he was intoxicated. It required 40 minutes to get his name, they said.

Ils denied he was drunk, but testified that he had had "a few beers." He filed notice of appeal.

COUNTY COUNCIL ACTS TO LESSEN JET TEST DANGER

$33,216 approved earlier for county purposes in 1956.

Councilman L. Gordon Davis offered a resolution yesterday to create a committee to conduct a study upon which to base legislation establishing and defining housing standards for the county. It would consist of the health commissioner, director of public works, the executive secretary of the planning commission and the county counselor.

Davis said there were about 14 blighted areas in the county in which people were living in unwholesome surroundings and that no minimum housing standards had been provided for such areas.

Davis also introduced an amendment to a pending residence qualification bill for applicants for the county police department but it failed for lack of a second. The pending measure would require that applicants be residents of the county for one year before seeking a position with the department.

The amendment would waive this requirement for any applicant with one year's police experience. Davis said the county should not limit itself to residents, especially in fields requiring technical knowledge and training. The council received a copy of a resolution by the city council of University City withdrawing its authorization to the city police department to seek deputization in the county department. The resolution objected to the residence qualification proposed by the county.

The council placed on next week's agenda a request from Recorder of Deeds Gerald J. Donworth for an additional appropriation of $6000 with which to add another employe and purchase microfilming equipment. He said his records, kept in a vault in the sub-basement of the courthouse, were in danger of water damage.

Counselor Funke gave the council an opinion that the county police department could not transfer to Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley the work of fingerprinting and photographing criminals it handles. Funke said his opinion did not touch on the right of Mosley to fingerprint and photograph residents of the county jail as an aid to efficient operation of the jail.

NEWSPRINT FIRM'S TAXES NIKED, DEFIED PRICE ORDER

QUEBEC CITY, Feb. 2 (UP) —The legislative assembly voted 56 to 17 yesterday to double the taxable value of real estate of the Anglo-Canadian Pulp & Papare Co. which defied Premier Maurice Duplessis by boosting newsprint prices to Quebec publishers.

The action, inspired by Duplessis and branded discriminatory by opposition members, removed special tax concessions granted the company for several years and boosted the taxable value of its real estate in Quebec province from $3,500,000 to $7,000,000.

Duplessis said the company, which recently expanded and gained control of the Dryden Paper Co. in Ontario, could afford to pay its full taxes "like anyone else."

G.I.S WARM HANDS AT PARIS ETERNAL FIRE; FRENCH ANGRY

PARIS, Feb. 2 (UP)—French war veterans were up in arms today because three American soldiers warmed their hands over the eternal flame at the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier under the Arc de Triomphe.

Guards said the incident occurred about three weeks ago. Two gendarmes drove the soldiers away.

prices. It was just that simple to figure out."

Aiken, who has been in the Senate since 1940, said that never in all his years in the upper chamber had he seen such intensive and varied types of lobbying used to promote legislation.

Another tactic used in Vermont, Aiken said, was circulation of a letter over the signature of an executive of a major oil company from which the reader could infer that there were large amounts of natural gas in the northern part of the state which would be made available to consumers if the Fulbright bill were passed.

Actually, Aiken said, tests have determined that there are only small pockets of natural gas in the area which might serve "two houses or a small town" for a limited time.

It was also apparent from his mail, Aiken said, that shareholders in the major oil companies, which produce 90 per cent of the nation's natural gas supply, were enlisted in the pressure campaign.

It appeared today that consumer reaction to the proposed measure may be the deciding factor in the outcome of the roll call on the bill, which, it is estimated by its opponents, would add $600,000,000 to $800,000,000 to the consumers' annual gas bills.

Senators who have committed themselves are almost evenly divided on the measure and the defeat or passage of the bill appears to rest on the decision of a small group of Senators who have declared themselves neither way.

Ordinary, non-shareholding consumers have been slow to inform Senators of their wishes in the matter. Some Senators who have privately expressed opposition to the bill say frankly that they are leaning toward its passage because the bulk of their mail urges them to vote for it.

Senator Everett M. Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, stated on the Senate floor yesterday that he will vote for the bill for two reasons: (1) Congress did not intend that the natural gas act of 1938 which placed the gas industry under regulation by the Federal Power Commission should extend to producers, and (2) Congress must preserve those "intangible forces" which make men risk their money to obtain additional supplies of natural gas.

Both points have been labored frequently by other proponents of the Fulbright bill, particularly the contention that unless the producers are freed from price regulation they will refuse to explore for new supplies and hence large sections of the country will never know the convenience of the fuel.

Mayors Oppose Bill.

Meanwhile, as debate on the measure continued in its third week, mayors of large natural gas consuming cities conferred at the Capitol yesterday with Senators on strategy in their uphill fight.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Democratic mayor of New York City and chairman of a committee of more than 260 mayors opposing the bill, reported after the meeting that all mayors whose Senators are uncommitted would be asked to attempt to impress their Senators with the importance of defeating the legislation from the consumers' standpoint and from that of small businesses using natural gas.

Wagner conceded that the battle against the gas bill has reached the "critical stage" and that the pro-regulation forces "are not conceding defeat."

12 Governors Appeal to Senate to Beat Gas Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP) —Governors of 12 states appealed to the Senate today to defeat the natural gas bill.

The governors—two Republicans and 10 Democrats—telegraphed Senate leaders that the interest of millions of citizens of their states "would be sacrificed" if the bill is passed.

The appeal was signed by: Republican Govs. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin and Leo A. Hoegh of Iowa, Democratic Govs. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Robert Meyner of New Jersey, Averell Harriman of New York, Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, George M. Leader of Pennsylvania, Dennis J. Roberts of Rhode Island and Frank J. Clement of Tennessee.

The governors' telegram said: "Hundreds of millions of dollars annually in increased natural gas bills are at stake if effective federal regulation of sales by gas producers in interstate commerce is ended. The effectiveness of regulation of local gas rates by our state regulatory commissions would be largely nullified as field gas prices are exempted fro meffective federal regulation."

FREMONT, Mich. (UP) — Fremont, which calls itself the baby food capital of the world, is doing its share to provide customers for its main product. City Clerk Fred Dawe said 512 babies were born in Fremont last year, an all-time high.

NOT GUILTY PLEAS BY PAIR HELD IN AFFTON KILLING

Not guilty pleas were entered today at a preliminary hearing at Clayton for two youths who admitted the holdup killing of Arthur L. Seise, Affton store keeper, Jan. 23.

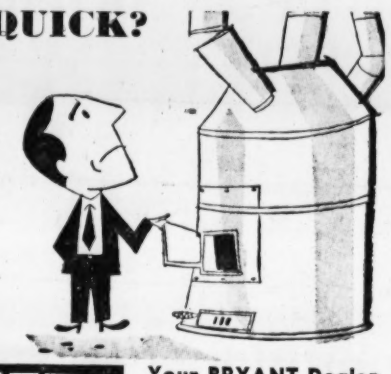

Howard E. Johnson, 17 years old, of Maplewood, was ordered bound over to the county grand jury on a murder charge. A motion seeking introduction of written statements obtained from the youths by police was overruled by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis.

Richard G. Bevans, 16 years old, was ordered held by juvenile authorities, after his mother, Mrs. Jean Bevans, produced records showing he was born July 4, 1939, and is a minor. Circuit Judge Noah Weinstein, sitting in juvenile court, will decide following investigation, whether Bevans, who admitted the actual shooting, should be tried as an adult.

Sees Child Fall, Dies.

LOGAN, W. Va., Feb. 2 (AP) —Alonzo Bryant of Verdunville was riding home from work when he saw a child topple from an automobile in front of the one in which he was a passenger. The child was not injured, but Bryant died of a heart attack. He was 51 years old.

TWO NATIONALIST PLANES DOWNED, RED CHINA SAYS

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Peiping radio said last night Red China shot down two Nationalist fighter planes and damaged another over the mainland coastal area on Jan. 29 and 30 respectively.

The broadcast said four F-84 Nationalist fighters flew over Tungshan island, Fukien province, on Jan. 29 and two were shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

The radio also said one of four F-84s which attacked Swatow, Kwangtung province, Jan. 30, was damaged.

WILSON ASSAILS ATTACK ON HIS AID

Assistant Accused of Opposing Pipe Line Because He Drills Wells.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) —Secretary of Defense Wilson calls "absurb" a suggestion by an oil company official that Assistant Secretary Thomas Pike opposed construction of a new oil pipeline to the West Coast because of Pike's interests in an oil well drilling firm.

"Anyone who uses this despicable smear technique" downgrades himself, Wilson told his press conference yesterday.

Pike was sitting beside the Secretary when reporters asked about a letter written to Representative Hebert (Dem.), Louisiana, chairman of a House Armed Services subcommittee, by Lowell M. Glasco, vice president of the West Coast Pipeline Co. of Dallas, Tex.

"So that your committee may properly evaluate Mr. Pike's statements," Glasco wrote, he wanted to call the subcommittee's attention to a "fact" reported in the Oil and Gas Journal of Jan. 2, 1956.

"While serving as Assistant Secretary of Defense," Glasco said, "Mr. Pike owns and operates one of the largest oil well drilling companies on the West Coast and his family owns substantial interests in the Republic Supply Co., also on the West Coast. This company handles oil field equipment and supplies. The major oil companies on the West Coast who have so consistently opposed any pipeline from west Texas to California are among Mr. Pike's and his family's principal customers.

"At the very time Mr. Pike, an Assistant Secretary of Defense, wrote the letter to the committee echoing the views of Standard of California, he was drilling one, and possibly more, wells for the Standard Oil of California."

TALKS MAY LEAD JORDAN TO JOIN BAGHDAD PACT

AMMAN, Jordan, Feb. 2 (UP) —Premier Samir Rifai leaves today for a series of conferences that may determine finally whether Jordan will join the five-nation Baghdad Pact.

Rifai will meet Lebanese President Camille Chamoun and Syrian Premier Said Guzzi, an outspoken foe of the pact, to discuss the future course of British-subsidized Jordan.

Widespread rioting against the pact last month overthrew the pro-Western government of Premier Hazza Majali. Rifai has since vowed that Jordan will never join the defensive alliance as long as he is Premier. The pact now comprises Britain, Pakistan, Turkey, Iran and Iraq.

PRINCE RAINIER'S AUTO 'LIGHTLY TAPS' ANOTHER

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2 (AP) —Prince Rainier III of Monaco said yesterday his automobile "lightly tapped" the car in front while he was driving to see his fiancee, actress Grace Kelly, Tuesday night, and that after exchanging addresses he drove on.

Mrs. Nancy Kauffman of Malibu, a passenger in the other car, said she suffered neck injuries. She said the car of her husband, Albert Kauffman, was struck by the prince's, while the Kauffman car stopped for a boulevard stop sign.

SHOOTS AND KILLS MAN AFTER DISPUTE IN STREET

L. A. James, a laborer, 4056 Finney avenue, was shot and killed last night by Charles Johnson, 4500 block of Garfield avenue, as the climax of a dispute on the street, police reported.

Johnson said he and a companion were walking west in the 4000 block of Evans avenue when James overtook them and inquired where they were going. When Johnson replied that it was none of his business, James became abusive and a fight followed.

Johnson said he drew his .25-caliber automatic pistol and fired one shot which struck James in the head. All involved were Negroes.

Oppenheimer Expects Discovery Of Great Scientific Principle

Of 'Immense Sweep and Simplicity,' It Would Tie Together the Facts on Cosmic Rays and Atoms.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, famous atomic physicist, today forecast discovery of a new scientific principle of "immense sweep and simplicity."

He admits he does not know what it will be, nor when it will come—perhaps within 10 years—but he thinks it most likely will come from a young scientist.

It will be comparable to Albert Einstein's theory of relativity, or the quantum theory of Max Planck.

The new principal will explain and tie together facts learned so far about cosmic rays and particles in the nuclei of atoms.

Address to Physicists.

"We have a maze of findings" about these mysterious particles—"all with an insulting lack of obvious meaning"—and the new principle is needed to bring order among them, Dr. Oppenheimer told the twenty-fifth anniversary meeting of the American Institute of Physics.

Dr. Oppenheimer is director of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton. He headed the Los Alamos laboratory which produced the atomic bomb during wartime, but has not been engaged in any government research since his clearance to Government secrets was withdrawn in 1954 after an investigation that aroused great controversy.

Always, in the past, some "explanation of immense sweep and simplicity" has come along to bring order and open the door to greater understanding of truths and nature, Dr. Oppenheimer said.

He expressed faith and "confidence that we shall have the wit" to discover a principle bringing about order in understanding this subatomic world.

Dr. Oppenheimer also said that physicists must be teachers as well as discoverers.

On Shortage of Physicists.

One reason for a shortage of physicists, he said, may be failure to give early students a feeling of "the beauty and joy" to be found in the subject.

He said many scientists had worked to explain atomic energy and its meanings to the public and public officials.

"The labors of physicists in explanation and in prophecy are not and cannot be ended; and there is no standing joint committee on the world's salvation to which they can abdicate their concern," he said.

"Yet by now the problem of living with these new dangers and the new hopes is where it belongs: With the public and its officers, the governments."

PENNSY LAYOFFS PROTESTED BY 25 AT UNION STATION

Twenty-five members of two locals of the Transport Workers Union, AFL-CIO, carried signs in front of Union Station for an hour late yesterday in protest against layoffs of shop employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

William Tucciarone, international union representative, said the one-hour demonstration has been conducted at every major railroad station in the nation this week. The union contends that periodical layoffs are unnecessary and are in retaliation for a wage increase, totaling 18½ cents an hour with fringe benefits, recently granted Pennsylvania non-operating employes.

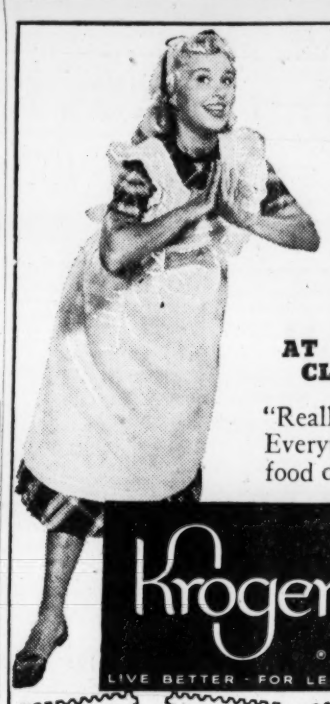

The railroad division of the Transport Workers Union claims to represent 30,000 Pennsylvania Railroad employes, with 500 in St. Louis and East St. Louis. About 50 men were laid off here, Tucciarone said.

356 ENLIST IN NAVY HERE DURING JANUARY DRIVE

A total of 356 men enlisted or re-enlisted in the Navy at the St. Louis recruiting station in the old Federal Building, during January, it was announced today. The total included eight enlistments yesterday, concluding "Navy-Sign-Up Month" in Missouri.

The special month was proclaimed Dec. 16 by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, tht first chief executive of any state to do so. The enlistment campaign here was part of "Operation Sign-Up," being conducted throughout the country through June 30.

Stores Running Short of Sleds, Skates, Other Snow Gear

Galoshes, Tire Chains, Skis, Toboggans Also Scarce—Rock Salt Supply Still Ample.

St. Louisans who let the snow catch them without sleds, overshoes, galoshes, tire chains, snow shovels and the like were finding those items difficult, if not impossible, to obtain today at St. Louis area stores.

Ice skates also were in short supply, here as well as elsewhere in the nation. One sporting goods store had a few pair of skis. There were no toboggans. The supply of rock salt seemed to be holding out.

Some stores still had an abundance of the "flying saucer" type of sled, which is a sort of round metal pan, designed to transport its owner from the top of a snow-covered hill to the bottom without undue friction.

Conventional sleds that had been gathering dust on dealers' shelves for four years are now seeing service on hills in Forest Park and hills everywhere. A wholesale hardware concern has sold 5000 sleds in the last two weeks, two carloads of them. They had been in stock since 1952.

For would-be skaters and ski enthusiasts who lacked the necessary equipment, it was the same sad story, and sporting goods merchants were in a mood to sit down and cry with them.

Most stores around St. Louis had not stocked skis for years. In the case of skaters, the situation was more complicated. Manufacturers had plenty of steel for runners, it was reported, but suppliers of shoes for skates are already making baseball and track shoes for spring.

People will buy raincoats and umbrellas when it is not raining, but they will not buy snowshovels, apparently, until it snows. A department store hardware buyer lamented that he had run out of snow shovels twice. He said he wanted to get to know the weather man better.

ANTARCTIC STORM ENDS, AMERICANS GO BACK TO WORK

The New York Times News Service.

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica, Feb. 2—The men of Operation Deepfreeze went back to work yesterday when the Antarctic weather took a turn for the better.

After a 48-hour layoff caused by the first blizzard of 1956 in the McMurdo sound area, United States Navy men again were concentrating on cargo-moving and base-building jobs. The skies had cleared and the mercury rose from Tuesday's low of 14 degrees above zero to 27 degrees.

As work was resumed several tons of equipment were forwarded from the United States vessel, Greenville Victory, to Hut Point, on Ross island, where 150 men are erecting a community of 34 prefabricated houses. The new outpost will serve both as an air station and as a staging area for an observatory that the United States plans to set up at the South Pole, 800 miles away.

Plans for climbing the Antarctic's only known active volcano, 13,200-foot high Mount Erebus, were officially called off yesterday. A group of up to 10 men, including geologists, geophysicists and physiologists, had been hoping to climb the gently sloping peak.

Liquid Miracle!

No washday powder ever made can give you the concentrated washing power of this new blue instant liquid

Wisk

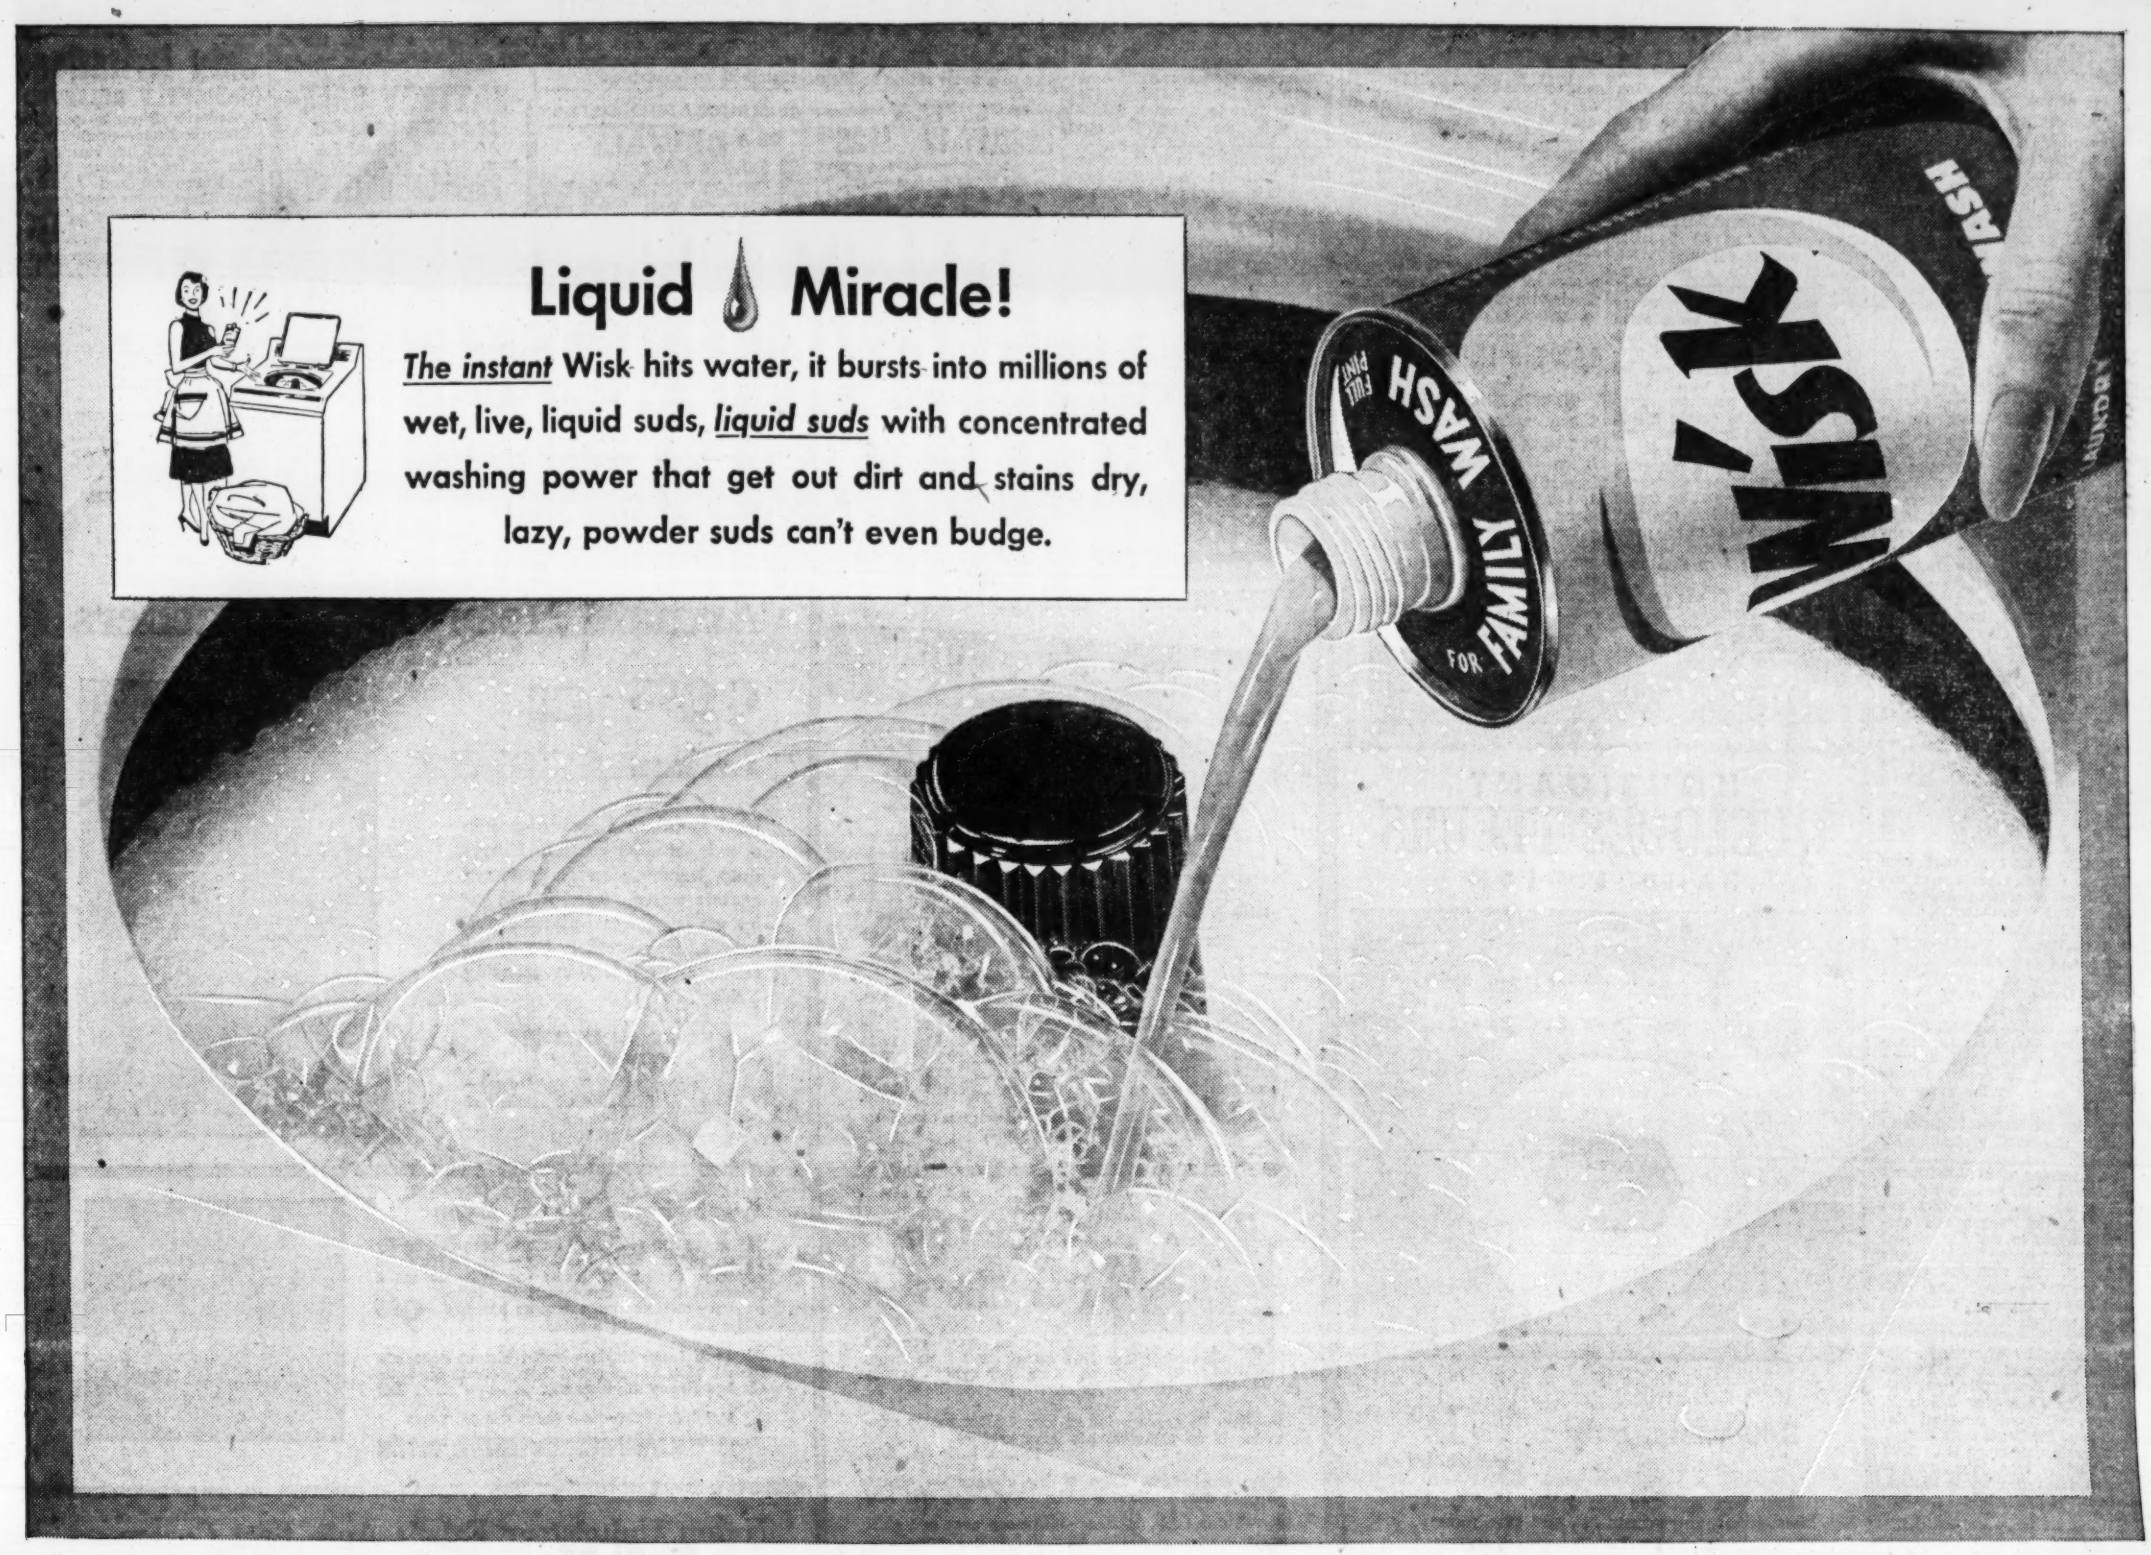

FOR FAMILY WASH

Concentrated washing power: This handy pint can (actual size) does three times as much wash as the same amount of powder.
The concentrated washing power of WISK will get your clothes cleaner than any powder ever made.

Wonderful Wisk is at grocery stores in pint and quart sizes right now.
You can start using it today!

You haven't washed your cleanest wash ...until you've washed with Wisk!

You will pour Wisk into your washer. It will get your family wash so clean and white that you will never use a powder detergent again!

New, blue WISK is the first detergent of its kind ever made. It is a new formula—completely different from anything else you may ever have tried.

In the first place, it is a liquid that you pour into your washer. It goes to work the instant it hits water. There's no waiting for powders to dissolve.

But, more important, new WISK is concentrated. It does three times as much wash as the same amount of powder. And it does a better job, too. For it gives you a concentrated washing power completely unequaled by any powder. Besides, new WISK is safe for hands, safe for fabrics—safe as only a liquid can be.

Never again need you take a napkin out of your washer and find a gravy stain still in it. Never again need you find a lipstick stain left in a hand towel or a grease spot in a suit of coveralls. For concentrated liquid WISK penetrates deep down into the cloth fibers in a way that no powder is able to. Safely, but, oh, so thoroughly, it pulls out stubborn stains, removes hidden dirt, gets everything spotlessly clean.

And wait till you see what WISK does for the collars and cuffs of your husband's shirts! Without bluing or bleach, it gets white things up to three shades whiter with the first wash, no matter what detergent you used in the past. In fact, WISK gets all your family wash so wonderfully clean you can even smell the difference between a WISK wash and one done with another product!

WORLD'S FIRST REALLY ALL-PURPOSE DETERGENT!

You will use WISK for just about every cleaning job in your home! It makes quick work of dishes: Soaks them clean. Concentrated liquid WISK will wipe grease off a stove or kitchen wall. It will make old, discolored linoleum look like new. And if your kitchen cabinets have yellowed with age, it will wash them white and shiny again without scratching or marring the surface in any way.

WISK does the toughest cleaning jobs quicker, easier, and more safely than products designed for these tasks. Now you can put those harsh and dangerous chemicals in the garbage can where they belong!

NO MORE MESSY, SNEEZY POWDERS! NO MORE CLUTTERED SHELVES!

And what a blessing WISK is! It does away with "washday hay fever." The handy can does away with clumsy boxes that get soggy and fall apart. It does away with messy powders that spill. And because WISK does so many jobs so well, it means that you don't have to clutter up your shelves with a box for this, a bottle for that, and all those other packages a woman used to need to keep her home clean.

WISK IS UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED BY LEVER BROTHERS!

We've promised a good deal for WISK in this advertisement, but we mean every word we've said. In fact, we guarantee them. We've had them checked by Good Housekeeping Institute and by Parents' magazine. And if you don't agree that every word is true, that WISK is the best detergent you've ever used—not just as good, but the BEST!—we at Lever Brothers will return the purchase price to you . . . plus postage! So start using WISK today! It's at grocers and supermarkets in pint and quart sizes. (The quart size is the thriftier buy!)

WISK WASHES CLOTHES WHITER THAN ANY POWDER EVER MADE!
Without bluing or bleach, liquid WISK's concentrated whitening power gets shirts, sheets, towels up to three shades whiter with the very first wash—no matter what you used in the past!

WISK RINSES AWAY CLEANER THAN ANY POWDER EVER MADE!
WISK rinses away as only a liquid can! There are no undissolved powders to cling to wash. It leaves no soap scum or film to scorch when ironing or make clothes feel stiff or sticky.

WISK REMOVES MORE STAINS THAN ANY POWDER EVER MADE!
Wet stain with water. Spread with WISK. Put in machine with rest of wash. Concentrated washing power removes grease, gravy, lipstick, gets everything clean. Great for collars and cuffs.

WISK IS SAFER, MUCH SAFER, THAN ANY POWDER EVER MADE!
WISK is safe as only a liquid can be, safe for anything that's safe in water. Ideal for "special wash" like baby's diapers. Kind to your hands, it means the end of washday sneezes!

Citizen Group to Help Pick Freeholder Candidates

'Fourth Step to Progress.'

Describing charter modernization as the "fourth step to progress," Tucker declared the election of qualified, public-spirited persons as freeholders is the most important matter facing St. Louis at this time.

The three completed steps to progress, he said, were the passage of the Plaza improvement bond issue, permanent authority to levy the earnings tax and approval of the $110,000,000 civic improvement bond issue. Unless defects of the present charter are corrected, "much of our progress of recent years will have been to no avail," the Mayor said.

Alderman Joseph P. Roddy, Seventeenth Ward Democrat, who opposed Mayor Tucker's bill but later voted in favor of a freeholder election, told a morning session of the conference that he planned to work for a board of freeholders "that will protect the rights of the people in our district."

Accepting an invitation to speak during a discussion of the legislative branch of the city government, Roddy explained he had voted against the Mayor's bill because he was voting "against a loaded board of freeholders."

"Beat Them at Own Game."

"We are going to put in people who will protect our own interests," he said. "In this way we will beat them at their own game." He did not make clear who was to be beaten.

Members of the panel were Donald Gunn, president of the board of aldermen; Alderman James W. Noonan (Dem.), Third Ward; Alderman William A. Stolar (Rep.), Twenty-eighth Ward, and Henry Schmandt, associate professor of government at St. Louis University in the role of "the inquiring citizen."

At last night's session, Albert E. Schoenbeck, a former member of the city Civil Service Commission, declared the politicians' demands for more political patronage is "the first step in an over-all plan to scuttle the merit system in St. Louis."

St. Louisans adopted the merit system in 1941, he asserted, because they were strongly opposed to the "chaos and economic waste in their municipal government under the old spoils system." In vigorous terms, he warned against any civil service modification which would weaken its effectiveness.

Sharp attacks on civil service were made by Charles P. McBride, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and former City Counselor James E. Crowe. Crowe renewed demands of St. Louis organization Democrats that more than 2000 "unskilled" city jobs be removed from the merit system and restored as political patronage.

City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, had stoutly defended the patronage system at an afternoon session. Dwyer was one of the leaders behind the proposed charter amendment which would have removed several thousand city jobs from civil service.

The expert view of an outsider was presented by Wallace S. Sayre, professor of public administration, Columbia University, who asserted that merit systems have created new governmental problems and require some modification.

Schoenbeck, a member of the citizens committee which sponsored the merit system charter amendment 15 years ago, denounced the old spoils system which, he said, "made public jobs political plums," without regard to service to the people.

"Since 1941 more than 8000 city employes have been brought under the civil service system," he asserted. "Their jobs depend upon their qualifications and their service to the taxpayers, and not on the politicians they know or how many votes they control."

The merit system, he added, has brought them better pay and improved working conditions, and has created "an efficient corps of city workers.."

Replies to Charge.

He answered a charge that no civil service employe is ever fired for inefficiency or other cause by pointing out that the annual report of the Civil Service Commission showed that more than 400 city workers had been discharged last year.

In his attack on the merit system, Crowe declared that civil service has not produced economy and efficiency in city government, as its proponents claimed.

He said the payroll for covered employes has increased 300 per cent since 1941, while the salaries of the 900 patronage employes in state-controlled offices have advanced only 200 per cent in the same period.

"The old political employe," the former city counselor said, "had a party to work for—a mayor to uphold. This was reflected in his attitude toward the city's problems and his service to the public.

'Lack of Initiative.'

"On the other hand, the very security which is the keynote of the civil service system often produces lethargy, lack of initiative and a negative attitude on the part of its employes. The accent is upon rights rather than duties, and the city suffers accordingly."

Republican City Chairman McBride also supported the view that the Mayor should have more appointments, particularly to the top administrative positions, in order to carry out his programs and policies effectively.

Sayre said the real fight to establish merit systems has been won, although there are "inside skirmishes" such as that in St. Louis. He said no one wants to return to the patronage system entirely.

He expressed the opinion that some merit systems had "pushed too high" and included important administrative positions which should be placed under control of the chief executive. This does not involve many jobs numerically, he said, but they are important in the operation of the government.

At the afternoon session, Democratic City Chairman Dwyer said the term "political patronage," used as a catch phrase, "may be misleading."

"My definition of political patronage is 'a capable person appointed to do a job,'" he said. "He may be recommended by a political organization, or a politician, but I must state I have found that a man who does the best job in the precinct will do the same good job in the position to which he is appointed. A politician may help a person to obtain a job, but the individual must perform the duties to keep it.

In response to a question from the floor, Dwyer expressed the opinion that the city would obtain a "much better charter" through amendment of the present one, rather than through submission of a new charter to the voters.

"Probably not 95 per cent of the voters read a new charter when it is submitted," he said, "whereas, if the amendments are submitted singly, they read each one and vote for those they want and against those they do not want."

Comptroller Milton Carpenter also indicated he was opposed to the strong mayor form of municipal government, under which many elective offices such as his would become appointive. Mayor Raymond R. Tucker had said at a previous institute meeting that he favors such a plan.

"Division of authority, as we have had it through the years, has worked well," Carpenter said. "There is no point in changing something just for the sake of change.

"In a democracy it always is a risk to center too much authority in one man. That leads to dictatorship."

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Berlin Air-Lift Proves to the Russians and the World That the U.S. Will Act When Freedom Is Threatened.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.

ELEVENTH ARTICLE, VOLUME II.

RUSSIA was caught off guard by the Marshall Plan. Moscow quickly realized that when the Marshall Plan began to function, the opportunity to Communize western Europe by exploiting her economic miseries would be lost. Failing to prevent Allied co-operation for European recovery, Russia sought to retaliate by two moves. The first move was to set up a counterpart of a Marshall Plan under Russian auspices for her satellites. This was designed to cut off whatever flow of trade and commerce had been resumed between eastern and western Europe.

The second and even more provocative move was to risk a military incident in Berlin designed to test our firmness and our patience. The British and French and American forces were in close quarters with the Russians in Berlin. Each occupied separate zones in the former capital which was surrounded entirely by German territory held by the Russians, and all movement of American, British and French personnel and supplies to our areas in Berlin was through a narrow corridor controlled by the Russians. Under the provisions of the agreement between Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, the military government to rule Germany was to be jointly directed from Berlin.

For the first year after the war the British and Americans made every effort to make a joint control succeed. The Russians, however, with a good assist from the French, defeated these efforts. The French were fearful of Germany. Of course, three German invasions in seventy years had given them ample grounds to fear the Germans. But their desire to see Germany dismembered led them to obstruct a number of joint control measures at a time when such cooperation might still have been possible.

'Conquered Territory' Policy of Russians.

The Russians, on their part, seemed determined to treat their zone of Germany virtually as if it were Soviet conquered territory. They sealed off all contacts between their part of Germany and the areas occupied by us, the British and the French, and this left little choice to the officials of the three governments in the western part of Germany.

Of the many reports I received on conditions in Germany, one of the summaries was give me by W. Averell Harriman, who was Secretary of Commerce at the time. Late in the summer of 1947, after a visit to Germany, Harriman said, "We are putting in too little too late. As a result, we have lost a considerable part of the expenditures made so far. The German economy has been living on its reserves, both human and material, and it is still on the decline. We will have to increase our current expenditures in order to reduce the total cost over the years. We cannot attain our basic objectives unless we are ready to move rapidly to reconstruct German life from its present pitiful and chaotic condition. . . . We cannot revive a self-supporting western European economy without a healthy Germany playing its part as a producing and consuming unit."

This was the lowest point in German postwar conditions. Increased appropriations soon became available, West German needs were included in Marshall Plan estimates, and the bi-zonal organization helped to restore some measure of industrial activity.

The Russians, meanwhile, became less and less tractable, and, on March 20, 1948, their representative finally walked out of the Allied Control Council. For most of Germany, this act merely formalized what had been an obvious fact for some time, namely, that the four-power control machinery had become unworkable. For the city of Berlin, however, this was the curtain-raiser for a major crisis.

Russian Demand for Inspection.

On March 30th the Deputy Military Governor of the Soviet Union, General Dratvin, notified our Military Government in Berlin that in two days, beginning April 1st, the Russians would check all U. S. personnel passing through their zone for identification and would inspect all freight shipments and all except personal baggage.

Our military government authorities rejected these conditions. They pointed out that we had been assured free access to Berlin at the time our troops withdrew from Saxony and Thuringia into their own zones. The Russians claimed that no such agreement had been made. They declared that they had the full right to control all traffic in their zone. They began to stop our trains at the zonal border and to turn them back when the train commanders, under orders, refused to submit to inspection. Between April 1st and July 1st Russian orders sealed off all highway, rail and river traffic into and out of Berlin. "Technical difficulties" were given as the reason by the Russians.

The nature of these "difficulties" soon became apparent. On June 18th the British, French and Americans announced that the three western zones would immediately set up a new type of currency. The Russians had plates of the currency in use at the beginning of the occupation and had been able to flood the western zone with money printed in the east zone, thus deliberately adding to the inflation which threatened to block Germany's effort at recovery. In due course, we changed the plates, but Russia continued to manipulate the east mark. Our currency reform was designed to give Germany a sound mark to use in the west. And, of course, the good western currency was preferred by all Germans. The Russians opposed our currency reform because it exposed the basic unsoundness of their own currency. And it became one of the major points of contention during the discussions on the Berlin blockade. The importance the Russians attached to our move was soon obvious: They offered to reopen the approaches to the city of Berlin if the western powers would call off the currency change-over.

'Russians Trying to Get Us Out of Berlin.'

What the Russians were trying to do was to get us out of Berlin. At first they took the position that we never had a legal right to be in Berlin. Later they said we had had the right but that we had forfeited it.

The entire set-up of the four powers in Berlin, involving our withdrawal from areas intended for Russian occupation, had been negotiated as a military matter by the generals in the field. General Lucius Clay later blamed himself for not having insisted on a confirmation of the agreement in writing. It is my opinion that it would have made very little difference to the Russians whether or not there was an agreement in writing. What was at stake in Berlin was not a contest over legal rights, although our position was entirely sound in international law, but a struggle over Germany and, in a larger sense, over Europe.

I brought up the situation at the Cabinet meeting of June 25th. Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall maintained constant touch with General Clay in Germany and reported that a serious situation was developing. I asked Royall to inquire from General Clay whether the situation was serious enough to consider the removal of the families of our personnel in Berlin. Clay thought it unwise to do so for the psychological effect the move might have. Clay was forced to make emergency arrangements to have essential supplies flown into the city, since Berlin, by now, was effectively blockaded by the Russians both by land and by water.

Mr. Truman Orders the Air-Lift.

On June 26th, the day after I discussed the Berlin crisis with the Cabinet, I directed that this improvised "air lift" be put on a full-scale organized basis and that every plane available to our European command be impressed into service. In this way we hoped that we might be able to feed Berlin until the diplomatic deadlock could be broken.

Negotiations had been transferred to Moscow where, on July 6th, the representatives of the three western powers, with our ambassador, W. Bedell Smith, acting as spokesman, put their case before the Russians. The Soviet reply, given on July 14th, dropped all pretenses of "technical difficulties" and made it abundantly clear that the blockading of Berlin by the Russians was a major political and propaganda move. The Soviets refused, at this time, to talk about Berlin except as part of discussions covering the entire subject of Germany. They rejected our condition that the blockade be lifted before any talks could start.

I issued instructions to have General Clay and his State Department adviser, Robert Murphy, called to Washington to make a report.

General Clay came to the White House on July 22, 1948, to attend the meeting that day of the National Security Council. Here, in substance, is what he said: The abandonment of Berlin would have a disastrous effect upon our plans for Western Germany. It would also slow down European recovery, the success of which depends upon more production, particularly from Western Germany. The Germans in general were more concerned than the allies about the possibility of our leaving Berlin. We should be prepared to go to any lengths to find a peaceful solution to the situation, but we had to remain in Berlin.

He reported that the air lift had been averaging about 2,400 to 2,500 tons per day, which was more than enough to handle food requirements but was inadequate to include the necessary amounts of coal. The minimum required to sustain Berlin without extreme hardship was esitmated to be 4,500 tons per day. For the summer 3,500 tons per day might suffice, but additional tonnage would be required during the winter.

At the moment, the air lift operation involved fifty-two C-54's and eighty C-47's. Two round trips were made each day involving more than 250 landings. Seventy-five additional C-47 planes would enable us to bring in 3,500 tons daily.

Additional Planes? Armed Convoys?

I asked the Secretary of the Air Force what problems would be involved in making these additional planes available, and was told by General Vandenberg that if we put more planes on the Berlin air lift, the Military Air Transport Service would become disrupted. We would also find that we would need at least one more major airfield inside Berlin to handle the traffic and at least one major maintenance depot at the other end.

In answer to a question by Secretary Marshall, General Vandenberg said that the maximum air lift would involve using planes which are intended for emergency use, many of which might be destroyed in case of hostilities. This would adversely affect our capabilities to wage strategic warfare. If the majority of our planes were caught and destroyed, this would delay our ability to supply our forces and hold outlying bases. General Vandenberg also pointed out that the air lanes to Berlin belonged to the Russians as well as us and that if we increased our traffic to the point where they could claim that they were forced out, international incidents might result.

I then asked General Clay what risks would be involved if we tried to supply Berlin by means of armed convoys. The general said he thought the initial reaction of the Russians would be to set up road blocks. Our engineers would be able to clear such obstacles, provided there was no Russian interference, but the next step the Russians would take, General Clay thought, would be to meet the convoys with armed force.

Robert Lovett, who was in attendance with Secretary Marshall, asked Clay if he thought that the Russians might try to block our airplanes with fighter patrols or by other methods. General Clay said he felt that the Russians would not attack our planes unless they had made the decision to go to war.

I asked General Clay if there were any indications known to him that the Russians would go to war. He said he did not think so.

I stated it as my judgment that if we moved out of Berlin, we would be losing everything we were fighting for. The main question was: How could we remain in Berlin without risking all-out war?

General Vandenberg said again that he felt the concentration of aircraft necessary to provide Berlin with all its supplies by air would mean reducing our air strength elsewhere, both in planes and in personnel. An emergency would find us more exposed than we might be able to afford.

I did not agree with the Air Force Chief of Staff. I asked him if he would prefer to have us attempt to supply Berlin by

PEIPING REPEATS OFFER TO FORGIVE THE NATIONALISTS

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Peiping radio repeated today the offer made recently by Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai to forgive Chinese Nationalists who surrender.

This time it was made by Li Chi-shen, identified as "chairman of the Revolutionary Committee of the Kuomintang." Li also is a vice chairman of the Peiping government. He is a Kwangsi general who broke many years ago with Chiang Kai-shek and joined the Reds in 1949.

A broadcast heard here quoted Li:

"Those who sever their relation with United States imperialism will be forgiven no matter who they are and however serious the crimes they have committed in the past."

The broadcast quoted similar terms from Hang Wong-Ju, described as a Nationalist navy lieutenant who defected last December.

Seeks Ecuador's Presidency.

QUITO, Ecuador, Feb. 2 (AP)—Ecuador's ambassador to Washington, Jose R. Chiriboga, has resigned to run as an independent candidate for president. Chiriboga arrived two weeks ago to look over the situation. The elections are in June.

'Pocketbook Interest' in Gas Bill Vote

Rule 12 Should Bar Senators Who Have Stake in Legislation.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1956)

WASHINGTON.

ONE of the things to watch in the voting on the Fulbright-Harris natural gas bill will be whether certain Senators follow Senate Rule 12. This rule disqualifies any Senator with a pocketbook interest in any legislation. It does not force a Senator to refrain from voting but, according to the Senate Parliamentarian, it has been the practice to abide strictly by the rule.

Thus Senator Warren Austin (Rep.), Vermont, disqualified himself from voting on a talc bill because he had investments in talc.

When it comes to gas-oil matters, however, there have been flagrant abuses of Rule 12. Senators who have piously investigated conflicts of interest in the executive branch of government and demanded the resignation of Harold Talbott as Air Force Secretary because he had a business interest which conflicted with his job in the Government, have themselves done exactly what Talbott did.

Example of Kerr.

One of these is Senator Robert Kerr, Bible-pounding solon from Oklahoma, who owns $100,000,000 in proved gas-oil reserves, yet maneuvered the first natural gas bill through Congress only to have it vetoed by President Truman.

Kerr and his partner in Kerr-McGee Oil Industries officially reported a 1949 gross income of $14,930,150, with a net income of $1,218,628. In 1948, their gross income was $12,538,058, on which was paid a tax of only $25,053—due to oil-gas depletion benefits given the oil-gas companies under the federal tax laws. Kerrs company has had at least four contracts to sell natural gas in interstate commerce, and thus will immediately benefit from the law now being voted on in Congress. One is with Texas Gas Transmission Co., one with Southern Natural Gas, one with Trunkline Gas Supply and one with El Paso Natural Gas.

These facts are all on file with the Federal Power Commission.

Significantly, Senator Kerr and his company are one of the biggest suppliers of natural gas to Phillips Petroleum. He was also the recipient of quite a windfall from Phillips when that company assigned 100 square miles of proved gas reserves to Kerr's Tascose Gas Co. in December 1949 for drilling. The date could have been significant. At that time the Senator was readying the Kerr natural gas bill for passage by the Senate.

Israeli Request for Arms Splits American Policy Makers

Only $50,000,000 Sought but U.S. Is Concerned Over Arab Reaction—Tel Aviv Warns of Activists.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

A SHORT LOOK at the present status of Israel's request for American arms all too clearly reveals the knottiness of the Middle Eastern situation.

The Israelis, in particular, have been pressing for the latest model F-86 fighters, to guard against the MIG-15s and IL-28s which the Egyptians are now incorporating in their air force.

The quantity of F-86s demanded by the Israelis is downright trivial—no more than a few dozen. Their entire arms buying program amounts to only $50,000,000. Yet no request of this character has ever produced such division of council within the American Government.

In the background of the Israeli request, in the first place, there is a clearly implied threat. Ever since the Egyptians made their arms deal with the Reds, important Israeli leaders, including Prime Minister Ben Gurion, have been talking about launching a preventive war against Egypt.

Activists Opposed.

The Israeli Foreign Minister, Moshe Sharett, and the Israeli Ambassador to Washington, Abba Eban, have thus far opposed the activists, as Ben Gurion and his sympathizers are called. Sharett and Eban had no advance warning of the Israeli raid into Syria, for which Israel has now been censured by the United Nations. After the raid, there was some reaction against the activists within the Israeli Government, and Sharett's position was strengthened.

But both Sharett and Eban are now warning that, unless Israel's fears of Egypt can be lulled by an increase in Israel's defensive strength, the activists will soon gain the upper hand again in Jerusalem. "Sell us arms," they say in effect, "and we can guarantee there will be no war." The alternative, that war will be likely if arms are refused, is only too clearly implied.

On Jan. 25, Ambassador Eban made an urgent attempt to push through the arms deal before the arrival of Prime Minister Eden. He first saw Assistant Secretary of State George Allen, who gave him a dusty answer. This Eban refused to accept, and insisted on seeing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Dulles received him, but also gave him a dusty answer.

Thus an Israeli preventive war is a rather early possibility, if the activists are not bluffing. There are even indications of how the conflict may be precipitated, by the Israelis beginning work on a canal to divert Jordan river water at Jisr Banat Yaqub, above Lake Tiberias. The attempt to divert the water which the Syrians also claim would presumably draw Syrian fire. The fire would be returned. And a general explosion between Israel, Syria and Syria's ally, Egypt, would then ensue.

Another Dusty Reply.

Why, then, did Dulles give Eban a dusty answer? The explanation is simple. The American intelligence and all the American embassies in the Arab states are unanimous that American arms sales to Israel will automatically push the Arab states into something very like alliance with the Kremlin. This view is strongly indorsed by the British. One of Prime Minister Eden's chief objectives in Washington has been to reinforce the United States Government's reluctance to sell arms to Israel.

Allen has been urging Eban to persuade the Israeli government to offer some territorial concessions in order to get a peace settlement with Egypt: The Israelis say they will fight rather than cede the southern Negeb. The British want us to join them in trying to force Israel to make a settlement on the same terms that the Israelis say they will fight to prevent. So the cat's cradle of risks continues to grow more tangled by the day.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Delinquency in the County

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Recently I have been astonished by the reports of increasing juvenile delinquency in various St. Louis county schools.

I refer to the formation of gangs, the beating of a youngster for refusing to join the gang, the threatening of teachers, the criminal attack on a young girl.

What's happening to the theory that bad environment is the major factor in juvenile delinquency? Here we have children from an excellent evironment and excellent homes committing crimes that one might expect to hear about in the worst slum areas.

Obviously there are some other very important factors, for example: obscene literature, which can be bought at any drug store, and the excessive amount of murder programs on television and radio.

This problem, I believe, can be eliminated in only one way—by programs developed by the student bodies and the parent-teacher groups, to help youngsters who have strayed off the straight and narrow.

CHARLES SEIGEL.
University City.

Working Vacation

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is in reply to Mrs. Roy West of Jefferson City. I'm a stanch Democrat but I believe in being fair. It is well known that President Eisenhower takes his work right along with him when going on a so-called "vacation." It is well to check the facts before airing a person's views. A.G.C.
Webster Groves.

Where Criticism Helps

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Petunias by nature are thirsty little flowers and I have watched with approval the many amateur gardeners bring relief to the petunia in distress in your column.

It all points to why a battlefield hero in the White House confuses our political system. If he is a great and honorable man who led our service men to great and honorable deeds, who among the citizenry really wants to point up his faults as a President?

No one paled at slamming Harry Truman. So Harry had to grow sharper in wits or fail under fire. Harry didn't fail. The fact is that President Eisenhower needed honest, constructive criticism to sharpen his wits, too.

Danville, Ill.

First Step to Food Stamps

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The interview with Congresswoman Leonor Sullivan by Virginia Irwin was interesting and timely. Such a food stamp plan as proposed by Mrs. Sullivan has been the hope of many citizens. Her bill to get some of the seven billion dollars' worth of surplus food to needy Americans is H.R. 5105. It is presently in the House Agriculture Committee and must be reported out of that committee before the House can act. GERTRUDE FAUST.

Peron Against Sin

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Juan Peron was given valuable space in your paper to expound on the subject of divorce and sin. The story by Joseph Newman revealed that the erstwhile Argentine dictator who legalized prostitution and specialized in teen-age mistresses is against sin and approves divorce.

Peron would legalize divorce in Argentina in order to legitimatize children of "300,000 couples who are living in sin because they cannot get a divorce."

Two questions occur from Peron's assertion. First, how many couples in a nation of many million couples would be "living in sin" even if divorce were permissible? Second, how many broken homes that do not now exist would result if divorce should be legalized in Argentina?

The illegitimate children are a problem. So are the infinitely greater number of children who would lose their homes and parents in the divorce mills. American juvenile homes and jails are full of such children. GLEN GOELLNER.
St. Charles.

As to the 'Realtors'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A grimy window store room, a few sticks of broken down furniture, and another "realtor" is hatched.

The St. Louis Real Estate Board and the State Real Estate Commission have an urgent duty to perform. Restore the real estate business to a professional status. Or must we wait for legislation or perhaps a depression to do the job? DISGUSTED.

Bouquet for the Critics

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The citation recently awarded by the College Art Association to Howard Derrickson of the Post-Dispatch staff for his art criticism has inspired me to express, in written form, my admiration not only for Mr. Derrickson's writing but also for the high caliber of all the critiques appearing in the Post-Dispatch.

Writers who state their opinions are conditioned to brickbats; therefore, please gently approach Messrs. Sherman, Standish, Derrickson and Menees, and tender them my personally assembled bouquet of appreciation. ELOISE MIKKELSEN.

Out of the Eden Talks

If any new policies were agreed on at the Eden-Eisenhower consultations, they are not revealed in the declaration and statement issued at the close of the three-day talks.

These expressions reaffirm present policies, rather than chart new ones. They suggest that the principal value of the talks lay in the free exchange of ideas between leaders of the two governments. That, of course, is a thoroughly sufficient justification for the conference. The members of the Western coalition must always know each other's minds.

Of the diplomatic problems immediately facing that coalition the most pressing concern the Middle East and the Far East. As to the Israel-Arab crisis, Prime Minister Eden is reported to have urged placing United Nations troops on the frontiers, and asked for direct American membership in the Baghdad pact. If he sought these ends, he did not get them.

But the two governments do join in a merited rebuke to the Soviet Union for shipping arms to the Arabs, they do solemnly call upon the disputing parties to reach a settlement, and they do announce their discussion of action under the 1950 pact which bound Britain, France and the United States to underwrite the truce. This should be enough to convince Israel, the Arabs and the Russians alike that despite differences Britain and America are resolved to pursue a common policy of peace and conciliation in the Middle East.

The differences are more explicitly acknowledged in the two powers' comment on the Far East. But here, too, Communist China is left in no doubt on the main point—which is that Britain and America jointly are determined "to deter and prevent aggressive expansion by force or subversion, and to assist the free nations of the area in their self-defense and in maintaining domestic stability and welfare."

Messrs. Eden and Eisenhower disagree on the best means to achieve these purposes, but not on the purposes themselves. Peiping would be well advised to note the difference—and to avoid, therefore, any attempt to settle such problems as that of Formosa by "aggressive expansion."

In addition to their discussion of immediate diplomatic problems, the two leaders issued a joint declaration on long-range questions of special interest to the formerly colonial peoples of Asia. This is, in effect, a credo for the two powers as they face the challenge posed by Moscow's effort to woo Asia by political and economic blandishments.

It pledges economic and technical aid to underdeveloped countries, help in maintaining their political independence, and co-operation in their collective defense. It points to the West's record of liberating formerly colonial lands as contrasted with the Communist record of imposing totalitarian rule upon satellites. And, most essentially, it rejects any thought of resolving the East-West cleavage by force, promises that the West will "never initiate violence," and offers continuous efforts to negotiate peaceful settlements.

To be fully effective the joint declaration must be implemented by deeds and by those day-to-day attitudes which will convince India and other new nations that their truest friends will be found in the West. But the declaration is a good start. It invites attention to performance rather than empty promise, and thus accepts the Soviet challenge to a kind of competition which the West indubitably possesses the resources to win.

To Children, With Love

A. A. Milne was a delightful combination of imagination, whimsicality, wit and poetry, with a generous complement of good old-fashioned tenderness thrown in. For 32 years his poems and stories about his son Christopher Robin have been making their engaging way into the hearts of children and parents. They are simple enough to be understood by the youngest, fine enough to charm the most mature.

Virtually every one we ever heard of is an avid partisan of "When We Were Young" and "Now We Are Six," which are books of poems, and "Winnie-the-Pooh" and "The House at Pooh Corner," which are books of stories. We say "virtually" because Dorothy Parker, doing literary criticism for The New Yorker under the nom de plume of Constant Reader, once reviewed a Milne book with the words, "Tonstant Weader fwowed up."

The best of Milne's many qualities, in our opinion, was a restraint of taste which made that verdict of Mrs. Parker's as wrong as it was clever. Whimsicality is easily overdone, and then it becomes both painful and revolting—particularly, we believe, to children. Milne's whimsicality was always within the bounds of effectiveness and taste because it was genuine.

His imagination, like Lewis Carroll's, was rooted in love for children. His poems tutored many a childish ear in the beauty of the inflections of English speech. Robert Shaw, who has otherwise devoted himself to conducting music, did an inspired reading several years ago of "The House at Pooh Corner" on records. These and other recordings of Milne's stories and poems are unavailable and a memorial album reaffirming their timeless timeliness would be in gracious order.

4c for Letters?

President Eisenhower's request for an increase in postal rates had been amply foreshadowed, for his balanced budget was predicated upon it. Congress turned down a similar appeal last year and the proposal is reported to face rough sledding again. The unpopular recommendation can best be argued to Congress if the Post Office Department can show that its dollar is already being made to go as far as it can and that an increase is inescapable.

The first Hoover Commission said the very first thing any Administration would need to do in the interest of economy in the Post Office Department was to take it out of politics. Yet one of the very first acts of the Eisenhower Administration was to open 1700 postmaster jobs to patronage appointments by setting aside the results of competitive examinations.

Since then there has been continual sniping against Democratic-appointed postmasters looking to their resignation or dismissal for violation of some regulation in the department's 928-page book of regulations.

The mountainous paper work and other cumbersome and obsolete methods of the department are expensive in the extreme. The first Hoover Commission's criticism in this regard was repeated by the General Accounting Office, "the watchdog of the Treasury," after the Eisenhower Administration took over.

Most of the proposed increase would be paid by the users of first-class letter mail in an increase from 3 to 4 cents an ounce. The recommendation that postal rates for newspapers and magazines should be increased about 15 per cent in each of two successive years would affect principally 10 top magazine publishers who account for three fourths of the total volume of second-class mail, Senator Douglas of Illinois estimated in last year's debate. "The big newspapers do not get much of this subsidy," he said. If there is any increase in any mail rates, the second-class mail should certainly bear its share. Can the department prove to the public's satisfaction that it has already done all it can do for itself? Unless it can, the sledding of the President's rate proposals in Congress may be rough indeed.

Quoddy Becomes Respectable

It may be true, as the old saying has it, that the leopard cannot change his spots, but a similar statement about the elephant would be all wrong. Consider a bill to authorize a federal appropriation that President Eisenhower signed Wednesday.

Enactment of this bill makes it possible for Congress to appropriate $3,000,000 for exploratory work on the tidal waterpower project in Passamaquoddy Bay between Maine and New Brunswick, Canada. The authorization bill had to be passed before Congress could take up Mr. Eisenhower's recommendation in his 1956 budget message for funds to get the survey under way this summer.

Pass Maquoddy!

What memories the very name brings back across the years! Memories of those harebrained New Deal days when nothing was too fantastic for that radical fellow in the White House. Why, he even was crackpot enough to think that you could harness the tides and use their power to generate electricity!

Oh, the waters did come racing in through the Bay of Fundy and of course it was a sight to see them as they rushed through the rocks. But anybody with any sense at all knew that the tides were no good for waterpower. Yet here was That Man—they had a hard time ever calling him President—not only going in for Socialism, but complete moonshine to boot.

When the PWA was launched in the depression '30s, what did he do? Why, he even allotted funds to start work on Passamaquoddy as a recovery project! Houses for workmen were built on the Maine side and the fantastic place became known as "Quoddy" village. But before it had gone too far, wiser hands took over. Members of Congress whose heads were on their shoulders refused to spend any more of the taxpayer's hard-earned dollars on something so crazy.

And so Quoddy was buried back there in the mid-'30s, horrible example of F.D.R.'s New Deal at its irresponsible worst.

Yet 20 years later, here is Quoddy revived from its watery grave. G.O.P. Senators Smith and Payne of Maine want the appropriation for determination of the "economic feasibility." So does their sound and solid Republican President. So does his business man's Budget Bureau. And thus the bill passes and thus it is signed. And now it is law.

Quoddy! Quoddy! Passamaquoddy! Three cheers and an elephant!

Civic Yeast

Over the last quarter century, the St. Louis League of Women Voters has performed many notable public services. Long ago the politicians and the community stopped thinking of the League's members as a small if determined band of do-gooders, well-meaning perhaps but impractical and without influence.

We have commended these alert citizens in the past for their constructive achievements and now commendation is in order again. The current three-day institute on St. Louis's municipal government is well-planned and splendidly timed.

With informed leaders such as Murray Seasongood of Cincinnati and Wallace S. Sayre of New York on its program the results can only be beneficial. The community has reason to be grateful again to the League of Women Voters.

Two Principles for the Schools

St. Louisans will certainly support the strong opposition developing among School Board members to the excursion into one-man rule by one of their colleagues, Charles J. Dyer. Mr. Dyer on his own cut in a group of Democratic politicians for a piece of the system's insurance business by simply ordering a Board employe to see that they were taken care of. They were.

Members who have spoken up against the principle of one-man rule include Oscar A. Ehrhardt, H. Lee Bruns, Daniel L. Schlafly, Charles H. Christel, Louis A. Antoine and President James F. Morrell. They are to be applauded. They are defending a principle essential to the proper operation of the system.

If chaos is not to replace order in school administration in St. Louis, the 12-member Board must make policy and give orders to its employes on the basis of majority decision. For one member to issue edicts to employes is intolerable and certainly not in harmony with the state school statutes.

How can meddling of this type be prevented? One way would be for the Board to instruct its principal operating executives to act only under instructions from a majority of the Board; or, in emergencies, under orders from the Board President. This is not a difficult problem.

At the same time the Board ought not to overlook the question of the insurance brokerage fees. They are the source of all the trouble. If the law says they must be paid, then the Board must pay them. But there is nothing in the law that says deserving politicians should enjoy this gravy.

Perhaps the Board ought to adopt a rule that such fees will be paid to no elected public or party official. This may work a hardship on the officials, but if they want the commissions they can always resign and compete for the business on the same terms as the rest of the insurance fraternity.

Cold Nights for GIs in Korea

The Army said last fall that it expected to have the 35,000 troops in the field in Korea out of tents by the time severe winter started in mid-December. Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, inspecting on Dec. 8, was shocked at the lack of progress. He said: "I'm just out of patience. I'm going to find out what the trouble is. Something is going to budge. We've got to have housing for these fellows." Now the Army says that the approximately 26,000 still in tents are going to get prefabricated housing before winter's end. Probably all those GIs shivering in tents are wondering if Secretary Brucker found out what the trouble is and, if he did, when something is really going to budge.

SEAT OF THE MIGHTY

The Mirror of Public Opinion

That is how Chicago paper views Republicans should Eisenhower leave leadership; Landon seen as last authentic presidential candidate; after Willkie and Dewey, only Taft carried flag; party may need to ask: Is there a psychiatrist in the house?

An Editorial in the Chicago Tribune

Senator Knowland of California, explaining his entry into the presidential primaries in Illinois and Alaska, says that he does not believe that the Republican party need be made over into the image of Mr. Eisenhower.

The Senator observes that there was a Republican party before Mr. Eisenhower became President, and there will be one after he has ceased to be President.

Historically, the Republican party has had an existence of a century. It once was a majority party with a clearly defined body of principle.

Robert A. Taft

But in the last 23 years the electorate does not seem to have been capable of sustaining an interest in principles and political ideas. It buys emotional jags at elections. It does not seem to be concerned about hangovers.

Mr. Roosevelt was popularly accepted as a charmer with a beautiful radio delivery. He could kick the ecohomy all over the lot, set the classes upon one another, run the White House like a bucket shop for family profit, maneuver the nation into disastrous and worse than futile war, snowball spending and debt on Keynesian principles, condition the country to arrogance in high office and to a subbasement level of public morals, and still get elected four times.

Mr. Landon, in 1936, was the last Republican candidate to talk remotely like a Republican. He got lost somewhere along the line.

In 1940 the party adopted the tactic of trying to oppose Roosevelt with a medicine man of its own. Mr. Willkie, onetime Socialist, onetime Democrat, was the curious hybrid fetched forward. He was as phony as Roosevelt, but not as effective.

We then had the two Dewey interludes, in which the Republican party abandoned its pretense to possessing a distinctive identity and espoused the New Deal. Dewey was unable to persuade the electorate in sufficient numbers that he could manage the New Deal better than those who invented it. Even Truman managed to lick him.

Through these years the Republicans had one heavyweight in the person of Senator Taft. He was the last of the breed.

Inasmuch as the party itself had no surviving body of doctrine, Republicanism was wherever Taft took his own position. His integrity and intellectual ascendancy in an age of pygmies won him a vast and almost reverent following.

He was recognized as a danger by the people who manipulated the party and were bent on reducing it to a pale reflection of the New Deal.

The trustees of Columbia University, archetypes of the new class of party wire pullers, installed Mr. Eisenhower as president of this venerable seat of learning as part of the buildup for the presidency. Eisenhower was used to head off Taft, thus making Republican New Dealism secure and insuring that domestic concerns would continue to remain appendages to an aleatory expedition in the management of the world.

Mr. Eisenhower was possessed of an authentic personal charm and radiant smile which Mr. Willkie and Mr. Dewey had conspicuously lacked. Political commentators soberly suggested that Americans were able to find in him a "father figure," as if the citizenry now was so lacking in self-reliance as to depend on a paternal guidance in all its affairs.

The Republican party these days apparently is whatever Mr. Eisenhower thinks, or is counseled, that it is. In effect, the voting public has the choice between two forms of the New Deal, as Vice President Nixon explicitly stated in his Chicago speech.

"The choice," said he, "is not between the Eisenhower program and something more conservative, but between the Eisenhower program and something far more radical."

If you don't like it, you are expected to lump it. The only mystery is what the Republican party becomes should Mr. Eisenhower depart the scene. It will need the services of a psychiatrist to discover its own identity.

Shed a Tear for the Toolach Wallaby

From The Denver Post

Tensely preoccupied as we nature-lovers in America have been with the hazardous plight of the whooping crane, we may have overlooked the vanishing lots of animal species the world over.

A British columnist, stirred by reports that a starving buzzard had attacked an English baby in its pram, and that two farmhands in Kent had been put to flight by a pack of 20 hungry stoats, began wondering about the effect of the disappearance of the English rabbit on the rest of the animal world.

He went off the beam, however, when he queried Britain's Fauna Preservation Society on animals that had become extinct or were becoming extinct.

Besides such famed examples as the Dodo, Stelier's Sea Cow and the Great Auk, he learned that the following have also been recently wiped out:

The Bluebuck, the Antarctic Wolf, the Guagga, the Leadbeater's Possum, the Toolach Wallaby, the Schombergk's Deer and the Northern Hartebeest. The Hairy-eared Mouse Lemur seems to be extinct, but the society is not quite sure. Anyone seen one lately?

On the brink of extinction, like the whooping crane, are the Javan Sumatran, and even the Great Indian Rhinoceros (only 440 are left.) There are also only 200 copies of the Arabian Oryx, a beautiful white desert antelope.

Hunters in autos have likewise nearly exterminated the Sahara's big antelope, the Addax, and another African antelope, the Nyala. The Lemurs of Madagascar are on the way out because their forests are being cut down by men.

The preservation society thinks the Koala and the Duck-billed Platypus have been saved from extinction in the nick of time, but it is awfully worried about the Tasmanian Tiger and the Monk Seals of the Mediterranean and Hawaii. Hawaiian Monk Seals haven't been heard from in a long time, and the Mediterranean type is in retreat off the coast of Turkey.

All this is very sad, and we suppose some day the Oryx, Addax, Nyala and Lemur will only survive as words for scrabble. We would much rather say goodbye to such beasts as the Porcupine, the Pack Rat and the Common House Mouse.

But we still wonder, as did the Limey columnist, at the effect on the other animals now that the English rabbit has nearly disappeared.

In fact, there might be a lesson for us in that, if we would only find out. What is going to be the effect on other animals when the big jack rabbit hunts annually held hereabout succeed in deporting Jack to oblivion?

The little girl down south who asked someone to send her a couple of pairs of them is worried about them, too. She sounds like a sort of fauna preservation society, junior grade, herself, and more power to her.

U.S.S.R.'s Biggest Headache?

THE HOUSING PROBLEM IN THE SOVIET UNION, by Timothy Sosnovy. (Research Program on the U.S.S.R., N.Y., 318 pgs., $4.75.)

Russian leaders have publicly acknowledged visitors' criticisms of Soviet housing, which may be the country's biggest problem next to agriculture. A comprehensive study in this field has been made by Dr. Sosnovy, a 57-year-old Ukrainian refugee and former economics professor at Kharkov.

Urban housing in Russia before World War I was much worse than in Western Europe, with most families living in one room or part of a room. By 1940, the author says, living space had fallen from seven to four square meters per person (nine is the minimum health standard). Although by 1950 Russia may have returned to pre-World War II levels, the study indicates obsolescence is so widespread a gigantic "Progress or Decay" program is needed just to keep even.

* * *

The Soviet housing problem results from wartime destruction, a quadrupling of the urban population and emphasis in the 1930s on industry. It is calculated that two years of industrial development were gained by neglecting even to maintain housing, but this is a debt that now has to be repaid.

Russia propagandizes about its low rents, but housing is subsidized from other sectors of the economy. For 1950, Dr. Sosnovy estimates, Soviet and American workers both spent 27 minutes of labor monthly for a square meter of living space. In America, real wages were five times as high; there were only .76 persons per room to 4.02 in Russia.

These statistics do not reveal the poor quality of Russian homes, nor the lack of plumbing and utilities. It is difficult to determine Soviet progress since 1950, which may be considerable.

Recent visitors to Russia have been impressed by current building efforts and the show places, such as Moscow and Stalingrad, but have been restricted in viewing ordinary living quarters. One wonders when the Kremlin will grant visas to expert former Russians, such as the author seems to be, and let them make inspections unhampered.

* * *

Dr. Sosnovy's experience includes participation in municipal government and research, and work on planning commissions. When in a D.P. camp in Germany, he made extensive surveys among refugees on Soviet housing.

Principal Soviet housing laws are contained in an appendix. Chapters are devoted to rent and financing of housing. Before Stalin started to integrate the Soviet economy in the 1930s, much housing was on a co-operative and individual basis. There are indications this method may again be used.

This work was sponsored by a Ford Foundation grant. Foreword is by Gregory Grossman of the University of California. SAM LAMBERT.

Aurochs to Herefords

CATTLE AND MEN, by Charles Wayland Towne and Edward Norris Wentworth. (University of Oklahoma Press, 384 pgs., $5.)

This is the story of men and cattle coming up through the ages together, of what they have done for each other, of the powerful influences each has exerted on the life of the other and how they achieved an association with quite remarkable results. The authors concern themselves with beef cattle only, from the ancient aurochs to the sleek Herefords and the mighty Brahmans of the modern stock show.

While there may be little popular interest in merely animal behavior, the authors present their story in a fashion that keeps alive the sense of interdependence between men and cattle—to show what cattle have done to and for man, and how man has reacted.

Livestock history is much the richer for the collaboration of Towne and Wentworth, who are also the authors of "Shepherd's Empire" and "Pigs: From Cave to Corn Belt."

Never Such a Lobby as Oil

WASHINGTON.

AS THE SENATE wound through the third week of debate on the natural gas bill and toward the voting that begins next Monday, public attention was directed toward the lobby financed and operated by the big oil companies to put over this measure to exempt producers from federal regulation.

This operation was described to the Senate by Senator George Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, a veteran of 15 years' service thus: "Never, since I have been in Washington, have I seen such intensive and varied types of lobbying used to promote legislation." So impressive has this performance been that a senatorial investigation of the oil lobby was urged by Senator Hennings of Missouri, who told the Senate that "the concentrated money power of the great oil companies, wielded today to influence the decision of the national Government by contributions to both parties in many parts of the United States, is a menace to the proper functioning of free government within this country.

Kennedy

Inquiry Already On.

"So that the American people may have real reason to believe their Corrupt Practices Act will protect them, I believe an investigation of these giant oil companies is long overdue. I will press for it at some later date."

A vehicle is at hand in the investigation arranged some time ago by Senator John Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, in connection with proposals to tighten up the existing law regulating lobbying which was enacted 10 years ago. The Senator now is assembling a staff for this inquiry to be conducted by a Government Operations subcommittee under his direction.

He explains today that his investigation was planned long before the natural gas bill came up in the Senate, and naturally could not be turned immediately upon that current development. But, he said, the oil lobby could well come under scrutiny later when the committee begins to explore how lobbies are operating today.

A Self-Investigation.

An investigation of the oil lobby would, before it had gone very far, become an investigation of Congress itself, at least of those members of House and Senate who have received campaign contributions from the big oil barons, most of the latter in Texas.

How far the Senate would permit such an investigation to go, or whether it would even permit it to start, is a big question in view of the self-protective attitude taken toward each other by members of what often has been called "the most exclusive club in the world."

Furthermore, it would take personal testimony from Senators about their campaign contributions in some cases, as such contributions are seldom reported under the very lax state laws and the federal corrupt practices act. That was what provoked Senator Hennings's reference to the corrupt practices act. He has introduced bills for revision of our corrupt practices act to require complete publicity of all campaign contributions from whatever source, and an investigation of the oil lobby would reveal the need of that.

From Filling Stations.

If he could bring about a real investigation he would perform a fine public service, for never so badly needed was a look into the interests that influence Congress.

In the case of the present oil lobby, campaign contributions constitute one type of inducement. Senators who have received them know how they are going to vote, since the lobbyists will be checking from the galleries.

Another familiar type of lobby maneuver which is being used in the natural gas bill campaign is the use of letters and telegrams inspired, where not actually processed, by the big oil companies and their multitude of affiliates down to the filling station operator. Senator Aiken told the Senate that telegrams and letters to him urging support of the bill "have come mainly from oil corporation stockholders and gasoline dealers."

Pressure by Genealogy.

Another wrinkle, which Senators report has been carried to greater extremes in the natural gas lobby than ever before, is what one senator called "the genealogical approach."

The oil lobby, he said, has catalogued in the case of many Senators the life history back to birth, with a list of relatives and relatives of relatives and friends and friends of friends—anybody who might possibly have any influence with Senators. An amazing number of such connections have been called upon in the effort to win votes. One senator said:

"I got a call the other day from a lawyer in the Middle West who said his mother had gone to school with my mother 75 years ago. For that reason I should vote for this gas bill!"

HAILS PRIVATE ART COLLECTIONS HERE

Gordon Bailey Washburn Terms 'Quality, Quantity Fantastic.'

"St. Louis is now one of the most famous spots in the world for private art collections," Gordon Bailey Washburn of Pittsburgh, Pa., director of the Carnegie Institute's fine arts department, said here yesterday.

"Wherever you go, you are asked whether you have seen this or that St. Louisan's collection. Now I see why. The quality and quantity of the art here is fantastic. I've already seen more than I knew existed."

Washburn, who with Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb of New York will complete by tomorrow night the selecting of objects to be included in the City Art Museum's fifteenth annual show, headed what museum personnel called "an invasion" by nine art experts from New York and Pittsburgh.

Among others coming here to study the museum's and St. Louisans' private collections today and tomorrow are Alfred H. Barr Jr., director of collections at New York's Museum of Modern Art, and G. David Thompson, Pittsburgh industrialist and art collector.

As first to arrive, Washburn "stole a march on the other invaders," he said as he studiously walked through the museum galleries. He had not been here for five years and had many new art objects to enjoy, he reported. He came here after helping judge the Chicago area's big annual show and later this month will serve as a juror in Memphis, Tenn.

Talk Recorded.

He had been scheduled to take part last night at the museum, along with Leigh Gerdine and Jarvis Thurston of the Washington University faculty, in a panel discussion on obscurity in contemporary art, music and poetry. When the program was canceled, because of dangerous driving conditions, Washburn's talk was recorded at the museum, with Mrs. Edwin B. Grossman, museum lecturer, as interlocutor.

This discussion will be broadcast Feb. 20 at 3:45 p.m. over radio station KFUO. It concerns "The Blue Mandolin," a large, sand-textured, cubist painting completed by Georges Braque in 1930 and bought by the museum in 1944. "You could not own a better Braque of its period," Washburn said.

"Here you have a great museum with beautifully balanced collections, rich in sculpture, painting and decorative arts of all periods and places," he continued. "This is the kind of museum that we in Pittsburgh now hope to try to start to build.

"In the Carnegie's permanent collection now are, chiefly, eighteenth century English portraits and nineteenth century American paintings of all kinds—some good things, but lacking in balance and nothing to compare with what St. Louis owns.

"For many years the efforts of the staff of the Carnegie have gone into its annual international exhibition of contemporary painting. Now that's to become a triennial; once every three years is often enough to sample modern painting. It doesn't change frequently enough to justify a big show every year.

"Now we in Pittsburgh can set out to amass a sampling of the visual treasury of mankind, such as you have here. Only a rich, thriving commercial center can do this. Pittsburgh is such a center, and it's time we stopped behaving like a small town.

Art Grows on Art.

"To every school child, every adult, every art teacher, every artist, we must give, as you are giving, a chance to see such beauties. Art lives and grows on art, you know; through their works, artists of the past always teach living artists to see.

"A few modern artists are responsible for spreading the false notion that modern art and the art of the old masters are in conflict. They aren't. The more you study modern art, the more you see its growth out of and its relationship and debt to the art of the past."

In his study of works on display at the museum, Washburn said he was especially interested in The Acrobats," a large, symbolic triptych, or three-panel painting, by Max Beckmann, recently bought by a St. Louisan from a West Coast collector and just put on loan exhibit here yesterday.

He said he was impressed by the wealth of St. Louis-owned pictures by Beckmann, who taught here for two years before his death in 1950 and whose leading protege, Walter Barker, had a painting in the Carnegie International that closed Dec. 18.

Other works that Washburn admired were "The Large Bather," a monumental bronze by Pierre Auguste Renoir, also on loan; Renoir's "Venus Victorious," a bequest from the Curt Valentin estate; "Capture of Weislingen," by Eugene Delacroix, a painting recently bought by the museum; the St. Louis museum's famous portraits by Frans Hals, Rembrandt, Jean Francois Millet and Edouard Manet; "Temptation," by Marc Chagall, and "The Greyhounds of the Comte de Choiseul," by Gustave Courbet, two paintings that were recently presented to the museum by different St. Louis collectors.

SHERMAN PARK BRANCH LIBRARY FORCED TO MOVE

The St. Louis library board is searching for suitable quarters to which to move the library in the Sherman Park Community Center at Kingshighway and Easton avenue, it was announced today.

City officials have notified the library to vacate the community center by May 1. Under the $110,000,000 civic improvement bond issue, the city plans to expand recreational facilities at Sherman Park.

These plans will crowd the library out of the community center building, it was said.

"We have been searching for some time now for a suitable building, a storeroom in the Kingshighway-Easton area for the Sherman Park branch library," a spokesman said, "but we haven't found anything yet. When the library is moved it will still be known by the same name."

NEW SEMESTER POSTPONED

EISENHOWER'S VIEW ON 'GENEVA SPIRIT'

He Says It Showed to World That U.S. Seeks Just Peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today one thing "the spirit of Geneva did accomplish" was to drive home to people everywhere "that the United States is trying to establish a just peace for the world."

The President made the statement in an informal talk to an audience of about 500 at the fourth annual prayer breakfast of the International Council for Christian Leadership. His remarks were carried to a television audience watching the NBC program "Today."

Referring to the "summit" conference at Geneva last July, Mr. Eisenhower said people talk all the time about the "spirit of Geneva"—meaning that Russia at the time gave the appearance it would try to get along with the Western world.

The President has said several times since then that those hopes of a changed Russian attitude have not been realized. Today he declared:

"The thing the spirit of Geneva did accomplish—and so far has not been destroyed—is that the United States is trying to establish a just peace for the world."

And that, the President added, is a sound accomplishment "in this day of fear and hysteria."

Mr. Eisenhower's audience at a Washington hotel included several members of Congress and the heads of various federal agencies.

Just before the President spoke, his host, hotel proprietor Conrad Hilton, presented him with a silver plaque on which is inscribed the prayer that the Chief Executive wrote a few hours in advance of his inauguration on Jan. 20, 1953. He read the prayer publicly as a preface to his inaugural address.

Hilton also gave the President the hotel room desk and chair at which he composed the prayer in Washington.

Mr. Eisenhower said he was astonished at the response the prayer brought from people all over the country. He touched off a round of laughter in adding that some who responded were "people who didn't particularly think that I was the man to occupy" the White House.

Later this morning, Mr. Eisenhower and former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York met for a talk, which the White House said in advance had "no political significance."

Dewey declined to say specifically whether he and Mr. Eisenhower discussed the possibility of the Chief Executive running again, but he told reporters that in his opinion Mr. Eisenhower is "absolutely necessary to the United States and to the best prospects for peace."

He made that remark when asked whether he felt that Mr. Eisenhower is indispensable. In response to a question, he said "I may have said something like that" to the President.

Dewey helped engineer Mr. Eisenhower's nomination in 1952, and has been expressing hope the President will run again. Dewey, twice the G.O.P. presidential nominee, now is practicing law in New York City.

BOB BURNS

BOB BURNS DIES, HILLBILLY HUMORIST

Made Fortune in 1930s With Bazooka, Tall Tales of Arkansas.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2 (UP)—Bob (Bazooka) Burns, Ozark comedian who made a fortune spinning tall tales about his relatives in Van Buren, Ark., died of cancer today. He was 64 years old.

His physician, Dr. David Hertz, said the comedian underwent surgery three years ago and had been in declining health ever since.

Inactive in show business for the last 10 years, Mr. Burns was bedridden for most of the last five years.

His sly hillbilly humor and "bazooka" made the nation laugh in the depression years of the 1930s. His uncle Fud and Grandpaw Snazzy became known wherever there was a radio.

Mr. Burns's wife Harriet, once his secretary, was at his bedside when he died. They eloped to aLs Vegas, Nev., in 1937.

The comedian also is survived by their three children, Barbara, 17; Robbin, 16, and Stephen 15. Mr. Burns also had a son, Robert, 33, by his first wife, who died in 1936.

Mr. Burns came to Hollywood in 1930 after a career that had many ups and downs.

After attending the University of Arkansas, he joined a touring minstrel show in 1911. After seven years of vaudeville and eight more with carnivals, he returned to the hills to raise peanuts.

Later he worked as a civil engineer in Salt Lake City where he organized a vaudeville troupe. When that venture failed he took a job pitching hay. It was during a brief period when he worked as a plumber that he assembled his bass note "bazooka."

Composed of a pair of gas pipes and a funnel, the bazooka became the comedian's trademark. In World War II American fighting men named the Army's anti-tank weapon after the comedian's novel musical instrument.

Mr. Burns, who served in the Marines in World War I, first played his bazooka in New York night clubs. His first big break was on Rudy Vallee's radio program. He later moved to Bing Crosby's music hall show before getting a radio show of his own.

The movies hired him and he starred in such hits as "Rhythm on the Range," and "The Big Broadcast of 1937," "Wells Fargo" and "The Arkansas Traveler."

He invested his show business earnings in San Fernando valley real estate which paid off handsomely after World War II, putting him among Hollywood's wealthiest performers.

With Deepest Sympathy
Mrs. Edwin L. Norris

Emily Post Says:

Upon the death of a friend you should go at once to the house, write "With sympathy" on your card and leave it at the door. Or, you write a letter to the family. In either case you send flowers, addressed either to the funeral of (name of the deceased) or to the nearest relative. The latter method is preferable, if the relative is a friend. But the former method is followed if the deceased alone was known to you. On the card accompanying the flowers, and addressed to one of the family, you write "With sympathy," or "With deepest sympathy," or "With heartfelt sympathy," or "With love and sympathy."

ground convoy. Then, if the Russians resisted that effort and plunged the world into war, would not the Air Force have to contribute its share to the defense of the nation? I answered my own question: The air lift involved less risks than armed road convoys. Therefore, I directed the Air Force to furnish the fullest support possible to the problem of supplying Berlin.

General Vandenberg interjected that that would not be possible unless additional airfield facilities were constructed in Berlin. General Clay pointed out that he had already selected a site for an additional field and that construction, using German manpower, could begin at once. General Vandenberg then assured me that the Air Force would devote its entire energy to the carrying out of my order.

Frustrating Talks With the Russians.

We had to be prepared to expand the air lift to a maximum while continuing talks with the Russians to see if the blockade could not be removed by agreement. On July 30th Ambassador Smith and his French and British colleagues handed the Russian Foreign Ministry the allied reply to the Russian note of July 14th. We declared that the Russian reply had offered no constructive suggestion. The situation was full of dangers to world peace, and for that reason the three ambassadors requested a conference with Stalin and Molotov.

This interview with Stalin and Molotov took place on August 2nd at nine o'clock in the evening. Stalin, as was so often the case, appeared more amenable to argument than his subordinates had been, and the meeting resulted in a more relaxed atmosphere. Stalin indicated that he was willing to have the transport restrictions lifted provided arrangements were made to have both the Eastern and Western types of German currency circulate in all of Berlin. He no longer insisted that there had to be a conference on all German problems before the blockade was lifted.

However, when Ambassador Smith and his colleagues sat down with Molotov to put this understanding into a formal statement, the Russian position once again turned uncompromising and hard. Four lengthy meetings produced no agreement.

These drafting sessions with Molotov proved so futile that we instructed Smith to ask for another personal conference with Premier Stalin. This meeting took place on August 23rd, and again Stalin appeared much more interested in reaching a basis for understanding than Molotov had been.

But Molotov again proved difficult when the diplomats sat down to draw up a communique and a set of instructions for the four military governors in Berlin who, it had been agreed, should work out the details. In the end, in fact, it was impossible to issue even an interim communique to inform the public that technical questions had been referred to Berlin because Molotov refused to agree to any text except in his terms.

The discussions among the four Military Governors never got out of the stage of frustration. Marshal Sokolovsky, the Russian representative, at once took a position diametrically opposed to the explicit assurances which Stalin had given the ambassadors, declaring that he would not even consider the removal of any of the restrictions imposed before June 18th. Indeed, he tried to put new restrictions in this time on air traffic.

The air lift, meanwhile, steadily expanded. On August 20th Secretary of the Army Royall reported to the National Security Council that the combined British-American lift had averaged 3300 tons daily and that the maximum for any one day's lift had now reached 4575 tons. Of this tonnage, the British, using everything they had available by way of transport planes, had flown in about one-third. The stockpiles in Berlin were slowly growing; there was now a 25-day reserve of coal and a 30-day reserve of food in that city. On September 9th Secretary of the Air Force Symington informed the National Security Council that since early August the daily average lift had been increased to 4000 tons and that it was likely that 5000 tons a day could be reached if additional cargo planes were allocated.

Some voices were raised in America calling for a break with the Russians. These people did not understand that our choice was only between negotiations and war. There was no third way. As long as the Russians were willing to continue talks—however futile—there would be no shooting.

Ambassador Smith was directed to hand Molotov an aide-memoire which listed the specific causes of the failure of the Berlin talks and stated our position in the plainest language possible. Molotov's reply was the same old story. All the blame was on our side, and nothing much could be done until we accepted the Soviet position in its entirety.

Complaint Submitted to the U.N.

The American complaint against Russia was formally submitted to the United Nations on September 29th. The note drew attention to the "serious situation which has arisen as a result of the unilateral imposition by the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics of restrictions on transport and communications between the western zones of occupation in Germany and Berlin," and charged that the action was a threat to the peace under Chapter VII of the Charter.

The Soviet government took the position that there would have been no blockade if the western powers had acceded to the Russian position. Furthermore, so Mr. Vyshinsky argued in the Security Council of the United Nations, there was no blockade in the sense of traditional international law and, therefore, there could be no real threat to peace. The Soviet Union, Vyshinsky said, would not take part in any discussion of the blockade before the Security Council.

Our spokesman before the Security Council throughout this dispute was Professor Philip Jessup of Columbia University. Jessup was one of the leading authorities on international law, and he gained the respect of the world for the statesmanlike manner in which he represented the case for the western powers before the U.N.

The battle of diplomacy was overshadowed, however, by the drama of the aerial convoys that, day after day, winged their way to Berlin. By mid-October General Clay could state as a proven conclusion that the air lift was no longer an experiment. Even adverse weather could not keep our supply planes from making their runs from the western zones into the blockaded former capital of Germany.

Meanwhile, the Security Council of the United Nations had a technical committee working on recommendations for a solution of the currency deadlock. Our reaction to these proposals was that our experience with the Russians impelled us to reject any plan which provided for a four-power operation. We had learned that the Russians would usually agree in principle but would rarely perform in practice. We wanted a settlement, but we could not accept a settlement that would put the people of Berlin at the mercy of the Soviets and their German Communist hirelings.

This is where things stood as 1948 ended and 1949 began. We had fought off the Russian attempt to force us out of Berlin. The longer the blockade continued, the more the technical efficiency of the air lift improved, and the more the people of Germany looked toward the west to strengthen them in their determination to remain free. Berlin had become a symbol of America's—and the west's—dedication to the cause of freedom.

The Kremlin began to see that their effort to force us out was doomed. Russia's toughness and truculence in the Berlin matter had led many Europeans to realize the need for closer military assistance ties among the western nations, and this led to discussions which eventually resulted in the establishment of N.A.T.O. Berlin had been a lesson to all.

Stalin Opens Way for Settlement.

Late in January, 1949, the Kremlin released a series of answers given by Premier Stalin to questions submitted by an American correspondent. Stalin had used this device—and correspondents—on other occasions to indicate changes in attitude or policy. At this time, he answered a question with regard to the Berlin blockade saying that there would be no obstacle to the lifting of the traffic restrictions if restrictions imposed by the three western powers and by the Russians were lifted at the same time.

Dean Acheson, whom I had appointed Secretary of State after my election in 1948, made his regular call at the White House after this Stalin interview was published. We went over the answers of the Russian premier with great care. We noticed that, for the first time since June, 1948, the Berlin blockade was not tied to the currency matter in the Russian statement. Acheson suggested, and I approved, that we instruct Jessup to find out from the Russian delegation at the U.N. if this had been intentional.

On February 15, 1949, Dr. Jessup found an informal opportunity to pass a few words with Mr. Malik, the Soviet representative at the U.N., while the delegates were in their lounge. Jessup observed to Malik that Stalin's answer made no reference to the currency problem in the Berlin matter. Was this omission of any significance? Mr. Malik said he did not know but that he would ask. Exactly one month later he had an answer: The omission was "not accidental." This was an example of how difficult it was to do business with the Russians on a straightforward basis.

The Russians were still insistent that we should call off our actions to create a West German government. But they were no longer insistent that this had to be done first before they would call off the blockade. They were now willing to agree that all restrictions on traffic in and out of Berlin imposed by either side after March 1, 1948, would be lifted, and that then the Council of Foreign Ministers should be convened to discuss "matters arising out of the situation in Berlin, and matters affecting Germany as a whole." Thus the Russians were ready to retreat. On May 4th a communique announced that the four governments concerned—the United States, Great Britain, France and the U.S.S.R.—had agreed: The blockade of Berlin would end on May 12th.

More than fourteen months had passed since the first restrictions had been imposed by the Russians. A little over a year had elapsed during which Berlin had been supplied by means of the air lift.

This achievement by the Air Force deserves much praise. Technically, it was an extremely difficult job—so difficult that even the Air Force chiefs themselves at first had serious doubts that it could be done. It proved a beacon light of hope for the peoples of Europe.

When we refused to be forced out of the city of Berlin, we demonstrated to the people of Europe that with their co-operation we would act resolutely when their freedom was threatened. Politically it brought the peoples of Western Europe more closely to us.

The Berlin blockade was a move to test our capacity and will to resist. This action and their previous attempts to take over Greece and Turkey were part of a Russian plan to probe for soft spots in the western allies' positions all around their own perimeter.

ADVERTISING GROUP SETTLES TRUST SUIT

A.A.A.A. Was One of 6 Defendants Charged with Restrictive Practices.

The New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—One defendant agreed to a settlement yesterday in the Government's anti-trust suit against six advertising and publishing associations.

William P. Rogers, acting Attorney General, announced that a consent decree had been entered in the Southern District of New York agaist the American Association of Advertising Agencies..

Other defendants in the eight-month-old case are the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Publishers Association of New York City, Associated Business Publications, Inc., Periodical Publishers Association of America and Agricultural Publishers Association.

The suit against these five publishing groups will continue. They have been negotiating with Justice Department lawyers but apparently turned down a proposed settlement similar to that agreed to by the A.A.A.A.

1. Maintain a uniform 15 per cent advertising agency commission rate, excluding price competition among agencies.

2. Bar advertisers from placing ads in newspapers or magazines except through advertising agencies.

3. Regulate entry of new advertising agencies into the business through a "recognition system" which extended credit and commissions only to approved agencies.

All the defendants denied having committed any violations of the anti-trust laws. The A.N.P.A., in a statement, said it had been willing to alter any practices required by changed court decisions, but had been told it would have to agree to a consent decree.

"This we felt not only unreasonable and unfair," the A.N.P.A. said, "but confirmed the desire which has existed in some Department of Justice underlings for some years to haul the press into court."

Under the consent judgment entered yesterday the A.A.A.A. is barred from fixing advertising agency commissions and from establishing any recognition system for agencies. It may not assist any of its individual member agencies in such practices.

The decree has the force of law. Any violation can be punished as contempt.

PUBLIC ESTEEM FOR SCIENCE AT LOW EBB, SAYS PHYSICIST

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Real public esteem for science has sunk to its lowest ebb just when science is most important to the nation, Dr. I. I. Rabi, Nobel Prize winner in physics, said last night.

A drive to increase the number of scientists stems more from fear of Russia than from "a desire of the public to know more about science and the visible and invisible world," Dr. Rabi told the banquet of the American Institute of Physics.

"The impact of scientific thought on the culture of our times becomes less and less even as science advances to greater pinnacles of understanding and discovery," the Columbia University scientist said. "As the importance of science in the country increases, its dignity seems to be diminishing."

2 PUBLICLY OWNED UTILITIES ASK TO JOIN AEC PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Two publicly owned electric utilities have asked to join in the Government's small atomic reactor construction program, the American Public Power Association announced yesterday.

These are the cities of Piqua, O., and Holyoke, Mass. The association said Piqua proposes to build a 12,500-kilowatt nuclear power plant using an organic moderated reactor and Holyoke proposes to build a plant consisting of a 15,000-kilowatt closed cycle gas turbine and gas cycle reactor.

Yesterday was the deadline for submitting proposals to the Atomic Energy Commission under the program, which provides for joint Government-utility participation in the construction of nuclear power facilities in the range of 5000 to 40,000 kilowatts of capacity.

BRITAIN SAYS GOLD, DOLLAR RESERVE DRAIN IS HALTED

An announcement by the Treasury said the reserves rose by $29,000,000 during the month and now stand at $2,149,000,000.

It was the first time in seven months that the reserves have shown a net gain. The drain on the reserves over the previous seven months had totaled $380,000,000.

'POCKETBOOK INTEREST' IN GAS BILL VOTE

$1,297,000 and $2,152,000 by Phillips Vice President K. E. Beall, who objected to letting this gas-land bonanza fall into the Senator's lap.

Urged to Stay in Background.

However, Senate Rule 12 still applies, and it will be interesting to see whether Kerr invokes it and refrains from voting.

If he doesn't, it is highly unlikely that any Senator will challenge him, for the Senate, which has the power to investigate almost anyone under the sun, including the New York Times, has an unwritten rule that it never investigates itself.

There are other Senators who hold oil-gas stocks and oil-gas lands.

One of these is Senator Russell Long of Louisiana, who, with his family, owns part of the Win-or-Lose Oil Co. in Louisiana. Senator Long once informed me that an estimate of $25,000 for one share of stock in this company was not far out of line. Long has stood up on the Senate floor and helped lead the debate for the natural gas bill. He has been championing his own private pocketbook interest and it is highly unlikely that he will voluntarily invoke Rule 12.

Oil, Gas Contributions.

Both Senators Daniel and Lyndon Johnson of Texas have received heavy contributions from oil-gas interests. So much money was volunteered for Senator Daniel by the gas-oil interests in advance that Senator Tom Connally, who frequently bucked the oil-gas boys, bowed out of the race. Lyndon Johnson's biggest money backer during his political career has been George Brown and members of the Brown & Root firm. It was at the home of George Brown, himself the head of a big gas pipeline company, that Johnson was stricken with his heart attack. Lyndon has done favors for his company.

Challenge Unlikely.

In the old days of Senators George Norris, Bob La Follette, Hugo Black and Warren Austin, one or more of these Senate stalwarts might have risen up to challenge the voting privilege of a colleague who had a pecuniary interest in the bill. But today that isn't likely to happen.

The precedent of the Nixon private-expense fund, with its patent conflict of interest, and the tendency to vote for the interests that put up the money to elect a Senator, is firmly rooted with a large group of Senators.

Other Senators would like to stand up for so-called Senate ethics but don't like to buck the leadership. It isn't popular. It also makes life difficult when committee assignments are being passed around.

So the real loser in the voting on the natural gas bill, if Senate Rule 12 is not invoked, will be the American democratic system.

The gas-oil Senators are so confident of victory that they have dropped word to certain Senate colleagues up for re-election this year that they don't need their vote—among them Butler of Maryland, who comes from a gas-consuming state, and George of Georgia. The gas Senators figure they can get by without jeopardizing the re-election chances of some of their friends.

ABRAHAM LEVIN'S ESTATE IS ESTIMATED AT $447,563

The estate of Abraham Levin, former president of Levin Goodman Co., Inc., a wholesale general merchandise concern, 1015 Washington avenue, was valued at $447,563 in an inventory filed yesterday in probate court at Clayton.

Principal assets include stocks with a market value of $241,200; six pieces of commercial and residential property in St. Louis in which Levin's interest was valued at $73,000; bonds and notes for $71,365, and cash and insurance, $61,998.

Levin, who came to this country in 1913 from Russia, died last Oct. 2 at the age of 59. He lived with a daughter, Mrs. Donald Samuels, 858 Berick drive, University City. The estate, except for $2000 bequeathed to the United Jewish Appeal, and $11,000 in bequests for six relatives, is to remain in trust for Mrs. Samuels and Levin's other daughter, Mrs. A. D. Krems, Los Angeles, and their children.

9000 BILLS INTRODUCED IN HOUSE IN 84TH CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—House members have introduced more than 9000 bills since the Eighty-fourth Congress convened 13 months ago.

That figure was reached yesterday, and the total continued upward toward the 10,288 recorded by the Eighty-third Congress. In addition, more than 1000 House resolutions have been submitted. Of the current total, 1131 bills have been introduced since the second session of Congress started a month ago.

On the Senate side, 3106 bills and 403 resolutions had been introduced through yesterday. So far during the Congress, President Eisenhower had signed 880 bills into law.

RUBY HOFFMAN HEARING SET FOR NEXT THURSDAY

A hearing to determine if Mrs. Ruby Hoffman, key witness in the police payoff investigation, is physically able to testify before the grand jury, was continued until next Thursday after a brief session before Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh today.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd asked for the continuance because City Hospital doctors, who had examined Mrs. Hoffman at his request, have not completed a medical report. She was said to be in a highly nervous state last week after three grand jury appearances.

Testimony was given today by Dr. John J. Connor, chief pathologist for the coroner's office, that Mrs. Hoffman, a former brothel operator, would not be in condition to testify for one or two more weeks.

LIBERTY SHIPS BEING USED AS RADAR PICKETS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP) —Liberty ships of World War II are back again for sentry duty.

As radar picket ships, they are assigned to extend the warning net against enemy air attack far out to sea. Four already have been commissioned by the Navy and are part of the Continental Air Defense Command.

Four more of the 10,760-ton vessels are in the Norfolk (Va.) and Charleston (S.C.) naval yards undergoing conversion. Radar, special communications and electronics equipment will cost the Navy close to $4,000,000 for each outfitting.

The YAGRs as the Navy designates them, will act as advance posts to warn of surprise enemy attacks. They also are equipped to control and co-ordinate interceptor aircraft in combat.

Each YAGR stands alone. It lacks the protection of capital ships and must defend itself as best it can with relatively light guns.

Doing It The Hard Way.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — (UP) — Firemen received the following explanation for the cause of a home fire. Heat from an electric kitchen range caused a plastic pot hook above the stove to melt. A pan lid hanging from the hook dropped on the stove. The pan lid struck a frying pan full of grease. The grease splattered on the wall and caught fire.

"I was slave 1E-241 in the Soviet Union"

Condensed from forthcoming book: "Slave 1E-241"

Seized without rhyme or reason and sent to the frozen Arctic, John Noble (a U.S. citizen) spent four grim years at a Russian concentration camp mining coal.

In February Reader's Digest Noble gives an unforgettable account of Red brutality...and tells how 100,000 "slaves" rebelled against their torturers in 1953 — a revolt Noble firmly feels can occur again.

ALGERIAN STRIFE WEAKENS NATO RESERVE FORCES

Much of Screen Near West Germany Is Diverted to Quell African Rebels.

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN

PARIS, Feb. 2—A ragtag and bobtail force of between 5000 and 15,000 Algerian rebels has succeeded in scrambling the defenses of Western Europe to a disturbing extent.

That fact emerges from the reluctant admission of Allied officers that France's five "M-Day" divisions in Europe are now down to two-thirds of their normal combat effectiveness and that the seven "M-plus"—reserve—divisions which are assigned to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are "only half there."

The only consolation in this situation is that the M-Day divisions are infinitely better off than they were six months ago.

Allied officers insist that the French are making the best of a situation which is beyond their control.

But these things having been said, the position of the French army in Europe today still makes the position of NATO forces as a whole unbalanced and full of gaps.

Covering Screen.

The five "M-Day" divisions form an important element in the "covering screen" of divisions which are stationed in or near West Germany for the purpose of presenting immediate resistance in case of a Russian attack.

These French divisions, which include two armored and three infantry divisions, are normally stationed along the Rhine between Frankfurt and the Swiss frontier. Together with six American divisions and four British divisions, they provide the bulk of the ground forces that stand between the Russians and the English Channel.

Some complete units have been withdrawn from these divisions and important fractions or other units have also been sent to Algeria. At one time last summer it was estimated that they were down to 50 per cent of their combat efficiency. Replacements and training exercises have improved their combat power since then, but not enough.

The "M-plus" divisions, which would normally be brought up to full strength only in case of mobilization, have suffered more.

Generally speaking they have been cut in two parts between France and North Africa. They could be mobilized only after the return of the components which have been sent to North Africa.

Atom Trials Delayed.

Other handicaps suffered by the French army due to the Algerian rebellion include the wear and tear on transport equipment, much of it furnished by the United States for the defense of Western Europe, and an indefinite delay in trials aimed at devising a new type of army unit suitable for atomic warfare.

The sole advantage has been the training provided to many reservists who would otherwise not have had the refresher training which they need. Officers and men have both benefited from field experience but the benefits have been limited by the fact that most units are operating piecemeal in small formations.

Allied officers give the French high marks for their efforts to bring the "screen" divisions up to their normal combat efficiency.

Troops now stationed there have been unable to inflict a telling blow on the main rebel forces.

The French now have 230,000 troops in Algeria against two rebel forces which may only include 5000 or may number as many as 15,000 insurgents.

Funds Refused By Town.

HARTFORD, Conn. — (UP)— Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff revealed that Hamden refused to accept state aid following the Oct. 15, 1955 floods. He said the town's selectmen told him that, although damage to public property there amounted to $15,000, they felt the money should go to communities which were harder hit by the disaster.

ANTIQUE CLOCKS KEEP REPAIR MAN BUSY IMPROVISING

WAYLAND, N.Y., Feb. 2. (UP)—At the age of 15, C. Edmund Densmore first took an active interest in what makes a clock tick. It started him on a career that's kept him busy for more than 60 years.

Densmore, whose father operated a clock repair shop in nearby Springwater for some 50 years, is one of the comparatively few clock-fixers left around the country who are able to turn out and replace parts in old-fashioned timepieces as well as the up-to-date kind.

The elderly craftsman says that nearly every week an antique clock of a kind no longer manufactured reaches his shop for repair. Then he usually has to go to work improvising.

The clock of which he is fondest is an old wooden timepiece owned by a Corning, N. Y., resident. It gets his best care. The clock dates back to 1798 and has a wooden mechanism, Instead of brass.

STOCKS CLOSE MIXED AFTER RALLY FAILS

Finish Is Quiet — Aircrafts and Motors Manage to Hold Gains.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—The stock market had a turn at heading in both direction today, and closed with prices mixed. Motor and aircraft shares were higher.

Gains and losses ranged from fractions to around 2 points.

The market started mixed and tirned lower by midday. In the afternoon, General Motors announced record earnings for 1955 and motor issues set off a rally, which faded out quickly. The market then assumed a quietly mixed pattern at the close.

General Motors closed up ¾ at 43⅞, and Chrysler up 1⅞ at 77. Ford Motor stock was quoted late today at 63⅞ bid and 64⅛ asked, a slight gain over yesterday, after dipping for a time to 63¼ bid.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks was .1 of a point higher at 176.4 at the close. The industrial component was unchanged, while the rail gained .2 and utility .1.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 473.43 up .15 of a point at the close; the 20 rail index 158.47 off .23, and the 15 utilities 64.35 up .27.)

Trade was in 1124 issues, 33 less than yesterday. There were 438 gainers at the close and 414 losers, while 272 remained unchanged. New 1955-56 highs were made by 15 and new lows by 7.

Trading came to an aggregate 1,900,000 shares. Yesterday's total was 2,010,000 shares.

Fairbanks Morse, which may face a proxy fight for control by Penn-Texas, was ahead about a point in fairly active dealings after going up two points early in the day.

Stocks improving included Goodrich, General Dynamics, Eaton, Mfg. and Parke Davis.

Lower at one time were American Telephone, Zenith, and Hiram Walker.

UNCLE SAM'S SPLIT OF PROFITS TO BE BIG

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP).

UNCLE SAM is striking gold these days in the canyons of New York—and it's a much richer vein than almost anyone expected even just a few weeks ago.

In their New York counting houses the nation's big corporations are totting up their gross profits for 1955. In numerous cases the results astound even those who already knew 1955 was a remarkable year.

Sam Dawson

With the federal income tax rate on corporations rising as high as 52 per cent, the United States Treasury's share of these gross profits is impressive—and the total grows with each day's batch of corporate earnings reports.

U.S. Steel has just announced it has set aside $366,000,000 to pay Uncle Sam.

THE OTHER DAY JERSEY STANDARD OIL estimated its net income after taxes would be a record $717,000,000, a gain of 22.5 per cent over its 1954 take. A roughly similar sum will be on hand for the federal tax collector. General Motors, reporting a record $1,189,000,000 net profit — the first such figure ever reported by an American corporation—will pay income taxes it estimates at $1,350,000,000. Just these three corporations alone, therefore, will be handing Uncle Sam around two billion dollars in tax money. That's more than the President's budget allots for spending on atomic energy. It's more than he asks for guided missiles, more than he asks for building dams and developing natural resources.

BIG STEEL REPORTS ITS EARNINGS after taxes were a record $370,000,000. This is by far the largest profit in the steel industry, as is to be expected from a company that does nearly one-third of the business. But nine other steel companies—two of them among the "top 10"—report a better percentage of gain over 1954. U.S. Steel's net profits increased 89 per cent over the 1954 figure. But nine others report their profits more than doubled during the year. The 21 iron and steel companies that have reported their 1955 results so far have a combined net profit of $990,309,426, an increase of 71 per cent over the $579,141,957 the same 21 reported on their 1954 operations. Their combined federal tax payments can be roughly estimated at $990,000,000. Steel will show one of the best increases of any industry: Because it made and sold a record amount of steel last year; because its 1955 operations are being compared with 1954, a year in which steel was among the industries suffering from a recession.

THE GOOD NEWS FOR THE UNITED STATES TREASURY doesn't stop with the annual reports that American corporations are now issuing in increasing numbers. There is every sign that the profitable times are continuing in the early months of 1956. Roger M. Blough, U.S. Steel chairman, thinks the current quarter may be the best three months the steel industry has ever had. Although he expects the present pace to slacken later in the year, Blough thinks 1956 will turn out to be one of the top years for steel. Other steel leaders have reported their own companies have orders in sight that should keep them humming at least until fall.

THE CUTBACK IN AUTO PRODUCTION HASN'T MADE a dent in the total demand for steel yet—a demand that calls for more steel than the industry has present capacity to meet quickly. Prospects this week that a federal highway aid bill will pass Congress will add more demand for the construction products of the steel industry. And the higher the sales volume, the greater the tax take usually is.

NEW SEASONAL HIGH FOR MARCH WHEAT

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP) — Wheat maintained a firm tone while other grains did not show much price change on the Board of Trade today.

March wheat led the bread grain higher. It hit a new seasonal high for the third straight day on renewed covering by previous short sellers.

Brokers said the buying in March wheat apparently was based on fears there would not be much "free wheat" in Chicago elevators for delivery on March futures.

Trading was pretty dull and price moves indecisive in other cereals. Corn sold under the previous close most of the day.

BUDGET PREDICTS 5,000,000 IDLE, SAYS DOUGLAS

Senator Bases His Charge on Estimates of Personal Income for This Year.

The New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, charged yesterday that if the revenue estimates in the President's budget are right, nearly 5,000,000 persons will be out of work this year.

Douglas, chairman of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, based his charge on the estimates of personal income this year which the Treasury used to figure personal taxes for fiscal year 1957. He was questioning Rowland R. Hughes, Director of the Budget, who insisted repeatedly that revenue estimates were the Treasury's job, not his.

The Senator noted that the Treasury figured its personal income tax receipts on an estimate that personal income will be $342,500,000,000 in 1956. He said the rate for the fourth quarter of 1955 was $312,200,000,000 and that December, with the figures not due for a few days, may show income at an annual rate of as high as 315 billion dollars.

'No Growth' Shown.

Thus, said Douglas, the budget estimates assume "no growth in the economy at all, and even some decline from the December rate." He pointed out that the labor force will grow by "about 750,000 to 800,000" and the productivity of each worker will grow by about 3 per cent, leading to higher wages.

If there is no growth in personal income, he concluded, there must be more people out of work and looking for jobs. He estimated this figure at "nearly 5,000,000" people.

He concluded that "the Bureau of the Budget has become a prophet of gloom and doom for the coming year." Hughes denied the charge, saying the budget must be based on "conservative" estimates of revenue.

Representative Thomas P. Curtis (Rep.), Missouri, backed up Hughes. He said revenue estimates are "difficult" and that the budget estimates "do not indicate that the Administration is anything other than optimistic about the future." He called estimates based on current levels of economic activity "traditional at the Treasury."

Cites Last Budget.

Douglas replied with figures showing that in the last budget the Treasury had based its receipts estimates on a personal income from some 3 per cent higher than in the final quarter of the year before. Even this ultimately proved to be far too low.

Representative Wilbur Mills (Ark.) Democrat, who plays a leading role in the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, refused to deduce from Douglas's figures the conclusion that taxes can be cut because receipts will be higher than estimated.

Mills, examining both expenditure and receipt proposals in the budget, concluded that "The more I look at this situation the more I am convinced that the Treasury is going to have to take in more than the estimates if we're going to have a balanced budget." He said it would be "folly" to reduce taxes if such a cut would put the budget back into the red.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

Hughes said that a "final statement" on the tax situation cannot be made until the April returns have come in. "You can make a much better estimate on that date than you can now," he said.

He declined to say what he believes the Administration should do if it finds that there will be a budget surplus of at least three billion dollars.

"It is something the Administration will have a full discussion on," he said.

Secretary of the Treasury has said he will favor a tax reduction if a surplus of $2,500,000,000 to three billion dollars develops.

Hughes's comments made it clear the Administration has not ruled out a tax cut and will reconsider the possibilities after it has seen the size of the March corporate income and April individual income tax receipts.

ECONOMIC GROUP IN U.N. REJECTS SEAT FOR PEIPING

BANGALORE, India, Feb. 2 (AP)—The U. N. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East rejected today a Soviet effort to win membership for Red China.

By a vote of 15-3, the twelfth annual ECAFE conference here approved the Thailand delegate's motion to adjourn debate on the Soviet motion to bring Communist China "through the back door" of the United Nations. Opposing the motion were the Soviet Union, India, Indonesia, Burma and Afghanistan.

The Soviet delegate next demanded the Outer Mongolia's admission be put on the agenda. The United States delegation opposed this move and the session adjourned until tomorrow with the issue undecided.

India's Prime Minister Nehru had appealed to the conference at its opening for admission of both Red China and Outer Mongolia, saying he found it strange that ECAFE is trying to solve Asia's problems without the presence of certain nations, "including that country called China."

Harriman and Kefauver Meet, Stop Stevenson Move Rumored

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

They Both Deny Plan to Head Off 1952 Candidate—Confer After Seeing Truman.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (UP)—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, conferred today amid rumors they were planning strategy "to stop Adlai Stevenson" from getting the Democratic presidential nomination.

The unheralded meeting took place after each conferred separately with former President Harry S. Truman, who served notice he would still have plenty to say about the 1956 Democratic presidential nominee.

Kefauver and Harriman denied any "stop Stevenson" campaign.

"It was not the purpose of our meeting to discuss a stop Adlai Stevenson movement," Kefauver said in a press conference with Harriman after their pre-lunch conference.

"We're all going to remain friends so whomever gets the nomination will have the support of the fellows who had tried and lost, and I think that will be the case," Kefauver said.

Reports became current that Truman, Harriman and Kefauver were discussing the possibility of quashing Stevenson's presidential aspirations when the unusual round of meetings involving these three top figures in the Democratic party began today.

Truman went to Harriman's residence for breakfast and then returned to his hotel with Kefauver, at the Senator's request. Harriman is an "inactive" candidate for the presidential nomination and Kefauver is an active one. Truman is considered by many Democrats as titular head of his party.

Kefauver left Truman's hotel to go immediately to Harriman's home at the Governor's request. They said they discussed "campaign issues, but not personalities." Kefauver also told Harriman about his recent trip to Russia.

"The main thing we talked about was foreign policy and positions Gov. Harriman had taken," Kefauver said. "We find we are in general agreement as far as we went into most of the topics discussed."

A reporter asked Harriman if he had discussed with Kefauver the possibility that the Senator might be a vice presidential candidate. Harriman said he had not and Kefauver repeated that he has no interest in the vice presidential nomination.

Truman and Harriman talked to the press after the breakfast, and said they agreed that there was "arrogance" in the White House which has become "dominated by big business and special interests."

"We think it is time that the situation is changed," Harriman said. "We've got to get back to the days when America was respected and people had confidence in the consistencies of our policies."

Truman and Harriman said they had not discussed "personalities." Truman added that he would be "neutral" concerning the Democratic presidential nomination until the convention next summer.

Asked if his conference with Kefauver indicated that his so-called "feud" with the Tennessee Democrat had been patched up, Truman replied:

"I never had a feud with Kefauver. I just didn't want him for President. I admit I blocked his nomination in 1952."

Truman refused to answer the question of whether he would do any blocking at the 1956 convention, but he added, "I'm in no position to do it now." He said a President could always dominate his party's convention and would "be foolish if he didn't."

Harriman said he and Truman saw "eye to eye" on such issues as natural resources, the farm program, foreign policy, and "the spectacle of the White House dominated by big business and special interests."

Truman said he agreed with Harriman's statement that: "We're just trying to get a Democrat in the White House and we're not concerned with who it is as yet."

Truman said earlier that the Democrats will probably lose "some" southern votes in 1956 because of es civil rights issue, but said: "We don't need the Solid South to win the election. That was proven conclusively in 1948."

Both Truman and Kefauver will speak tonight at a $100 a plate Democratic fund-raising dinner. Truman said his speech "would be political" and "important."

SECOND MAN HELD, ACCUSED OF OIL-GAS WELL FRAUD

Allen A. Borton of Hillsdale, Mich., and Nowata, Okla., was at liberty today on $10,000 bond following his arrest in Springfield, Ill., yesterday on a 16-count indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud in an oil and gas well promotion scheme. Several St. Louisans were among his investors.

Borton was the second man named in the indictments returned by a federal grand jury at Danville, Ill. The first was Homer W. Snowden of Dallas, Tex., who also is at liberty on $10,000 bond. In addition to alleging use of the mails to defraud, the indictments charge they sold unregistered securities in violation of the Security and Exchange Commission laws.

Assistant United States Attorney John Morton Jones at Danville said the men sold oil leases for wells to be drilled in Texas, Colorado and Kentucky. Investors, it was learned, allegedly paid from $5000 to $50,000 for their interest in the leases.

46 SUED AS STATE SEEKS PAGE AVENUE RIGHT-OF-WAY

A condemnation suit to acquire right-of-way needed for widening of Page avenue in St. Louis county was filed against 46 property owners today by the State Highway Commission in circuit court at Clayton.

The two-lane thoroughfare ultimately will be widened to four lanes between Pennsylvania avenue and Lindbergh boulevard, a distance of about five miles. Property involved in the condemnation suit, the first of a number to be filed, is in a section extending one mile eastward from Lindbergh.

Egyptian Army 'Ready.'

CAIRO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Egypt's government-controlled radio announced today the Egyptian army has completed maneuvers using newly acquired Czech arms. The broadcast said the army is "now ready to repulse the enemy all along the armistice line and Egyptian frontier."

EGYPT OBJECTION TO WORLD BANK TERMS REPORTED

CAIRO, Feb. 2 (UP)—World Bank officials today considered Egypt's answer to proposals for financial assistance in the construction of the Aswan dam project.

The Egyptian reply was given in the fourth meeting between Bank President Eugene Black and Egyptian negotiators here last night. The answer remained a secret, but an informed source said it consisted of a set of counter-proposals to the bank's offer.

The source said that while Egypt objected to some of the bank terms, the door was still open for possible agreement.

Informants said that Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser was eager to reach agreement with the West but has not yet shelved the Soviet offer of help in building the dam.

The talks were recessed last night for a few days to give bank officials time to reach a decision on the Egyptian terms.

ROBBERS LEAVE 27 BIBLES IN AUTO USED IN HOLDUP

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 2 (AP)—Two young robbers last night stole the automobile of Bible salesman James K. Burns and used it in holding up a grocery where they stole $43.

When the car, which the robbers later abandoned, was recovered Burns checked his stock—27 Bibles, 24 necklaces inscribed with the Lord's prayer, 15 Bible-story books, and several crosses—and reported the robbers hadn't taken a single item.

RUSSIANS 'AFRAID OF GOD'

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 2 (UP)—The Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano said yesterday the Russians do not want audible prayers recited at the United Nations because they are "afraid of God."

The newspaper was commenting on Communist objections to the suggestion by United States chief delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., that U. N. Assembly meetings be opened with public prayers.

INDUSTRY SALES ROSE 13 PER CENT IN 1955

Manufacturers of Motor Vehicles Reported Biggest Increase.

The New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Manufacturers' sales last year topped those of 1954 by 13 per cent to reach a record of $317,000,000,000.

Figures compiled by the Office of Business Economics of the Department of Commerce showed that sales in December alone amounted to $27,000,000,000 compared with $24,200,000,000, in the corresponding month of 1954.

Last year's sales total for the durable goods industries, including automobiles, was $158,000,000,000, or 18 per cent higher than the 1954 total. All the major hard-goods industries reported sizable sales increases from the previous year. The motor vehicles and equipment industry showed the most substantial rise over the 1954 sales total.

Shipments of the non-durable goods industries during 1955 totaled $159,000,000,000, 8 per cent above 1954. The largest percentage increases were registered by the chemical, paper and rubber industries. Moderate advances occurred in sales of other major non-durable goods.

New orders received by manufacturers in December were 3 per cent higher than in November, the report showed, with most of the increase reported by aircraft companies. Unfilled orders rose $1,700,000,000 in December, entirely in the durable goods industries. Backlogs on Dec. 31, 1955 amounted to $55,500,000,000, or $9 billion more than at the end of 1954.

Manufacturers' inventories at the close of last year were estimated at $46 billion, an advance of $2,500,000,000. All but about $300,000,000 of the rise occurred in the durable goods industries where book values at year-end totaled $26,200,000,000. Nondurable goods inventories amounted to $19,800,000,000 at the end of 1955. Roughly half of the inventory rise during the year reflected higher replacement costs.

POTOMAC CHARTER REAFFIRMED BY EISENHOWER, EDEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Eden revived an all-but-forgotten document—the Potomac Charter.

In yesterday's "declaration of Washington," Mr. Eisenhower and Eden repeated that their countries already have proved their sincerity in seeking world peace. They cited such evidences as the Atlantic Charter, the United Nations Charter, the Pacific Charter and the Potomac Charter.

Practically everybody knew the first had to do with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the second with the U.N. and the third with the Southeast Asia collective defense. But the Potomac Charter?

This, it turned out, was the name given to the June 29, 1954, joint declaration by President Eisenhower and then Prime Minister Churchill after a conference.

In the Potomac Charter, Mr. Eisenhower and Churchill pledged "the hand of friendship" to any peace-seeking nation, reaffirmed belief in self-government, promised to persevere in seeking workable disarmament, upheld regional security development and promised to keep strong in opposing Communism.

FINAL BATTLE LINES DRAWN FOR NEW HAMPSHIRE VOTE

On the popularity side of the ballot, President Eisenhower is unopposed as a Republican and Senator Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, uncontested as a Democrat.

In the balloting for control of the state's delegation to the national conventions, however, both face opposition.

The Eisenhower slate will be pitted against one favorable to Senator Knowland (Rep.), California, who did not discourage the limited effort in his behalf.

Deadline for filing in the preference poll phase passed at 5 p.m. yesterday. The preference poll is merely advisory for convention delegates. The deadline for delegate filing is Feb. 11.

DEATH TOLL RISES TO 35 IN EUROPEAN COLD WAVE

LONDON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The death toll rose to 35 today in one of western Europe's worst cold waves of the century. Snow and ice stranded thousands of automobiles on highways and disrupted ship and rail traffic. Gas, electricity and water services were crippled in many cities.

Vacationists wore furs and overcoats as the first heavy snowfall in 15 years fell on the French Riviera. The first snow in 10 years also coated the adjacent Italian Riviera playground and whitened Mount Vesuvius near Naples.

Switzerland had its coldest day in 27 years with 23 below at some places. It was the coldest day in 14 years for Vienna—4 below zero.

10-STORY COTTON BELT BUILDING SOLD

New York Firm Acquires Downtown Structure for $2,100,000.

The 10-story Cotton Belt building at 111 North Fourth street has been sold to Winter-New York Corp. of New York City for $2,100,000, it was announced yesterday. Marvin Winter heads the concern.

Sellers were Morris and Louis Steinbaum of Steinbaum Realty Co.; David B. Shepley of Acme Realty Co.; Martin D. Larner and Louis Diener of Larner-Diener Realty Co., and Ben Poslosky.

The St. Louis group bought the Cotton Belt building in 1946 for $2,000,000 from a syndicate headed by Melvin Dubinsky. The Dubinsky syndicate had purchased it earlier the same year from the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

In the sale announced yesterday, $600,000 was reported to have been the down payment, leaving $1,500,000 of the purchase price to be financed. The transaction involved nine months of negotiations.

The building fronts 230 feet on Fourth street and 135 on Chestnut and Pine streets. It has 180,000 square feet of rental space, occupied principally by railroad and insurance company offices. Originally the Planters Hotel, the building was remodeled in 1923 as the Planters Building.

When the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co. moved into the building in 1930, the name was changed to the Cotton Belt building. The railway moved its headquarters to Tyler, Tex., in 1954. Equitable Life acquired the structure in 1940 by foreclosure.

In the sale to the New York concern, the sellers were represented by O. J. Brichler of Shaw, Brichler and Coleman Inc., Clayton. Bernard Rogin and Morton Roth, of William White and Sons Realty Co., New York, represented the purchasers.

FOURTH PACIFIC WEATHER BALLOON SENT UP IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (AP) — The United States Navy launched its fourth weather balloon in 17 days in a new attempt to float special recording instruments across the Pacific ocean on the jet stream.

The Navy said the big sphere was carring radio transmitting equipment "geared to reveal heretofore unknown meteorological data six miles over the Pacific ocean."

"Radio transmission, which failed on the third balloon, was reported excellent as the apparatus rose to its 30,000-foot traveling height," the Navy said.

The balloon was released at 5:24 p.m. (2:24 a.m., St. Louis time).

The first balloon, launched Jan. 17, fell in the sea 600 miles northeast of Hawaii. The second, released Jan. 21, crossed the ocean and came down in Mississippi but its instruments have not been found. Recording instruments on the third failed Jan. 31 and its fate is not known.

The Navy said another balloon would be launched tomorrow morning, "weather permitting."

COLOMBIA PAPER TO CLOSE AFTER ROW WITH CENSORS

BOGOTA, Colombia, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Liberal Daily El Espectador, one of Colombia's leading newspapers, has decided to go out of business following difficulties with government censors.

Gabriel Cano, owner and publisher, issued a statement yesterday accusing Interior Minister Lucio Pabon Nunez of raising obstacles to keep El Espectador from publishing again or to allow another newspaper to appear in its place.

El Espectador, one of several Colombian papers engaged in a running quarrel with the government's censors, had suspended publication Jan. 3 when it was fined for contempt and later accused of falsifying its income tax reports.

Cano and his family applied for permission to publish a paper to be called La Idea and another to be known as La Consigna.

RED CHINA BOOSTS STEEL OUTPUT, PLANS NEW PLANTS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—The United Nations said last night that Red China last year produced twice as much crude steel as in 1952 and laid plans for two new iron-and-steel mining and milling combines.

This was stated in the 1955 economic survey of Asia and the Far East, compiled by the United Nations Economic Commission for that region. It was issued here and at the commission's Bangkok headquarters.

The survey estimated mainland China's 1955 crude steel output at 27,000,000 metric tons. It said the new combines would be built in Wuhan and Paotow near big ore deposits recently discovered.

78 PER CENT OF RED CHINA'S PEASANTS 'IN CO-OPERATIVES'

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Red China said today more than 92,810,000 peasant families—"78 per cent of China's peasant households"—had joined farm co-operatives by the end of January.

Peiping radio said that 24,590,000 of the families are in "higher stage co-operatives." These latter presumably are those nearly ready to be converted into collective farms—the last stage of Communist China's present rural socialization drive.

Peiping had reported Jan. 3 that 60 per cent of China's peasant households had been placed in co-operatives.

Interesting Ways to Serve Potatoes

1955 Was Big Crop Year for Potatoes; Heavy Supplies Make Them a Fine Buy.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

IT was not by chance that we decided to feature potatoes this week; it was a thoughtful choice. The year 1955 was a big crop year for the homely spud, with a total of 381,631,000 bushels, or about 7 per cent larger than the 1954 production. Supplies are excellent both on a national and a local level, so it seemed like an opportune time to take a new look at this old favorite.

It pays to know your potatoes when you are marketing, so you may find this little table from the United States Department of Agriculture a helpful guide:

Russet Burbanks—Best for baking, may be used for frying and boiling.

Round russet types—All purpose potatoes.

To this we would add one word of warning: we agree that russet Burbanks may be boiled, but take our advice and be careful not to boil them too long.

Incidentally, Florida new potatoes are beginning to arrive in larger quantities and are approaching maturity so that they have that fine, delicate new-potato flavor.

In the accompanying feature on potatoes we did not include any recipes for sweets. We are not guilty of discrimination; merely of lack of space. Sweet potatoes also are in very good supply and are an excellent buy.

* * *

YOU certainly will get your money's worth if you put a head of cabbage into the market basket this week. And do consider broccoli; it is quite reasonable and really of outstanding quality, dark green with nice compact heads.

Here is a timely tip about corn—don't let the tarnished look of the outer shucks deceive you as to the quality of the kernels inside. Under normal circumstances a tired looking shuck might be a warning signal, but this is corn which we all know was subjected to unusual cold down Florida way and the fact that the outer covering was nipped a bit by frost does not necessarily indicate that the corn itself was damaged.

Lettuce is no problem; you may take your choice of iceberg, leaf, Bibb or Boston. Green onions for your salads are more plentiful and celery is in good supply. Peppers will be a little difficult pricewise only if you insist upon the big fancy ones; cucumbers are not only high but also irregular as to quality. On the other hand, prices are definitely cheaper on tomatoes.

There are plenty of northern yellow onions, with moderate amounts of the big Spanish ones.

The following vegetables rate the "OK" sign this week: Carrots, cauliflower, spinach, beets (with some in cellophane bags especially worth consideration), and mushrooms.

Those which have advanced in price include shallots, eggplant, squash and okra.

Variety items: Dandelion greens and cabbage sprouts from the Deep South; Mexican peas, and some Bulgarian hot peppers.

* * *

LOOK well to your citrus supplies these days when the villainous cold germ lurks around every corner. And a wide choice you have. Grapefruit is of superb quality. You may choose from California navel oranges or from Florida's pineapple, seedless Hamlin or Temple varieties.

You also may wish to investigate the recently developed Florida Ponkan variety. It is not too attractive in appearance, rather puffy and rugged looking, to be frank; but it has a delicious, distinctive flavor.

Tangerines are up a little on high side for best quality; tangeloes are few and far between.

We are well supplied with apples of almost every variety, including some fancy McIntosh and light supplies of Cortland. The latter variety has an endearing quality which makes it ideal for use in salads; it is a white-meated apple which does not darken nearly as quickly as most.

* * *

ALTHOUGH pork prices have advanced, it is still your best red-meat buy. All cuts are, of course, good values but there is one that is a real bargain and which is too often overlooked in this community, and that is fresh ham.

Beef is about steady with unusual values in pot roast and chuck roast. Although it certainly is not an economy item, some cuts of lamb (such as shoulder) are fairly reasonable; for a change, veal might be worth consideration.

Pommes de Terre Anna

These Pommes de Terre Anna are extremely simple, but they offer a welcome change from the customary boiled, baked or fried potatoes. Other interesting ways in which potatoes, now in excellent supply, may be served are suggested in the story below.

CHANCES are that you have some close friend to whom you know you can turn with complete confidence during any emergency, someone who would never let you down and to whom you are devoted but who is, you secretly confess to yourself, just a bit on the dull side. A fine person, "salt of the earth," but not too exciting. No dash, no sparkle, no scintillation.

All too often potatoes are cast in this same role. Homemakers know they are good old standbys, an accepted part of their daily lives, and can be depended upon for high food value at low cost. But they are not too exciting. No dash, no sparkle, no scintillation.

Now this is grossly unfair to the good old spud. The fault is not with the potato, but with the cook who has fallen into the habit of serving it always boiled, baked or fried. Given half a chance, the potato can become a sort of glamor gal of the vegetable kingdom.

It is interesting to note that a home economist for the United States Department of Agriculture recently assembled a list of 300 different ways of preparing potatoes. They may now be bought in many forms—frozen, in cans, and in packages. Newest member of the quick-frozen potato family is a potato patty made of finely shredded pieces of Maine potatoes, seasoned with salt and onion, then formed into oblong cakes and quick-frozen, all ready to be broiled or turned into hashed-brown potatoes. Surely there is a way to buy potatoes and a way to serve potatoes to fit the specific requirements of every household.

Here are just a few suggestions for varying the manner in which they come to your table:

Pommes de Terra Anna.
(Potatoes Anna).
Six medium potatoes.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon ground black pepper.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.

Pare potatoes. Cut into slices one-eighth inch thick and arrange a layer, with edges overlapping, in a buttered eight-inch round cake pan. Combine salt and black pepper, sprinkle over potatoes. Dot with one tablespoon butter or margarine.

Repeat, using remaining potatoes. Sprinkle with salt and black pepper. Dot with two tablespoons butter or margarine. Bake in a pre-heated moderate over (350 degrees) 45 minutes or until potatoes are tender and the top is golden brown. Turn out on a warm plate. Yield: Six servings.

Creme Fresh Mushroom and Potato Soup.
One-fourth cup chopped onions.
One cup beef stock.*
One cup mashed potatoes.
One tablespoon butter or margarine.
One cup hot milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon ground white pepper.
One-half cup heavy cream.
Chopped fresh parsley for garnish.
Three whole mushrooms, sliced.
One tablespoon butter or margarine.
One teaspoon fresh lemon juice.

Cook onions and mushrooms in beef stock for 15 minutes. Add potatoes, butter or margarine, hot milk, salt, white pepper and heat thoroughly. Stir in heavy cream and heat only until hot. Garnish with chopped fresh parsley and sliced mushrooms sauteed in butter and lemon juice. Yield: Four servings.

If desired, replace beef stock with one beef bouillon cube and one cup boiling water. The soup will be a darker color.

Ideal for a Lenten luncheon are

Crab Meat Stuffed Potatoes.
Three large potatoes.
One tablespoon butter or margarine.
One and three-fourths teaspoons salt.
One-fourth teaspoon ground black pepper.
One-half cup milk.
One six-ounce can crab meat, flaked.
One teaspoon fresh lemon juice.
Paprika.
Sprigs of parsley.

Bake large potatoes in very hot oven (450 degrees) 45 to 60 minutes or until tender when tested with a fork. Split, lengthwise, in halves. Scoop out inside. Mash and add butter or margarine, salt, black pepper and milk. Beat until fluffy. Add flaked crab meat and lemon juice; mix thoroughly. Refill potato shells. Place under broiler until brown. Garnish each with a dash of paprika and a sprig of parsley.

Note: These may be made a few hours before serving (store in refrigerator). Bake until brown in very hot oven (425 degrees).

Potato puff makes a fine company dish. But plan your meal hour so that the puff may be served right out of the oven. Like its temperamental sister, the souffle, it doesn't like waiting, so don't give it time to fall.

Potato Puff.
Two pounds potatoes, peeled and quartered, OR four cups mashed potatoes.
One-half cup butter or margarine.
One-eighth teaspoon nutmeg.
Two egg yolks, slightly beaten.
One-half cup light cream or milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
Two egg whites.

Boil potatoes in a small amount of salted water until tender, in a covered utensil about 15 to 20 minutes. Drain and mash well. Blend in butter. Add nutmeg, egg yolks, cream or milk, salt and pepper. Mix well. Fold in egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry.

Pour into a buttered one and one-half quart casserole and bake in a pre-heated 375 degree oven for 20 to 30 minutes. Test by inserting silver knife. It it comes out clean the souffle is done; serve at once.

Pretty and delicious are

Riced White Potatoes With Cheese Topping.
Six hot cooked potatoes.
One-half cup grated Cheddar cheese.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon ground black pepper.
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.

Peel potatoes and put through a potato ricer into a hot serving dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese, salt and black pepper. Top with pieces of butter or margarine. Yield: four to six servings.

* * *

Those delectable little new potatoes will be even better like this:

Herbed New Potatoes.
One inch boiling water in pan.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.
One-fourth teaspoon ground basil leaves.
Salt to taste.
One-eighth teaspoon ground black pepper.
Parsley for garnish.

Scrub new potatoes. Leave on skins. Cook until tender (about 30 minutes) in covered saucepan containing one inch boiling water and one-half teaspoon salt. Remove from pan and place in serving dish. Mix butter and margarine with ground basil and spread over hot potatoes. Sprinkle with salt and black pepper. Garnish with chopped parsley. Yield: four servings.

* * *

Venetian Potatoes.
Two pounds small new potatoes.
One inch boiling water in pan.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One clove garlic (optional).
One medium onion.
Two tablespoons finely chopped parsley.
One-fourth cup butter or margarine.

Wash and peel potatoes. Boil until tender in covered saucepan containing one inch boiling water and salt. Finely chop garlic, if used, and onion and add to the cooked potatoes along with the parsley. Saute in hot butter or margaine over low heat until potatoes are lightly browned. Yield: four to six servings.

SAUSAGE-APPLE DINNER

Arrange sausage links and apple rings in cold skillet. Add two or three tablespoons water. Cover and steam five minutes.

Drain and continue cooking over low heat until apples are tender and sausages are browned. Do not prick sausages. Takes 12 to 14 minutes.

A SKILLET SUPPER THAT IS VERSATILE

MOST women have a collection of recipes for "skillet suppers," but here is one so versatile that it is comparable to the little black dress which is a "must" in every wardrobe.

The recipe may be dressed up or down as desired and varied so that there is no danger of tiresome repetition. All you need is one cup of any meat or seafood that can be finely chopped or minced, one-half cup real mayonnaise and the same of fine bread crumbs, one-quarter cup each of minced onion and green pepper, an egg, seasonings and tomato sauce. Improvise as much as you wish with seasonings, add mushrooms to the sauce if you are in the mood, just be sure it always has a tomato base.

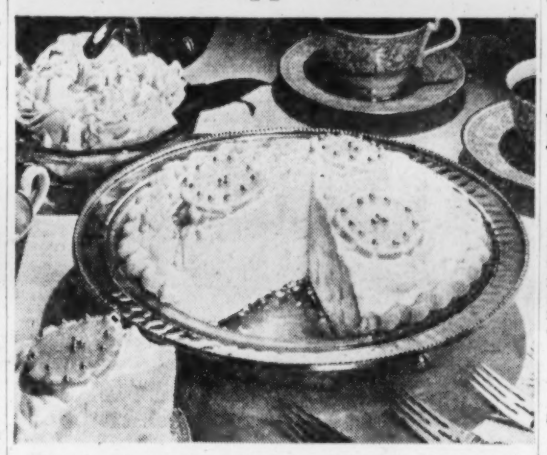

Since the Lenten season is so near, here is the tuna version of the recipe. Shrimp or crabmeat will fit in just as well for meatless meals. For meals with meat use one cup canned chicken or turkey, corned beef, hamburger, leftover lamb roast or similar ingredient.

20-Minute Skillet Supper.
One cup tuna (seven-oz. can).
One-half cup real mayonnaise.
One-half cup fine dry bread crumbs.
One-fourth cup minced green pepper.
One-fourth cup minced onion.
Salt and pepper.
One egg.
Two tablespoons water.
Sauce.

Mix tuna, mayonnaise, crumbs, green pepper, onion and seasonings well and shape into firm one-inch balls. Roll these in flour, then in slightly beaten egg and water, then in crumbs.

Saute slowly in 10-inch skillet until brown. Blend one eight-ounce can tomato (or spaghetti-mushroom, or other) sauce and one-fourth cup water and pour around balls. Simmer 10 minutes, uncovered. Yield: Four servings.

Lemon Pineapple Chiffon Pie

Here is a pie you can really serve with pride. Lemon and pineapple combine to give it delightful flavor; it is nearly three inches high when ready to serve. Note the attractive manner in which it is garnished.

PRETTY PARTY PIE TO CLIMAX MEAL

HERE is a pie that will introduce a note of elegance into your meal, yet you need not spend hours in the kitchen or be an expert cook to make it.

This Lemon Pineapple Chiffon Pie is light and fluffy and when ready to serve is nearly three inches high. The top is rolling with creamy mounds of goodness, the texture is wonderfully creamy, the taste extraordinarily good.

Lemon Pineapple Chiffon Pie.
One nine-inch pie shell, baked.
One tablespoon unflavored gelatine.
One-fourth cup cold water.
Four egg yolks, slightly beaten.
One-half cup fresh lemon juice.
One teaspoon grated lemon peel.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup sugar.
Four egg whites.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half cup heavy cream, whipped.
One-half cup crushed pineapple, drained.
One teaspoon grated lemon peel.

Soften gelatine in cold water. Beat egg yolks, add lemon juice, one teaspoon lemon peel, salt and one-half cup sugar. Cook over low heat until mixture is of custard consistency; add gelatin, stir to dissolve. Cool to room temperature; do not allow to set.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually beat in one-half cup sugar until whites hold in firm peaks. Fold cooked mixture into beaten egg whites, then fold in pineapple. Pour into baked pie shell. Chill for one hour or more. Garnish with whipped cream and one teaspoon grated lemon peel.

Let's get acquainted...

HELLO! This is my debut as a columnist and I must say that I am a little excited. Let me introduce my self. I am a homemaker and a mother engaged in the same daily business as you are: making a comfortable home for my family. I visited with many of you daily for many, many years on radio and television. I do hope that I can share with you the many problems and pleasures of the biggest job in the world . . . that of being a Homemaker.

By sharing our knowledge and experiences I believe all of us can, and will, lead happier, fuller lives, which in turn will be reflected in our homes, family and friends. I am eager to hear from you. And I am eager to help you in any way I can. All I ask is the opportunity. Now that you know I am human — yes, I can cry, laugh, and lose my temper with the best of you — let's get on to some of the things that have made days easier and happier for many of my friends as well as myself.

Heart of my heart

HEARTS OF EVERY SIZE are enjoying an extra throb this month, for that little cherub with his bow and arrow is hovering 'round and who knows where he'll aim? What fun I had the other night helping two sophomore boys decorate a Valentine "tree" for a party they're giving the Saturday before Valentine's Day. The "tree" was a collection of dry branches taken from the backyard bushes, sprayed white and anchored securely with wet sand in a white-sprayed scrub pail. The trimmings were candy and cooky hearts, and Valentines—with stunts to be performed by the recipient written on each one. I heard the boys' Mother ask that a small part of the "tree" be saved for use as a George Washington tree on the 22nd. Trimmed then with hatchets and bunches of cherries no doubt!

16 TONS!

AFTER HEARING THAT LIKABLE GUY, Ernie Ford, sing about 16 tons, not only do I realize that that's a lot of No. 9 coal, but I've started to measure a lot of things in tons, instead of dollars, cents, inches, and other means of appraisals. For example, I just found out that our 745 neighborly National Food Stores sell 26,000 tons of food a week. Maybe we can get Ernie to sing a song of twenty-six thousand tons, but meantime, we'll continue singing of service, because all the guys and gals at National are interested in just one thing—and that's tons of satisfaction for our customers.

Did You Say it?

"Experience has taught me that whenever anything is on the tip of my tongue, I should keep it there."

Be my Valentine

HERE'S A QUICK TRICK for making an eye-capturing Valentine dessert that looks like Valentine's Day and tastes good. Cut a plain loaf cake in 1 inch slices, using a heart shaped cookie cutter or an aluminum salad mold. Frost each heart shaped cake generously with your most delectable white frosting, saving some to which you'll add pink and green vegetable coloring to make decorative flowers and leaves. This is a dessert that will make your club members ask questions!

One of the easiest-to-make, least-pensive creamy frostings is made with Swift'sing, powdered sugar, milk, salt and vanilla. If you'd like the recipe just drop me a post card.

52 washdays in a row

NOT ALL HOMEMAKING ACTIVITIES are confined to a home. Visiting one of our laboratories this morning I found everyone concentrating on the washability of the fabrics under consideration for our new check-out girls' uniforms. 52 launderings will be made before the decision is reached. We're equally thorough in our Natco jelly and preserve lab: constant evaluation of ingredients, consistency and flavor, to be absolutely sure that only the finest finished product bearing the Natco label gets on your shelf. Yes! National's in the homemaking business, too!

★ ★ ★

I'm looking forward to hearing from you and I'll be visiting with you next week at this same time. Until then, a National's shopping-bag full of good wishes to you!

Yours for satisfaction,
Betty Nafco

MILTON EISENHOWER IS MUM ON POLITICS

Here for Address Tonight, He Confines Discussion to Education.

Milton Eisenhower, younger brother of the President refused to say anything here today about politics or federal affairs.

He started an interview by saying that he would avoid those subjects entirely, obviously expecting questions about President Eisenhower's health and whether he would run again, and about an increasing mention of himself as a possible candidate.

Asked what he did feel free to discuss, in view of his position as the President's brother and close adviser, he said he would limit himself to the field of education. He is president of Pennsylvania State University.

He admitted a reporter to his room at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson, a room that had been taken not in his name but in that of a Boy Scout Council official. Eisenhower is to be the principal speaker tonight at the council's annual banquet, at 6:30 p.m. at the Sheraton-Jefferson.

Shown Magazine Article.

He was shown a magazine article just published in the American Mercury magazine, entitled "What Makes Milton Run." It said: "All the earmarks of the highly professional build-up job that was done for Wilkie in the six months preceding the 1940 convention are now in evidence in the mysterious word-of-mouth chatter about Milton Eisenhower."

Saying he had not seen it, he glanced at the title and opening paragraphs, smiled, said nothing, and handed it back.

He had an appointment this morning with officials of Washington and St. Louis universities, and said he planned to tell them the results of some research his university has been doing in instruction by closed-circuit television.

Success Reported.

Now in its second semester of trial, the TV method has been a "complete success," and he would recommend that other universities use it, he said. The operation is being financed by the Ford Foundation, and the university is to make its conclusions available to other schools.

More than 900 volunteer Scout leaders and community representatives were expected to attend the banquet at the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel.

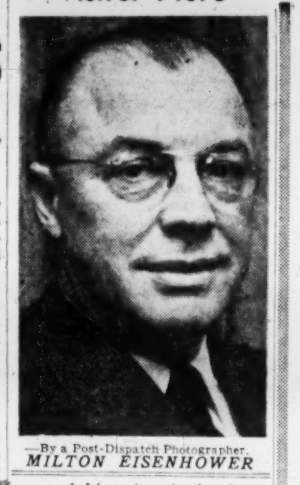

Council officers for 1956 will be installed, the annual report of the council will be given and 16 Silver Beaver awards will be presented in a program prior to Milton Eisenhower's address.

The Silver Beaver is the highest award of Boy Scouts of America for outstanding volunteer leadership on the local council level for 10 years or more, a Scout official said.

In 1953 President Eisenhower appointed Milton Eisenhower special ambassador and personal representative on Latin American affairs. He also was a member of the President's Committee on Government Organization.

His speech here will be broadcast from 8:30 to 9 o'clock tonight over Post-Dispatch radio station KSD.

DECEMBER BOOSTED CONSUMER DEBTS BILLION DOLLARS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that the public increased its debt for consumer goods and loans during December by more than one billion dollars.

This made December the second biggest single consumer credit month on record. It reflected the record-breaking Christmas season last year. The record increase of $1,180,000,000 was in December 1952.

The increase last December brought total consumer debt at the end of 1955 to the record amount of $36,225,000,000. This was $6,100,000,000 higher than a year earlier.

ELECTRICAL DEFECT BLAMED IN FATAL BALTIMORE FIRE

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2 (AP)—Investigators say the Arundel Park fire, which took the lives of 10 women last Sunday and injured about 200 other persons, probably was caused by a defective electrical connection.

County Police Chief Wilbur C. Wade said a small blaze was first discovered licking at the eaves of the wooden-roofed building in which the Holy Name Society of St. Rose of Lima Church was holding an oyster roast. About 1200 were attending the affair.

Wade said a man was stopped from training a garden hose on the blaze by another, who shouted, "Don't do that, there's an open electrical connection up there." Wade said "Some men went inside the building and got a fire extinguisher with which they subdued the blaze. They thought they had put it out, but perhaps they didn't."

About 20 minutes later fire broke out in the kitchen area, near the place it had first been discovered, and spread all over the building.

The Elmer Rices Part.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Pulitzer prize playwright Elmer Rice and actress Betty Field have separated after 14 years of marriage. They have been apart since Nov. 26, but the split-up came to light only yesterday when they agreed in state supreme court on custody of their three children. Terms of the agreement were not announced.

BARKLEY FAVORS $5,000,000 FOR RIVERFRONT PLAN

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Senator Alben W. Barkley (Dem.) Kentucky, chairman of the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission, urged the House Appropriations Committee today to approve a request for $5,000,000 to continue work on the St. Louis riverfront project.

Barkley expressed surprise that he was still a member of the commission. He said he made a move to resign from that body after he left the Senate to become Vice President in 1949 but added that his interest in the project remained undiminished.

In a letter to Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), of St. Louis, Barkley made no comment on Karsten's suggestion of a possible meeting of the commission, which last met in 1949.

"I am under the impression that I am no longer connected with this project," Barkley wrote to Karsten. "During the life of Mr. Luther Ely Smith, who as you know was very active for years in this worthy enterprise, I expressed the feeling that since I was no longer a member of the Senate I should resign from the commission and let somebody who was in the Senate take my place."

Barkley said he therefore understood he was "relieved of any connection with the commission and project."

"This does not in any way lessen my interest in it," he continued. "I am, therefore, sending to the Appropriations Committee a brief statement urging that they include the $5,000,000 suggested in order that the work may be started and carried forward as promptly as possible to ultimate accomplishment."

In a postscript, he added: "I thought I had been succeeded as chairman of the Commission, but I see from the Congressional Directory that I am still carried as chairman."

VANDALS RUIN OIL PORTRAIT OF EX-SCHOOL HEAD

Plans for replacing an oil portrait of the late Charles Banks, former University City school superintendent, which was damaged beyond repair at the senior high school by vandals the night of Jan. 20, will be discussed at a meeting of the University City Board of Education tonight.

The 20-by-24-inch painting, on wood fiberboard, was found to have a three-inch hole in the right side, cause apparently by an object like a bottle being thrown at it. School Superintendent Robert S. Gilchrist said. Night janitors at work cleaning the building reported seeing no intruders.

The $500 painting hung in the first-floor hall near the school auditorium which is named for Banks. It was painted by Fred Conway, St. Louis artits, who was paid with money contributed by teachers after Banks's death in January 1951. He served as superintendent 19 years before retiring in 1944.

Adm. Pride in New Post.

DISCRIMINATION IN TV LICENSES IS DENIED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — Warren E. Baker, general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, underwent vigorous questioning yesterday on whether the FCC "discriminates" against newspapers seeking radio and television licenses.

In response to dozens of questions put to him at a House Commerce subcommittee hearing, Baker said the FCC did not discriminate against any applicant. He said the commission did take into consideration an applicant's newspaper interests but only to determine if there might be an undue concentration of control over the mediums for mass communications in the area involved in the application.

He referred the subcommittee, which is studying a number of bills to amend the federal communications law, to a statement by the commission, which states:

"While the commission has followed a policy of giving weight, in appropriate circumstances, to the factor of diversification of the media of mass communications, that factor has never been an absolute one.

"Moreover, the figures with respect to newspaper ownership of radio and television stations demonstrate conclusively that this policy has not operated as a bar to newspaper applicants. Thus, as of January, 1955, newspapers had some interest in over 30 per cent of the television stations operating in the United States."

Representative Beamer (Rep.), Indiana, responded that although the FCC might feel it had not engaged in discrimination there were a number of newspaper publishers who feel quite differently.

Beamer will appear later as a witness to discuss specific cases.

Representative Heselton (Rep.), Massachusetts, asked Baker to prepare a brief of commission actions in which newspapers were involved as applicants.

Among bills before the subcommittee are two that would prohibit the FCC from adopting any rule which would "discriminate" against any person because of ownership or association with any medium "primarily engaged in the gathering and dissemination of information." They also would prohibit the commission from denying an application solely because of such ownership, interest or association.

SIX IN FAMILY DIE IN FIRE, FATHER BLOWN TO SAFETY

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 2 (AP)—A woman and five children perished in a fire that destroyed their home in a matter of minutes in a suburban area five miles east of Portland last night.

Only the father, Arthur Merrill Graham, escaped. He said he got out only because an explosion, presumably of an oil heater, blew him through a window.

The dead were: Mrs. Graham, her children, Richard Michael, 7 years old; Susan May, 5; Kathleen Joan, 3; Arthur Merrill Jr., 2; and a nephew, Gerald Edward Myers, 13.

INTERPOSITION RESOLUTION IS VOTED IN VIRGINIA

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright 1956 by the New York Times Co.)

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2—Virginia's Legislature approved a resolution of interposition yesterday challenging the United States Supreme Court's ruling that outlawed segregated public schools.

After simultaneous debate in the Legislature's two branches, identical measures were approved, 36 to 2 in the 40-member Senate and 90 to 5 in the 100-member House of Delegates.

The resolution as approved called the decision an "illegal encroachment" on the state's sovereignty. It asked for an amendment to the United States Constitution to decide a "question of contested power" between the Federal Government and the states.

The votes completed legislative action to invoke the doctrine of interposition. It is so named because the state seeks to interpose its sovereignty between the people and the Federal Government in an effort to retain what it consider unsurrendered constitutional rights. Chief sponsor was State Senator Harry Stuart of Russell county, great-nephew of Jeb Stuart, Confederate general.

Virginia took the lead among southern states in deciding how far it would go in protesting against the decision of May 17, 1954, which declared segregated public schools unconstitutional.

Governors of Virginia, South Carolina, and Mississippi agreed on Jan. 23 to work separately in their states for interposition short of nullification. Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia, also at the meeting, favored for his state a declaration that the federal decision was null and void.

Yesterday's debate centered on the question of how far Virginia's resolution actually went. Delegate W. Taylor Murphy, a member of the legislative commission that decided on a seperate pending program to limit compulsory integration, summed up the proponent's view.

Virginia, he said, is going "as far as possible short of nullification" in protesting against the court's decision. The state, he added, is "blazing a trial that many of our sister states will follow."

Delegate Edward Hudgins of Chesterfield, son of the Chief Justice of Virginia's Supreme Court, said he considered the resolution short of nullification. "It smacks not of defiance but firmly of our intention to maintain our inherent rights," he said. "The best way to preserve a strong nation is to preserve the states as a potent political unity."

In the Senate, Harry F. Byrd Jr., son of Virginia's senior United States Senator, closed the debate by saying he was not concerned by the word illegal." He said, it is our duty to resist illegal encroachment."

Critics called the proposal nullifying, unclear or ineffective.

In its final form, the resolution declares that all powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitutoin, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states. . . . or to the people." Among this it includes the power to operate racially separate schools.

Blast at Home of Former N.A.A.C.P. State President.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 2 (AP)—A bomb exploded last night in the front yard of E. D. Nixon, former state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. No injuries were reported.

Nixon, a Negro Pullman car porter, had been on a trip to Chicago and was not due back in Montgomery until later last night. His wife and an unidentified girl were watching television in the home when the explosion occurred.

Nixon tried unsuccessfully to attend the Jefferson-Jackson day dinner for Democratic party leaders at Birmingham last summer. He was refused an invitation and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan canceled his engagement to speak at the dinner.

The home of a Negro minister, the Rev. L. L. King Jr., was bombed about the same time Monday night. There were no injuries in the Monday night explosion either.

The Rev. Mr. King has been the most outspoken leader in the prolonged bus boycott which Negroes have carried out since Dec. 5 in protest against segregation on Montgomery busses. Nixon has been outspoken in other racial issues, but his name has not been mentioned in connection with the bus boycott.

Five Negro women filed a suit yesterday asking that Alabama and Montgomery transportation segregation laws be declared unconstitutional. The suit is the outgrowth of the bus boycott.

The nullification resolution, which cleared the Legislature two weeks ago, didn't get back to the House of Representatives where it originated before the chamber adjourned yesterday, thereby becoming an act automatically.

Gov. Folsom had until yesterday to return it with his disapproval if he wanted to exercise his executive veto prerogative to attempt to keep it from going into effect.

The Governor, who was a spectator in the House during a battle on reapportionment, told reporters he had taken no action on the resolution and was washing his hands of the matter.

The resolution contends Alabama never surrendered to the Federal Government its sovereignty to operate separate public schools for the races and that for this reason any Supreme Court decision to the contrary is "null, void and no effect" in this state.

An interposition resolution has been introduced in the South Carolina General Assembly by members of the state's special segregation study committee. Adoption is expected next week. The resolution declares that South Carolina will exercise "all powers reserved to it to protect its sovereignty and the rights of its people."

Under the interposition process if more than one-fourth of the states interpose their rights on this question, Congress will be asked to submit a constitutional amendment for approval of the entire United States to clarify the rights of the states.

NO OBJECTIONS TO H-BOMB TEST, JAPAN TELLS U.S.

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Japan has informed the United States it has no objection to proposed hydrogen bomb tests in the Pacific this year, but has asked that precautions be taken, Kyodo News Service said today.

Through a request filed in Washington Jan. 20 by Ambassador Sadao Iguchi, Japan reportedly asked that:

1. Advance notice of the place, time and size of the danger zone be given.
2. Warning on the scale and expected damage of the experiment be issued.
3. Compensation be made for any damage resulting from the test.

The Japanese fishing boat Lucky Dragon was dusted with radio-active fallout after the American H-bomb test March 1, 1954, at Bikini atoll. One crew member died. The incident touched off an angry reaction throughout Japan, the world's only atom-bombed nation.

LACLEDE GAS PAYS CITY $536,491 RECEIPTS TAX

Laclede Gas Co. has paid the city $536,491, representing the 5 per cent gross receipts tax for the period from last July 1 to Dec. 31, the company announced today.

For the same period in 1954, Laclede's payment was $497,600.

STEVENSON TAGS DULLES POLICY AS 'NONSENSE'

Defends 'Egg Heads'—Accuses G. O. P. of 'Playing Loose' With Civil Rights.

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, seeking California's support for his second Democratic presidential bid, last night accused the Eisenhower Administration of "nonsense" in the conduct of American foreign policy.

In a speech in which he defended "egg heads," Stevenson charged the Republicans with "playing fast and loose with individual rights in the name of internal security."

The former Illinois Governor told a box lunch dinner audience estimated by sponsors at 3600 that the Eisenhower Administration has failed to recognize the problems of the future. In fact, he said, it is just beginning to do something about the problems of the past.

Newsstand Foreign Policy.'

He said this country cannot afford to conduct its foreign policy with "alternate hot and cold declarations," such as "unleashing Chiang Kai-shek, massive retaliation, liberating the satellites and all that nonsense."

"You can't conduct foreign policy from a newsstand," he added. "You certainly can't conduct it with conflicting statements from the President, the Secretary of State . . . especially when abetted by those part-time Secretaries of State, Senator William F. Knowland and Vice President Nixon."

Speaking in the Civic Auditorium of Oakland, Knowland's home town, Stevenson noted the presence of people from the University of California and Mills College, both nearby, and said: "I am not one of those who believes all students are dangerous or professors subversive."

Then Stevenson touched on the matter of the "eggheads." The term, applied to him by opponents during his 1952 campaign against Eisenhower, has become linked with intellectuals.

'Era of Anti-Intellectualism.'

Declaring "we are living in an era of anti-intellectualism," he brought a roar from the crowd with the statement: "I say, eggheads of the world, arise! I was going to add, you have nothing to lose but your yolks."

In an earlier speech, Stevenson warned Democrats against over-confidence in the 1956 presidential race. He told a meeting of AFL-CIO leaders in the AFL labor temple: "When you have the coincidence of big money and big business and a big press in possession of the Government, you have a very formidable situation indeed."

Stevenson said he has sensed confidence in Democratic prospects on the West Coast but he added: "I suggest that maybe the situation of the Democratic party in the forthcoming campaign isn't as comfortable as some of you may expect."

He said he hoped his listeners would support him this year, but if they see fit not to he expresed hope they would still vote for a Democrat.

MADRID STUDENTS DEMAND END TO FALANGE CONTROL

MADRID, Feb. 2 (AP)—Madrid university students yesterday demanded an end to Falange party control over the "thought, expression and corporate life" of Spanish universities.

The complaint was in an open letter to "the government of the nation, the Minister of National Education and the Secretary General of the Movement (Falange party)." The Falange is the only political party in Spain.

It was the latest outward sign of the unrest in Spain's universities. About 10,000 students went out on strike last month in protest against the government's policy of issuing industrial engineer licenses.

The letter attacked the Spanish University Syndicate which is run by the Falange. The syndicate has complete control over students and their activities, and acts as their representative with higher authorities.

The letter demanded the calling of a national congress of Spain's 100,000 university students to work out some other form of organization.

INTER-AMERICAN JURISTS OPPOSE 3-MILE SEA LIMIT

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2 (UP)—The third assembly of the Inter-American Jurists Council yesterday approved by a vote of 15 to 1 a resolution against the three-mile maritime limit.

Only the United States voted against the resolution which said the three-mile limit was inadequate and not a normal part of international law. The resolution held that each state is competent to set its own sea boundary within "reasonable limit."

As a result, Ecuador and Peru have picked up some American fishing boats in past years for fishing in their waters and Mexico has done the same in the Gulf of Mexico with American shrimp boats. In some of these cases, the American owners had to pay fines.

A Quarter of a Century of Progress

We feel a natural pride in the robust condition of Tom-Boy, and its constantly growing stature as an important and progressive influence in the life of St. Louis and the surrounding Missouri and Illinois areas these stores serve.

Yet, our spirit on this occasion is essentially a spirit of appreciation rather than pride. We are enormously grateful for having had the opportunity of growing up among courageous neighbors, in a dynamic community. This has been a quarter century of brilliant progress in the economic and social development of the vast area in which Tom-Boy Stores are located.

Tom-Boy has flourished because its early life has been molded to the modern spirit of bold imagination and restless ambition. We have lived as St. Louis and our neighbors have lived, unhampered by stuffy tradition, moving forward steadily toward greater tomorrows. Tom-Boy merchants have been privileged to share the responsibilities of community leadership, working hard to achieve even higher standards of social welfare, helping to plan and produce ever-expanding economy.

The remarkable achievements of the St. Louis community during the last twenty-five years are cause for immense gratification; the challenging prospects of an even brighter future are a source of inspiration.

Yes, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Alton, northern and southern parts of Missouri and Illinois and all other areas wherein a Tom-Boy Store is located will continue to grow, and Tom-Boy will keep pace, and with sure confidence that the best years of our lives are ahead of us.

AEC PREPARING BIGGER ATOMIC AID PROGRAM

Strauss Says New Plans for Assistance to Allies Follow Panel's Proposals.

The New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—The Atomic Energy Commission said last night that it was preparing new proposals to provide "still greater assistance to friendly countries in the development and use of peaceful atoms."

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss said that the proposals would carry forward the "atoms-for-peace" program of President Eisenhower. He also indicated that they would harmonize with recommendations made Tuesday by a citizens panel on the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The panel, headed by Robert McKinney, newspaper publisher of Santa Fe, N.M., urged this country to exert world leadership by providing in the next few years facilities for atomic power abroad at least as fast as it did at home.

It further asked the Government to call a series of regional conferences with friendly countries to work out "realistic goals for installing atomic electric generating plants."

In connection with these conferences, the panel proposed that United States announce that it was prepared to provide materials and skills and to permit contracts for installing "at least 1,000,000 kilowatts of atomic generating capacity outside the United States as soon as possible—he hope by 1960."

Government officials said that if the panel's suggested goal were to be realized, this country would have to move with considerable speed.

Strauss said that the commission would "study and give thoughtful consideration to the findings and recommendations of the panel and thereby profit in accelerating the transition from the former Government monopoly to a free enterprise atomic energy industry."

Some of these recommendations, he added, have already been initiated and are "well along toward accomplishment."

The chairman of the Congressional Joint Atomic Energy Committee, meanwhile, summed up generally favorable congressional reaction to the McKinney panel's report. Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, described the report "as a very fine piece of work."

He especially hailed the proposal that this country give other nations atomic "know-how" for power generation. Much more information than is now being released can undoubtedly be made available, he said.

By the Associated Press.

Strauss said the Government is letting out all the information it can on progress toward harnesing power of the H-bomb for peaceful use.

"This is being done, to the fullest extent, consistent with the requirements of national security," Strauss said.

Meanwhile, a congressional hearing produced a fleeting hint that America's atomic scientists may be planning, if not working, on a hydrogen bomb with the force of 50,000,000 tons of TNT.

In addition, a House Government Operations subcommittee heard a noted automic authority, Dr. A. G. Hill, testify that:

1. The nation's defensive strength is lagging behind offense at a time when the threat of Russian atomic weapons and the ability to deliver them "is growing worse all the time."

2. In addition to the growing radar network to spot enemy planes, another system is needed to flash a warning against intercontinental guided missiles.

3. An earth satellite to detect planes or missiles 2000 miles away would have to go up 400 or 500 miles and "be about as big as the Pentagon."

Hill is a profesor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and scientific director of the weapons evaluation group of the Joint Chiefs of Staf. He was a witness at a hearing taht is exploring the strengthening of civil defenses.

At one point, he nodded agreement when thes ubcommittee chairman, Representative Holifield (Dem.), California, said he believed a study in which Hill participated had mentioned a hydrogen bomb that would "go up as high as 50 megatons."

Such a weapon would have a force 25,000 times the power of the atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima, and roughly three times thre punch reported unofficially for a hydrogen bomb tested in the Pacific in the spring of 1954.

BENSON SAYS M'KAY IS MAN TO BEAT MORSE

Asserts Defeat of Oregon Senator Is Important Task Before the Republicans.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 2 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson militantly defended Administration farm policies and put in a plug for a cabinet colleague as a possible senatorial candidate in a stop between planes at Spokane, Wash., last night.

Benson said Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, former Oregon governor, was the Republican party's best hope of capturing the seat now held by Senator Morse (Dem.), Oregon.

"Next to the election of Mr. Eisenhower, the defeat of Wayne Morse is the most important task before the Republicans," he said.

McKay was proposed here earlier as the logical man to try to unseat Morse by Washington's G.O.P. national committeeman Harlan Peyton. McKay's name entered the picture after the death of Oregon's Gov. Paul L. Patterson Tuesday night. Gov. Patterson suffered a fatal heart attack as he was conferring with political advisers on the campaign he had announced he would make to unseat Morse.

Benson, who was to address the National Association of Grain Growers at Portland today and fund-raising luncheons in eastern Washington Friday, called the Administration's proposed farm measures a "billion dollar pus program."

"Everywhere I find farmers are thinking too soundly to expect or want any white rabbit solutions to their problems," he said. "They expect programs that are economically sound and fair to all our people. And they want these programs on a voluntary basis with the Government co-operating, not dictating—programs which help them to help themselves."

In his talk prepared for the wheat growers association, Benson said present surpluses must be removed before any Government program can be effective in boosting prices and incomes of wheat farmers.

Urging quick congressional enactment of new farm recommendations by President Eisenhower, Benson said they provided means of reducing surpluses.

Many wheat farmers are urging the Government to adopt a "domestic parity program" for wheat. Under it, prices of wheat for domestic food consumption would be supported, but wheat for export and nonfood uses would be allowed to drop to lower market levels.

Benson promised to give the idea consideration in the future, but he added:

"No wheat program is going to be successful so long as a big surplus of wheat overhands the market. This carryover supply would seriously handicap a domestic parity program just as it weighs down present law."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP)—Chairman Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, today urged a quick showdown in his Senate Agriculture Committee on the Omnibus farm bill, but some committee members were dragging their feet.

He told reporters he is determined to get a committee vote on the farm bill Saturday and report the bill to the Senate the same day. He said a delay would delay action considerably because of the Senate's annual Lincoln day recess.

Senator George D. Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, the ranking G.O.P. committee member, said the committee probably will not be ready to vote on the complex bill by Saturday. He said the Senate can not consider the bill until after the Lincoln day speechmaking anyway.

Some other committee members were said to share Aiken's opinion.

Ellender and Aiken agreed the group made progress toward drawing up the terms of a soil bank at two long sessions on the bill yesterday. They gave no details, and the 109-page draft of the bill remained secret.

The final bill was expected to come out of the committee with a soil bank, a two-price system for rice and a return to rigid price props at 90 per cent of parity.

Asked whether the 90-per cent provision might provoke a presidential veto, Ellender said he doubted it. The reply reflected the view that Mr. Eisenhower would not disapprove a bill that contained key points of his farm program like the soil bank even if it also contained the rigid price supports which he opposes.

PSYCHIATRIC TESTS URGED TO WEED OUT CRAZY DRIVERS

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa., Feb. 2 (AP)—Psychiatric tests could do much to curtail America's traffic accidents, says Amos E. Neyhart, head of the Institute of Public Safety at Pennsylvania State University. Emotionally unstable people are bad traffic risks, he says, and bad attitudes are important factor in many crashes.

He says that psychiatric checks on stability and attitudes could be an important addition to driver training as a means of reducing accidents.

He is an expert on driver training, having conducted the first course in driver training in University Park in 1934. He says a poorly trained driver is twice as likely to have accidents as is a well-trained driver.

Assassination of Remon Shaping Up as Political Issue in Panama

Son of Late President's Successor Who Was Jailed Before Beginning Investigation Keeps Matter Alive.

By EDWIN A. LAHEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Jose Ramon Guizado Jr. is one of the reasons why the police and government officials in the Republic of Panama can't keep the assassination of President Jose Antonio Remon swept under the bed permanently.

Guizado, 30-year-old civil engineer educated at Washington University in St. Louis, is the son of Jose Ramon Guizado, who succeeded the late President Remon as chief executive of Panama, and who is now in jail for complicity in the Remon assassination.

"There's only one reason why the National Assembly framed my father and sent him to jail," said Guizado.

"The reason is that my father intended to make a diligent investigation of the assassination of President Remon, and certain people in Panama couldn't stand that investigation."

Belief Is Shared.

Guizado's belief is shared by many investigators who have studied the Remon murder. Included in this group are criminologists, brought to Panama after Guizado assumed the Presidency, to investigate the crime.

Some of these criminologists have since charged that they were hampered in their investigation by police and other officials of the Panama government.

Young Guizado, who visited Washington this week, has assumed the Guizado family business interests in Panama. These include a construction firm and the agency for a number of large United States manufacturing corporations.

He has taken on the added task of keeping up the fight for his father's vindication.

He has sought official intervention by the United States State Department but has not received any encouragement here.

While many United States officials have been indignant about the assassination of Remon and its aftermath, the scandal remains an internal matter for the little republic, the State Department feels.

Political Issue.

Guizado said he was convinced the "frame-up" of his father, and the "unsolved" assassination of President Remon, would become a bitter issue in the elections to be held in Panama this spring.

"The Liberal party, which is the opposition to the present government coalition, held a convention in December and officially made an issue of the injustice in the Guizado case," the young engineer said.

Guizado said his father had incurred the enmity of members of the Panamanian oligarchy when he assumed office by blocking a loan-out of the social security fund for some private shrimp fishing interests.

The loan, totaling $450,000, was made to private interests out of the public funds after the impeachment trial of President Guizado, young Guizado said.

"But the real reason for my father's plight is that he made the solution of the Remon killing the No. 1 order of business when he took office," Guizado declared.

PEER BLOWN OUT OF BED BY SONIC BOOM OF JET

LONDON, Feb. 2 (INS)—A Royal Air Force jet plane streaked through the sound barrier and the resulting "sonic bang" blew an elderly peer of the realm out of bed.

Lord Charles Ian Teviot, 81 years old, of Newberry, protested vigorously in the House of Lords. When he complained, the indignant peer added, the Air Force added insult to injury by asking him the type and number of the offending airplane.

"I was blown out of bed," he declared, "everything was blown out and the curtains were blown all over the place. How on earth was I to say what kind of plane it was or what its number was?

"That sort of thing is irritating beyond words."

ARMY TRANSLATES U.S. SLANG FOR FOREIGN SOLDIERS

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J., Feb. 2 (UP)—The latest addition to this Army Signal Corps center is colloquial communications. It seems soldiers of other nations often have trouble "digging" American talk even when they know English.

To assist foreigners who stumble over such Americanisms as "in hot water," "snowed under" and some of the more esoteric jargon such as "man, it's so cool, I'm sweating," the Army set up what it calls the extra-curricular English training program.

Emphasis is placed chiefly on the typical. Grammar is of secondary importance. At least 30 minutes of each session are devoted to slang expressions which students bring in for clarification.

But sometimes even the instructors are stumped.

Recently a Brazilian major asked for a definition of "hubba-hubba." While the experts were pondering a satisfactory translation, a Japanese major, with a few unmistakable gestures, translated the term into international lingo.

Keeping His Record Clean.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn.—(UP)—Arthur E. Benoit was especially relieved when police told him it wasn't his fault that a truck had forced his automobile into a stop sign. Benoit, who is 84, had been driving since 1905 without an accident.

New Dog Food Discovery—"Silent Scent" Helps Make Even Finicky Dogs Hungry

"Dogs Live in a World of Smells"

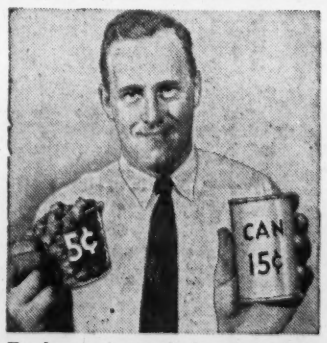

"... That's what led to 'Silent Scent' discovery," says Dr. J. Wesley Nelson.

A fine Collie like this has a keen sense of smell that helps him in his work of herding livestock and protecting property. Even at night, he can detect an intruder—when you can't. His nose tells him. Dogs live in a world of smells. Dr. J Wesley Nelson and his team of Nutrena scientists and kennel authorities found "Silent Scent" by watching thousands of dogs react to this "world of smells."

Make this bowl test right in your own home. Put Nutrena Dog Food in one bowl; put any other dog food in another bowl. Let your dog in. Watch him go for that "Silent Scent"! Now switch the bowls. Nutrena bets he'll still go for the Nutrena Dog Food. We've passed this test with thousands of dogs. Get a box of Nutrena today—and give your dog the bowl test. He'll love it!

Feed a cup instead of a can . . . Save up to 70¢ per week—$35 per year—when you feed Nutrena. And, a 16-oz. can of dog food contains about 11 oz. of water! Nutrena, meal or nuggets, gives you 5 full oz. of nutrition. You add the water yourself—and save money.

Nutrena scientists capture elusive aroma that gives Nutrena Dog Food utterly new eat-appeal

Dog owners have a better way to feed their tail-wagging friends today, thanks to scientists who were curious enough to find an odor that no human could smell.

After years of research, Nutrena's research team has at last discovered the elusive aroma that makes dogs hungry. We call it "Silent Scent" because humans can't smell it, but dogs can.

And now, Nutrena has blended this mysterious appetite aroma into our nutrition-packed Nutrena Dog Food. This means that at last you can get the economy of a dry dog food—plus a new chop-lickin' eat-appeal. So now you can stop feeding expensive, messy canned or frozen dog food!

And you can try Nutrena Dog Food with "Silent Scent" at no cost to you! See the coupon below to find out how Nutrena will give you 50¢ in cash for a 34¢* box top—plus your opinion of Nutrena!

TENLEY ALBRIGHT WINS OLYMPIC GOLD MEDAL

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

Carter Loses but Future Is Undecided.

IF YOU watched the fight between Jimmy Carter and Cisco Andrade with a view to trying to determine whether Carter has slipped far enough to be counted out of the lightweight picture, you know as little now as you did before the bout.

Andrade got the split decision in Chicago Stadium with one judge and the referee voting for him by a point while the other judge voted for Carter by two points.

This writer thought Carter had the decision wrapped up by four points, judging from the TV version, which is admittedly not comparable to a ringside seat, when it comes to judging a fight.

Those who voted for Andrade apparently gave more weight to his tap-tap-tap lefthand than they did to the fewer, but booming, punches which Carter landed.

The former three-time 135-pound champion seemed sharp enough in his punching and powerful when he landed. So powerful, in fact that in the fourth round he rocked Andrade with a righthand which buckled Cisco's knees and seemed to have him headed for the way out.

Andrade, however, recovered nicely and covered well. He was also aided by a break when, as Carter was moving in for the kill, Jimmy slipped and fell to his haunches.

It appeared to be only a slip and the referee so ruled it but ringside reports indicate that the slip may have been induced by Andrade's lefthand.

Carter Tries for Kayo.

CARTER seemed very intent in the last few rounds upon landing a knockout wallop for he was pitching punches from all over the place trying to land the big one.

It was in this situation that Andrade showed to advantage. He didn't get wild and try to slug it out with Jimmy but kept his head, moved around well and constantly used his left hand to keep Carter off balance.

In the second round, which was probably Andrade's best, Cisco landed a sharp right hand which wobbled Carter and after that Cisco tried to land another similar punch but was not successful. In doing so, he dropped his right hand a little, to get it into position to go, which gave Carter an opportunity to score with his left hooks and jabs.

Altogether it was quite a scrap. The clinches were few and the action almost constant.

One surprising thing was that Carter came in so heavy—140 pounds, four pounds more than Andrade and five pounds over the lightweight limit.

When the weights were announced you expected to see a much slower Carter but apparently the added poundage didn't slow him down much. He paced himself like the veteran he is and didn't waste much motion until the late rounds when, acting under instructions from his corner, perhaps, he tried hard for a kayo.

It was the twenty-first loss in Carter's career but there is no reason to believe, off his showing, that he is through.

Robinson-Olson Rematch.

RAY ROBINSON, who regained the middleweight championship by knocking out Carl (Bobo) Olson in the second round at Chicago in December, has signed for the promised rematch with Olson in Los Angeles, April 27.

That will be a tough fight to forecast for so much depends upon intangibles, meaning, that unless Olson has recovered from the mental fog in which he was at Chicago, you may expect another such ending.

Still Robinson looked little like his old self that night, even in winning, so if Olson has cleared up all his extra-curricular troubles and is in position to concentrate solely on the job at hand he may take the crown away from Robinson.

And yet, Robinson has beaten Olson three times, twice by knockouts and this in itself sets up a mental block for Bobo which is difficult to overcome.

Ol' Diz Teams With Turnesa, Wins Best Ball

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—The annual Phoenix Open golf show got off to a colorful prelude yesterday with a pro-amateur event that featured a team victory for the old baseball hero, Dizzy Dean, and his professional partner, Jim Turnesa, and a hole in one by veteran Johnny Palmer.

Ol' Diz and Turnesa had four strokes fewer than anyone else, as they played the par 36-35—71 Phoenix Country Club course with a best ball round of 32-28—60.

Today the pros began swinging for the real money in the $15,000 event, another highlight of the winter tournament trail.

Palmer got his ace with a 3-iron on the 220-yard eighth hole. It was the North Carolinan's second in his career. The other one came here last year when the tournament was played at the Arizona Country Club.

Two of the name players, Cary Middlecoff and Gene Littler, nursed virus bugs. Middlecoff remained out of the pro-amateur completely while Littler took things in casual fashion.

U.S. HOCKEY TEAM BEATS SWEDEN, 6-1

CORTINA, Italy, Feb. 2 (UP)—The surprising United States hockey team, striving for the gold medal, defeated Sweden 6-1 today for its third straight victory in the Olympic ice hockey championship tournament play.

John Matchefts, scoring unassisted goals in the first and second periods, led the United States team to its triumph.

The victory gave the United States a total of six points and first place in the championship playoff. However, Russia meets Czechoslovakia later today and would tie the United States for the lead with a victory.

CORTINA, Italy, Feb. 2 (UP)—Pert Tenley Albright, 20-year-old Newton (Mass.) ice ballerina, fought off the pain of an ankle injury today to win the Women's Olympic figure skating championship with a brilliant performance in free figures.

Miss Albright, first American ever to win the Olympic women's crown, thus completed a United States sweep of the two Olympic figure skating championships. Hayes Alan Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., won the men's title yesterday. These are the only two gold medals America has won in the 1956 classic.

Carol Ann Heiss, 16-year-old Ozone Park (N.Y.) girl, finished second and Ingrid Wendl of Austria, the European champion, placed third. Miss Heiss received the most enthusiastic applause from the crowd of 8000 which watched the competition.

The 1-2 finish in the women's figure skating event gave the Americans 15 points, boosting their total to 43½. That moved the United States from seventh to fifth place in the unofficial team standings. Russia led with a total of 101 points.

Miss Albright barely edged tiny Miss Heiss in today's free figure skating by a margin of 795.7 points to 794. However, Miss Albright had compiled a lead in the compulsory figures held Monday and Tuesday.

In the final official tabulations, Miss Albright had 13 placings and a total of 169.6 points, while Miss Heiss had 20 placing and 168.1 points. Miss Wendl had 40 placings and 159.3 points.

Yvonne Sugden of England was fourth, Hanna Eigel of Austria was fifth and Carol Pachl of Canada sixth with 154.7 points.

Catherine Machado of Los Angeles, who turned in the third best performance in the free figures, was seventh in the final standings with 97 placings and 153.5 points. Canada's other entry, Ann Johnston, finished ninth with 94 placings and 152 points.

The attractive New England girl, who became a world champion figure skater after recovering from a childhood polio attack, turned in a near-flawless performance in the free figures despite a throbbing pain in her right ankle.

Finished Second in '52.

Miss Albright, daughter of a Boston physician, suffered an attack of non-paralytic polio in 1947. An energetic girl who had begun skating at the age of 9, Miss Albright resumed her pastime upon her recovery and made the United States Olympic team in 1952 when she was only 16.

She placed second to Jeanette Altwegg of Britain in the '52 Olympic competition and the following year became the first American girl ever to win the world championship. Miss Albright lost the world title because of a fall in 1954 but regained it in 1955.

The comely five-foot-six, 128-pound Miss Albright now is a pre-medical student at Radcliffe College in Cambridge, Mass.

Earlier in the day, Sixten Jernberg of Sweden, a 26-year-old lumberjack who finished second in two previous Olympic cross-country ski events, won the gruelling 50-kilometer race against the best Russian and Finnish marathon skiers.

Jernberg thus became the first athlete of the 1956 winter games to win three Olympic medals. He had won silver medals for finishing runner-up in the 30-kilometer cross-country event last Friday and in the 15-kilometer race on Monday.

Jernberg labored his way over the winding, hilly 31-mile course in 2 hours 50 minutes and 27 seconds to win the toughest of all the Olympic ski tests. His excellent placings in the three cross-country events made him the outstanding cross-country skier in these games.

Hakulinen, the 31-year-old Finnish forest ranger, placed second in 2:51.45 and Russia's Fedor Terentiev was third in 2:53.32.

Russia Adds 7 Points.

In addition to third place, Soviet skiers also took fifth by Antoli Scheljukhin and sixth by Pavel Koltchin. That earned Russia a total of seven points in the 50-kilometer event and raised its first-place total to 101 points in the unofficial team standings.

Jernberg's victory moved Sweden into second place after the 50-kilometer race with a total of 53 points.

Finland's Eero Kolemainen placed fourth in 2:56.17. There were no Americans in the race. Canada's Clarence Servold finished twenty-second in 3:21.50.

In the Olympic hockey tournament, Canada bounced back from its upset defeat at the hands of the United States on Tuesday by trouncing Germany, 10-0. The victory kept alive Canadian hopes for a successful defense of the Olympic title.

This was the Dutchmen's second victory in three games in the six-nation championship round-robin pool. Canada lost to the United States, 4-1, on Tuesday. Canadian hopes for the Olympic championship hinge upon whether the United States loses to Russia.

U.S. Soft, So Reds Take Over, Brundage Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (UP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, stated today that "we've let the totalitarian countries take over sport and they get stronger and stronger while Americans get softer and softer."

Brundage, in an interview in Sports Illustrated magazine, also emphasized that "the charge of professionalism applies no more to the Russians than it does to the Americans."

He said Russia's brilliant showing in international competition resulted from an intensive national sports program such as the United States Olympic committee has been recommending for years.

"The shame of it is that they're doing just what we've been preaching for the past 30 or 40 years," Brundage said. "Now they know the value of sport."

Brundage said he saw no evidence of special benefits for athletes when he visited Russia two years ago.

"They used to give cash prizes to athletes," he said. "But they had to stop that. They say they follow all the amateur rules. Their Olympic committee says they do and we take their word for it just as we take the word of the American Olympic committee when we ask about American athletes."

Brundage said it was possible some of their athletes received special benefits "but I saw no evidence of it and I don't think they do."

"If they do I wonder if it is any more than what goes on right here in our own country," he added. "We tried unsuccessfully for 30 years to get the Army to establish a sports program. Now they finally have one and it looks as if they've gone overboard on it. Special camps. Special training. Exactly what we accuse the Russians of doing.

"The State Department sponsors tours of our athletes to other countries. This sounds all right on the surface. But what is it if it isn't using amateur athletes for political purposes? That is another thing we accuse the Russians of doing."

He said it was true the Russians were using sports to foster communism "but we can't prevent them from doing that."

Nashua to Race Swaps Again in March 17 Stake

MIAMI, Feb. 2 (UP)—Nashua today accepted the challenge of Swaps for the third meeting of the two thoroughbred champions in the Gulfstream Park Handicap March 17.

Gulfstream president James Donn announced immediately that should both go postward, the previously-announced $50,000 added purse will be raised to guarantee $100,000 to the winner.

The surprise nomination of Swaps by his California owner, Rex Ellsworth, was received in the mail yesterday. Nashua's $100 nomination fee was opened in today's mail.

Bobsledders Feuding; International Body Slaps U. S. Group

CORTINA, Italy, Feb. 2 (AP)—The International Bobsled Federation (F.I.B.T.) today re-elected Donna Fox of Larchmont, N.Y., as an international vice president, despite all-out opposition by his his American colleagues.

The vote came a few minutes after Secretary Dan Ferris of the United States Amateur Athletic Union read a report to the 15-nation body that Fox is "persona non grata" to United States bobsledders.

The vote was regarded as a sharp slap in the face of the organized bobsled sport in the United States, and climaxed an old feud in the American ranks.

Driscoll Succeeds Geo. Halas

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (UP)—Paddy Driscoll today was named head coach of the Chicago Bears to succeed owner George Halas.

Driscoll, a former star back with Northwestern University, and with the Chicago Cardinals and Bears in the National Football League, has been an assistant coach under Halas for 15 years. He was regarded as an expert football tactician and worked with Halas in development of the T formation.

"Paddy is a solid, dependable football man," Halas said. "I have great confidence in his ability to keep the Bears in the title running. I know of no one who has made a greater contribution to the game of football."

Driscoll said the appointment was the greatest assignment of his career.

"It is a great challenge," he said, "but with the outstanding staff which we had, one that could not be bettered, I feel we can continue to give the Bear fans a winning team.

"The records show the Bears topped the league last season in total offense, and in total ground gaining, and it will be our objective to maintain that pace and possibly improve it."

Ball Goes to Colts.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 2 (UP)—Herman Ball, former head coach of the Washington Redskins, resigned today as assistant coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers to accept a similar position with the Baltimore Colts.

Ball said he took the job with the Colts because it enables him "to return home."

Paddy De Marco Fights Don Jordan Tonight

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2 (UP)—Paddy De Marco, former lightweight champion from Brooklyn, is a 5-to-3 favorite to defeat Don Jordan of Los Angeles in their 10-round bout at the Olympic Auditorium tonight.

CHUCK DIERING, St. Louisan, and DAVE PHILLEY are giving the Baltimore Orioles contract headaches. Diering, who hit only .256, but filled in at third base and shortstop in addition to his fine defensive outfielding, said he was "below the $15,000 mark" and felt entitled "to ask for a little more money on the basis of team value."

Although Athletic Director LARRY (MOON) MULLINS wouldn't say, a source close to Marquette University insisted Football Coach FROSTY FERZACCA, who had a two-year record of 5-11-2, would be fired within a week or 10 days and paid off on the last year of his contract. . . . AL ROLLINS, recently demoted, was reinstated as Chicago Black Hawk goalie after replacement HANK BASSEN was returned to the Buffalo hockey club.

The United States Government filed a $113,664 tax lien for 1954 against SID FLAHERTY, manager of BOBO OLSON. . . . The Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., bought $5000 in stock in the community-owned Buffalo International League ball club and officials said they hoped other area companies would follow suit because "we want the Bisons to stay."

Snead had put up a gross of fishing plus against Williams's golf balls. . . . NORM VAN BROCKLIN of the Los Angeles Rams won the National Football League punting championship with a 44.6-yard average for 60 kicks.

CONNIE MACK, 93, is not expected to go to Florida (Fort Myers) for the first time since 1888 because he has not recovered fully from his broken hip. Bears Boost Record to 11-3 by Beating Valparaiso Again

Jim Barton Scores 25, Cristal 18

By Harold Tuthill
of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 2—Washington University can win away from home. The Bears found the road no particular jinx for them as they started a three-game basketball trip here last night with a 69-59 decision over Valparaiso University.

It was only the second time this season that Blair Gullion's athletes had played out of town, their other road appearance resulting in a 75-74 loss at Illinois, one of three close defeats they have suffered so far in a campaign which has produced 11 victories.

Whether the Bruins can continue their winning ways will be tested twice over the weekend with a game at Detroit against Wayne tomorrow night and another against Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Although the Bears came pretty close to handing Kenny Suesens's Crusaders the worst home beating they have had this winter, Washington was not razor sharp despite a shooting percentage of 43 on 25 baskets of 57 attempts. The Bears, competing for the first time since they lost to Memphis State by 73-71, Jan. 20, needed this one to get the kinks out of their system.

Some Anxious Moments.

Jim Barton, who has been averaging about 21 points, scored 25 last night, getting eight goals in 16 attempts and nine of 23 free throws. But he and other members of the team blew some soft lay-ups which gave Bruin followers anxious moments as Valpo virtually traded early points with the St. Louis guests.

Valpo was eager to redeem itself after losing to Evansville by 12 points here last Saturday, 82-74—the Crusaders' worst home beating of the season—and to square the series with the Bears who had won in December, 67-55.

But Valpo, which had sought its seventh triumph, instead absorbed its tenth loss with an anemic shooting percentage of 33 with 18 goals in 44 tries. The Crusaders, who stayed on Washington's heels with tie scores at 2-2, 4-4, and 6-6, trailed by only a point at 17-16 when they hit a cold spell which matched the blizzard outdoors.

The Crusaders went eight minutes, 12 seconds without scoring a field goal as they fell 10 points behind and then trailed at the half 37-25. Their zone defense, which they used at the start against Washington, was abandoned early in the first half when the Bears showed the ability to slip past the Valpo defenders for a field goal attempt to draw a foul. Valpo then used a man-to-man style of defense.

Bears Hold Eckart Down.

Collinsville's Ed Eckart, who played for Valpo despite a minor foot infection, drew three personals at the outset and tight guarding kept him to four three throws. He had been averaging almost 10 points a game.

Bob Madrick, the other large forward, did foul out, after committing four infractions in the first half. He tallied only four points, which left the bulk of the scoring to the backliners, Tom Sittler and John Noak, each of whom collected 10 points, and to Center Neil (6-6) Reincke, who netted 16 points.

Bob Jarm, another Valpo regular, was out with the flu.

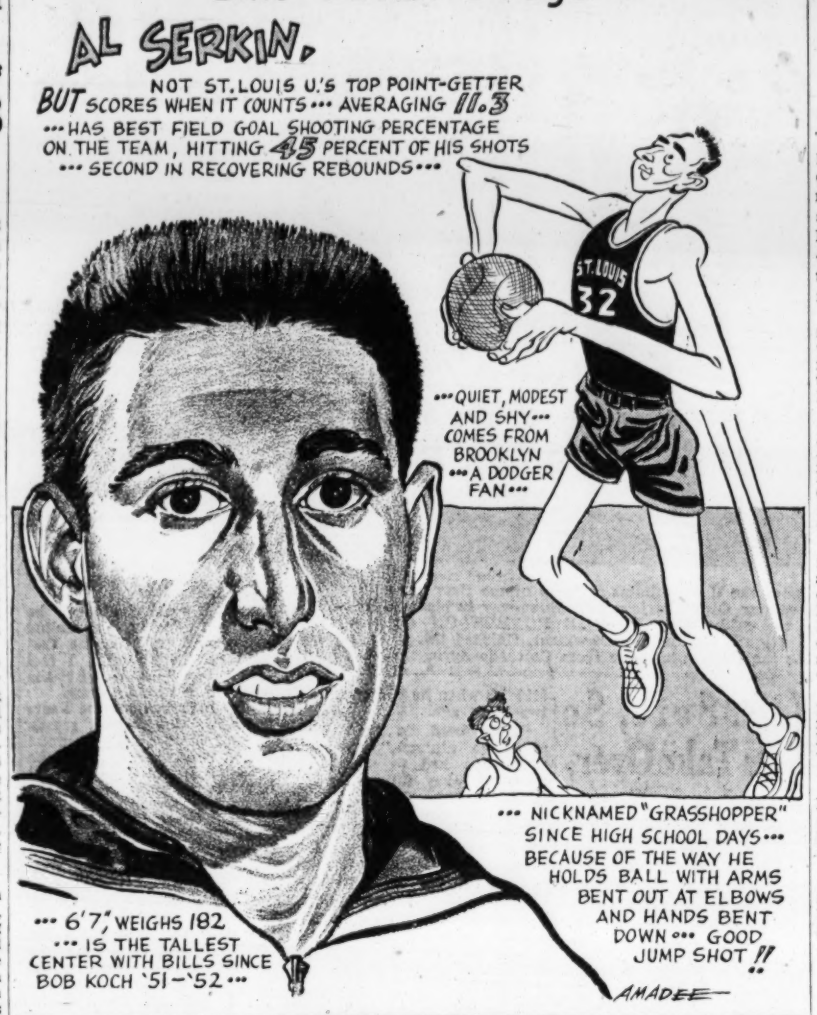

Ably assisting Barton in production for Washington was Bud Cristal, who scored 18 points, while Bill Gullion came through with nine early points as he hit three-for-three from the floor. The coach's son, however, drew four fouls in the first half and spent considerable time on the bench.

Reserves Get Into Game.

Bob Casten, who injured his knee against Loyola of Chicago and missed the Memphis State game, saw service, making one field goal. Also getting two-pointers were Art Borchers, Les Medley and Stan Smith, while Jim Paul made three free throws the first half and three fielders the second half for nine points.

Barton led the Bears on rebounds with 8, followed by Medley 5, Casten 4, Cristal, Borchers and Paul 3 each, Gullion 2 and Smith 1 for a total of 29. Valpo grabbed 38 rebounds, 17 of them by Reincke.

Bills Seek Eighth Straight In Valley Game at Wichita

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WICHITA, Kan., Feb. 2—Over the years St. Louis U. has had a lot of victories and some difficulties in its series with Wichita U., but the situation will be particularly improved in one respect when they play here tonight at 8:30.

The Missouri Valley Conference leading Billikens (4-0) and the Shockers (2-3) will be meeting for the first time in the new, 10,235-seat Wichita field house.

Those who have played on the extremely narrow floor of the old Forum here appreciate what a difference this makes, and whatever their difficulties of the past, the high-riding Billikens have the new 94-by-50-foot floor to look forward to.

Seeking their eighth consecutive victory in a 12-2 season thus far and their sixth away-from-home win without defeat, the Billikens rate as favorites over Ralph Miller's Shockers, who have an 8-8 over-all record to show for a tough schedule.

The old feuds that just a year ago developed player spats on the floor in St. Louis and later a Wichita team request for good crowd behavior before the game at Wichita probably have been almost forgotten.

At Tulsa Saturday.

But the Bills, opening a two-game trip that will take them to Tulsa for another league contest Saturday, approach this one warily. Wichita's record isn't outstanding but it did win at Tulsa, where later Tulsa beat the Oklahoma Aggies. And Wichita in its last start walloped Detroit here, 95-79. In its home game with Detroit, St. Louis won by only 86-80.

In a series of 21 games, most of them since World War II, St. Louis U. has won 19 and lost only two to the Shockers. The Bills had a fine victory here a year ago, but one of the two defeats occurred here two seasons back. And there have been a couple of St. Louis wins by only one point here.

Their current progress, however, indicates the Bills should continue their drive toward the Valley title. They scored two rousing triumphs in recent non-conference games with DePaul and Cincinnati, contests which were 10 days apart because of the semester break in the schedule.

Standout Center.

The Shocker team is headed by Bob Hodgson, one of the standout centers in the Valley. The 6-6 Hodgson is averaging 17.3 points per game. At the moment he is said to be hobbled with a foot injury. Two sophomores, Guard Joe Stevens (5-11) and Forward Don Woodworth (6-3) are the other leading scorers with 15.4 and 10.1 averages.

Wichita's team statistics show scoring figures that are rather mediocre compared to the Bills. The Shockers have a field goal hitting percentage of .349, compared to the Bills' 41 per cent. St. Louis's average scoring edge against opponents is 8.6 points, Wichita's 1.1.

Grady Smith continues to lead the Billiken scoring attack with a 20.7 average. Jim McLaughlin has 16.9, Joe Todd 13.4, Al Serkin 11.3, Harold Alcorn 11.2 and Jack Mimlitz 9.7.

For a given game, though, anything can happen. Wichita hit 46.8 per cent of its shots and scored 37 field goals in its recent game with Detroit.

Mercy, Laboure Meet in Final; 32 for O'Brien

Fleet-footed Bill O'Brien piled a 32-point performance on top of his 35 total of two nights ago as first-seeded Mercy stopped McBride, 61 to 54, and Laboure defeated St. Mary's, 48 to 42, in semifinal games of the DeAndreis tournament last night.

At 9 o'clock tonight the winners will meet to determine which team shall capture its first title in the eight-year-old tournament. St. Mary's will play McBride for third place at 7:30.

O'Brien, a junior, dropped in 12 field goals and eight free throws for Mercy as he raised his two-game total to 67 points. Nevertheless, the University City school had difficulty pulling away from the Micks of Coach Bob Brunette.

McBride had a 46-43 lead going into the final period, after six-foot-seven Fred Leiding sat out the third quarter because he had accumulated four fouls. Leiding returned for the last eight minutes, however, and his seven points, plus eight by O'Brien, enabled Mercy to win.

Leiding, who also had 35 points in the opening game, finished with 16. Sophomore Paul Hines topped McBride with 21 and Larry Scherer had 14.

Laboure took a 31-20 halftime lead over St. Mary's, then hung on for the victory. Jim Montrey's 17 points were high for the winners.

Illinois Duck Population Up 'Way Over 1955

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 2 (AP)—Illinois started off the year as host to a million and a half wildfowl, or about a half million more than were on hand in January 1955.

Specifically, there were 245,000 more mallards and 17,000 more Canada geese on hand.

The report, released today by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Illinois natural history survey and prepared by Marshall Stinnet, United States game management agent at Peoria.

The total number of Canada geese this mid-January was 190,943 and the total duck population was 1,343,544, all but about 65,000 being mallards.

Slightly over a half million were observed on the Illinois river.

The largest concentration of ducks away from the two rivers was 130,000 in the Southern Illinois areas at Crab Orchard, Mermet and along the Ohio river bottoms, and 41,000 at Lake Springfield.

Webster Groves Plays Ladue in Suburban Event

Unseeded Webster Groves, hot after its fourth straight championship in the Suburban League tournament on its home court, will take on an experienced Ladue team in one of four quarterfinal games scheduled this evening. Webster probably pulled the greatest surprise in Saturday's upset-loaded opening round when it knocked off second-ranked Maplewood in overtime.

Ritenour will meet Clayton at 4 p.m., followed by Ferguson vs. Brentwood at 5:30, Webster vs. Ladue at 7, and fourth-seeded Normandy vs. Kirkwood at 8:30.

It was Clayton that eliminated the No. 1 team in the tournament. University City, but that upset came just a few hours after University City learned that its high-scoring center, Wilbur Marsh, would be out with a broken bone in his foot. In the other Saturday surprise, Brentwood defeated fourth-seeded St. Charles.

Webster Groves, a big and husky team as Statesmen squads usually are, appears to have reached its best form of a season only mildly successful thus far. The night before Webster beat Maplewood, it led University City as late as the final period, although Marsh played well enough to score 26 points for the Indians in this game.

Semifinal game of the tournament will be played tomorrow night and the championship match will be Saturday night.

McKinley High Star Signs With Cardinals

Don Mitchell, star lefthanded pitcher of McKinley High School, has signed a contract with the Cardinals' Dothan club of the Class D Alabama - Florida League, the Redbirds announced today.

Joe Monahan, scout who signed Mitchell, said the 18-year-old pitcher would report to Albany, Ga., in March for spring training.

Mitchell, 6-1, 170 pounds, had a three-year high school record of 12 victories and only one defeat. Last summer he hurled a no-hitter for McKinley in the state high school tournament and pitched a hitless game for the Pirates, a Khoury Senior League team.

Litchfield Team Travels to Vandalia

LITCHFIELD, Ill., Feb. 2—Three Midstate Conference games will be played tomorrow night, with league-leading Litchfield at Vandalia, Shelbyville at Tayorville and Hilsboro at Greenville.

Hillsboro handed Litchfield its first conference defeat in six starts last Friday, 66-47, as Larry Mormino paced Hillsboro with 26 points.

Hot Hawks and Hotter Pistons Put Streaks on Line in Kiel Twin Bill

By Harold Flachsbart

You never know what might happen next in a professional basketball doubleheader, but there's another one on tap at Kiel Auditorium tonight and, for a sure thing, one of two red-hot winning streaks is bound to be snapped.

The feature game, in which the swift, goal-happy Hawks will be seeking a sixth straight victory, sends the St. Louis team against a Fort Wayne squad that has won seven in a row, including two victories each over Philadelphia and Boston. This contest is likely to start about 9:30.

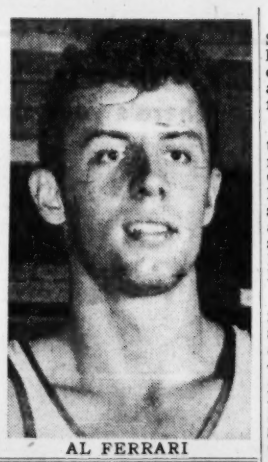

In the opener an interesting duel is in prospect between George Mikan and the Minneapolis Lakers against Easy Ed Macauley, Mikan's old pivot opponent when Mac was a Bomber, and the Boston Celtics. The Boston-Minneapolis game is to get under way promptly at 7:30.

What will happen after the doubleheader remains to be seen. Two nights ago there was a rhubarb and near general player fight just at the finish and about 20 minutes after the program a non-scheduled fight between Owner Ben Kerner of the Hawks and a Boston radio announcer.

Before Lineup Change.

Fort Wayne, the pace-setter in the Western Division in which the Hawks are making determined strides to climb, has defeated St. Louis in six out of seven meetings this season, but that was before Al Ferrari and Med Park caught fire for the Hawks and Jack Coleman and Jack McMahon worked into Red Holzman's new moving pivot picture.

Ferrari, 6-foot-3 former Michigan State hero with tremendous drive and most helpful scoring outbursts in recent games, has been the big spark-plug for the Hawks in their recent five-game surge. The studious product of New York City has tallied 81 points in the recent five big victories, including 20 in the first half in a rousing 114-91 decision over the Boston Celtics here Tuesday. Ferrari had 21 in the TV game against Syracuse Saturday.

One astute college and former professional coach who called the turn on Ferrari was none other than Ken Loeffler, former leader of the St. Louis Bombers. While here with the College All-America squad during a series with the Globetrotters last spring, Loeffler said he was impressed by Ferrari's ruggedness and uncanny ability to shoot from awkward positions. "If they ever let him loose," Loeffler said, "they'll never catch him." Loeffler at that time predicted Ferrari would turn out to be the best of the Hawks' college draft choices.

Stephens Also Sharp.

Their No. 1 selection, Dick Ricketts of Duquesne, has been traded away because he failed to measure up in his first-season play. Another draftee, Jack Stephens of Notre Dame fame, has been going great, correcting early-season mistakes, and is approaching the 500-point level for the season.

Fort Wayne, probably the hottest club in the N.B.A. right now, defeated the Warriors and Celtics—the 1-2 teams in the East—each twice in its current spurt and Rochester, St. Louis and New York once each. The streak started against the Hawks 'way down yonder in New Orleans Jan. 19.

Bob Pettit, the Hawks' scoring leader of the circuit, with a season's average of 24 against all clubs, has averaged only 17—well below his normal gait—against Fort Wayne and Mel Hutchins, the 6-6 former Brigham Young star who usually guards him. Hutchins, on the other hand, has averaged only 13.1 against St. Louis. Fort Wayne comes here well rested, without a league game under its belt since Sunday.

Fans who saw the great Mikan Tuesday in his comeback bid agreed, for the most part, that big George, a six-time league all-star and the big gun of the circuit from 1948-54, is still hard to move, despite his 31 years.

Although used sparingly, Mikan had an 11-point scoring average before Tuesday's game and scored 19 here besides making quite a few smart moves on the pivot or outside against Rochester.

Even the Hawks agree that when he gets back into really top shape, Mikan again could be one of the hardest men in the league to go around. And he's still the same old Mikan that Bomber fans remember—frequently "crying" to the officials.

Maybe he can get by with it—he's general manager and executive vice president of the Minneapolis club. His rivals on the hardwood are only employes.

Quote, Unquote.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2 (UP)—Charley Silvera, catcher for the New York Yankees, was asked today if Billy Martin would "make" the team this year:

"Billy not only will make the ball club," replied Silvera, "but he'll do at least half the managing."

Hawks-Philadelphia Game Here Sunday To Start at 3 P.M.

THE Hawks - Philadelphia Warriors pro basketball game at Kiel Auditorium Sunday, originally scheduled at night, will start instead at 3 p.m.

High school students and youngsters under high school age will be admitted for a service charge of 50 cents.

Concordia Plays Lincoln Tonight

What could be a gloomy week for the Concordia Seminary Preachers goes into its second phase tonight when Coach Pete Pederson's team attempts to become only the second team in three years to beat Lincoln University on its home court at Jefferson City.

Concordia, which lost at Quincy Tuesday night, 82 to 59, will take on Tennessee State University, which has a 15-3 record, on the Preachers' floor Saturday.

Lincoln has won nine and lost six this season, and is especially successful on its under-sized court. The only team to beat the Tigers there in the last three seasons was Warrensburg College, which edged Lincoln, 60-59, during the current campaign.

One of three 6-foot-3 players on the Lincoln front line is Charley House, who led the team with 315 points last season. The others are Larman Williams and Joseph Wise, co-captains. Rudy Sims will be one of the guards.

Concordia has an 8-6 record this season.

Guarantee Of $75,000 For Champ

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (UP)—Broadway odds-makers installed Carl (Bobo) Olson the favorite at 5-7 today to recapture the middleweight crown from Sugar Ray Robinson in their return title fight at Los Angeles, April 27.

That surprised many boxing men because Robinson—who finally agreed to the April date last night—has beaten Bobo three times, including the second-round knockout in their title fight at Chicago, Dec. 9.

However, an odds-maker explained, "There's a strong belief the Chicago knockout was a fluke. And Ray'll be 36 on May 3. If he can't win an early kayo at Los Angeles, his legs may not last the distance."

Win or lose, Robinson has been guaranteed $75,000 by the International Boxing Club and the Hollywood (Calif.) American Legion, who will co-promote the bout at either Wrigley Field or Gilmore Field in Los Angeles, depending on whether the Los Angeles or the Hollywood baseball club is on the road at the time.

Plus Expenses?

There are unconfirmed rumors that the champion also has been guaranteed $10,000 for training expenses. Quite likely they are true.

Sugar Ray, who wanted to delay his return defense until June 8, capitulated last night after two days of conferences among Norris and his assistants and Robinson, flanked by four members of his five-man brain trust.

Neither champion nor challenger shall have even a tune-up match before their title fight. Getting Robinson's agreement to that stipulation must have cost someone beyond the $75,000 guarantee. He had been insisting he needed two or three tune-ups to get "sharp."

Announcing the agreement, Norris said the match was not completely closed yet because he had been unable to contact Olson's manager, Sid Flaherty, for an okay on the April date. That should be obtained quickly, despite Flaherty's statement last night at San Martin, Calif., that he wanted to review the terms with Norris.

Threatened to Ban Robinson.

Flaherty and Olson have been pressing for a return bout as soon as possible. They threatened to have Robinson banned throughout National Boxing Association territory if he did not keep a private 90-day return-bout contract and defend before March 9.

Jim Norris said he expected the Los Angeles fight to draw about $250,000. In addition the "packaged" television and radio fees will total $100,000. Robinson can take 30 per cent of the entire net receipts should that percentage exceed his $75,000 guarantee. Olson will get 30 per cent without any guarantee.

Norris wanted the fight in April instead of in June because he figures that if Robinson beats Olson, he can defend against welterweight champion Carmen Basilio at New York in June for a $500,000 gate. Such a June bout would depend also upon Basilio's keeping his own 147-pound title in the fight with ex-champ Johnny Saxton at Chicago, March 14.

In their previous bouts, Robinson stopped Olson (12) on Oct. 26, 1950; outpointed him on March 13, 1952, and knocked him out (2) last Dec. 9.

Excited Mariucci Blasts Italian . . . in Italian

CORTINA, Italy, Feb. 2 (AP)—Johnny Mariucci was so delighted while his United States hockey team was upsetting Canada that he jumped up and down with excitement, he related today.

An Italian guard, unaware that Mariucci was the American coach, told him to quiet down or be ejected from the rink.

"He didn't know I was the coach and he certainly didn't know I am of Italian descent and speak the langauge," Mariucci said afterward. "He was just doing his job. I was—well, impolite in Italian. It's a good thing he suddenly realized I was the coach or I might have been in the soup."

Lane Signs a Cuban Scout, Gets Optimistic Word From Two of His Redbird Hurlers

By Bob Broeg

Frank Lane, 60 years old, was back at his Busch Stadium desk today after having (1) signed a Cuban scout, (2) heard encouragingly from two Cardinal pitchers and (3) elbowed his way through heavy correspondence that sought to uncover a statistical substitute for hitting a home run with the bases loaded.

Smiling at the nature of his recent mail as much as over the surprise cake-and-ice cream party the Redbird office staff threw for him yesterday on his birthday, the new ball club manager said:

"We're getting even more letters from guys who want to travel as our statistician than suggestions."

Observing that Publicity Director Jim Toomey would be the Cards' figure filbert, Lane said he had been impressed by responses to his request for ideas to permit better evaluation of players' offensive ability.

"In addition to our plan to compare O.B.R. (opportunities to bat in runs) with actual R.B.I. (runs batted in), I'd say the sports editor of the Army Times in Washington has come up with a B.R.A. (base-runners advanced) rating close to what I had in mind."

How the Plan Works.

The services publication editor, Tom Scanlan, would divide the number of men on base into the number of bases a batter has advanced a runner, using 10 as the maximum possible at any time at bat. The range would be one base for a runner on third to four potential bases advanced for the hitter himself.

As Scanlan illustrated, a grand-slam homer would be scored 10 for 10, a three-run triple 9 for 10 and a one-run single with the bases loaded would be 4 for 10 because the batter would be given one point for advancing each of the three runners and a fourth for getting on himself. Conversely, if a batter failed with a man on third, he would be charged 0 for 1, but would be assessed a maximum penalty—0 for 10—for striking out, for popping up with the bases loaded.

The Cuban scout Lane announced signing is Gil Torres, 40, former Washington infielder and pitcher now coaching for Mike Gonzalez's Havana Reds in the winter league. The general manager said he felt the Cardinals needed a full-time representative in Cuba to scout teen-age talent.

Frank Smith Optimistic.

Lane, who himself looks closer to 40 than 60, exhibited a newspaper clipping from his native Cincinnati. A story quoted Frank Smith, ailing bullpen disappointment of 1955 as saying:

"The way my arm feels now, I believe I'll be able to give the Cardinals five or six years of good pitching."

A realist, Lane was more enthusiastic about a telephone call he had placed to Grinnell, Ia., Jackie Collum's hometown.

"The little guy asked to report earlier (Feb. 24) than the March 1 training date," the Redbird general manager said, "but I was impressed even more about how pleased he was to rejoin the Cardinals. Before we hung up, he told me, 'We're better than last year's standings by far.'

"You see," Lane said, smiling, "Collum made himself at home even faster than I did."

Pie Traynor Sees Pirates' Roberts Better Than Red

AGREEING with Chief Scout George Sisler that Pittsburgh has promising pitching potential, Scout Pie Traynor told the United Press there he believed the Pirates' chances hinged on Second Baseman Curt Roberts for at least the first six weeks of the 1956 season.

Traynor noted that the little Roberts couldn't hit curve ball pitching as a rookie in 1954, but last year batted .321 at Hollywood.

"Often," said Traynor, "one man can help make a ball club in the spring. I look for Roberts to be the best second baseman in the National League. He's faster than O'Connell and can field better than Temple or Gilliam. Schoendienst was great, but he's had his day."

Broadcasters Honor Mrs. Zaharias, Alston

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (UP)—Golfer Babe Didrickson Zaharias and Brooklyn Manager Walter Alston will receive Graham McNamee memorial awards tonight at the ninth annual awards dinner of the Sports Broadcasters Association.

Frank Frisch, Hall of Fame second baseman, now a television sportscaster, will present the award to Alston. S.B.A. President Don Dunphy, veteran boxing broadcaster, will give the other McNamee award to George Zaharias for his ailing wife.

Plaques of merit will be presented to Cleveland Quarterback Otto Graham, Welterweight Champion Carmen Basilio and Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the New York Rangers hockey team.

Some 400 men from the fields of sports, radio and television will attend the radio and television sportscasters dinner.

Andrade Gains Victory, Plus Weight Prize

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (UP)—Cisco Andrade beat Jimmy Carter in a lightweight fight and picked up $500 additional for the chore, but neither the winner nor the loser was happy about the outcome today.

"He wants a re-match," Andrade and his manager, Ralph Gambino, snorted. "Let him make the weight and we'll give him a re-match. Even if we got the title, we'll give him a match. But let him make the weight first."

"I thought I got robbed," Carter said softly. "I know I staggered him, and sure, he was throwing those left jabs. But I was blocking half of them or more. I want a re-match with him, and I want a title fight, and the IBC told me I ought to have one."

It was a majority decision for Andrade with Referee Joey White scoring 96-95 and Judge E. Allen Frankel 95-94 for him while Judge Lou Capparelli gave it to Carter, 97-95.

Andrade gained his additional $500, in addition to 25 per cent of the net of $2877 paid by 2027 fans and $4000 for television, because Carter did not make the stipulated weight of 137 pounds. Instead the three-time champion weighed 140 compared to 136 for Andrade, who gained his thirty-second victory in 35 pro bouts.

"The IBC told me they'd pay the forfeit," Gambino said, "and I'm going to collect it. He was too heavy and it hurt us."

Andrade piled up points throughout the bout with his speedy left jabs and occasional right hand blows. He also was credited with the only knockdown of the fight, even though Referee White didn't allow it.

That came in the fourth round when Carter, his nose bleeding, staggered Andrade with a sharp right to the jaw. As Andrade reeled toward the ropes, his left hook connected to Carter's chin and the former titleholder went down.

"I thought it was a slip," White said. "I didn't see the punch."

Only Two Major Colleges Unbeaten After Temple U. Is Stopped by Muhlenberg

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Only frollicking San Francisco and St. Francis of Brooklyn remain unbeaten in major college basketball today with Temple now a member of the fallen.

Muhlenberg, an 11-4 giant-killer this season, edged Temple, 67-66, last night to snap the Owls' 13-game winning streak.

The unranked Mules, who opened the schedule by upsetting LaSalle, had a lot of Gall knocking off the nation's seventh-rated club. Fact is, it was 6-1 Bobby Gall who dumped in 20 points to pace the predominately junior squad.

Gall had great help, however, from Cardy Gemma, who bagged 13 points and superbly guarded Guy Rodgers. The Owls' backcourt scoring ace didn't get a field goal for 29 minutes and wound up with a scant 10 points. That left the big job to Hal Lear and although he hit for 28, it wasn't enough.

The Mules led 31-13 at one point, but the score tightened in the second half. The lead changed hands 11 times in the last seven minutes before the Mules moved to a 3-point edge and went into a freeze with :22 left. Rodgers sank a meaningless lay-up at the buzzer.

Duke, ranked tenth, also was defeated last night. The Blue Devils were leveled by eighth-ranked Kentucky, 81-76, as Terry Bird fired a late first-half Wildcat surge.

Second-ranked Dayton, prodded by Coach Tommy Blackburn's observation that "the test of a good team is whether it can come back after defeat," righted itself by walloping Loyola of Chicago, 75-37. The Flyers were drummed out of the unbeaten ranks by Louisville Saturday.

There were three upsets in addition to Temple's loss. Fordham defeated Connecticut, 82-72, while Georgetown (D.C.) clipped St. Joseph's (Pa.), 84-72, and Adrian (Mich.) ended an 18-game winning string by Defiance (O.) 82-77.

Elsewhere among the ranked teams, Holy Cross (No. 14) whipped Creighton, 97-60, as Tom Heinsohn scored 22 and cleared 22 rebounds in his 31 minutes of play; Oklahoma City (No. 15) smacked Loyola (New Orleans), 81-66, with sophomore Hubert Reed canning 33 points, and Memphis State (No. 16) trampled Murray (Ky.), 106-72.

A 15-point, five-minute drive smashed a close game and gave Kentucky a 38-29 halftime lead over Duke. Bird had 12 points in that span and finished with 29 to tie Duke's Joe Belmont for top honors. Both clubs now are at 12-3.

Blackburn benched all but sophomore Arlen Bockhorn among his Dayton regulars (not to chastise, but to rest) for the opening tipoff and Al Sicking, the 6-6 replacement for 7-foot Bill Uhl, responded with 16 points and 25 rebounds. Dayton is 15-1 and a pretty safe bet for the National Invitation Tournament.

In conference games, Arkansas slipped past Texas Christian, 74-72, to regain a share of the Southwest lead with Southern Methodist, scheduled to meet the Porkers Saturday; Richmond cracked hopeful Virginia Tech 66-60 in the Southern; Yale scored its first Ivy League victory defeating hapless Brown, 81-53; Texas Tech smothered Arizona (Tempe) State, 113-63 in a Border contest, and Kent State beat Western Michigan, 97-90, in the Mid-American.

Syracuse trailed Cornell until the last 48 seconds of regulation time, then won 96-94 in overtime despite little Chuck Rolles's 42 points. Julius McCoy sank 27 points, to become the top scorer in Michigan State history (1134) as the Spartans defeated Detroit, 85-78. Mississippi State's Jim Ashmore cracked the 1000-point mark with 28, in 30 minutes, as the Rebs defeated Tampa, 89-64.

Other results: Army 75, Albright 71; Penn State 70, Navy 65; Pitt 78, Carnegie Tech 76; Princeton 74, Rutgers 40; Providence 82, Rhode Island 80; Kentucky Weslyan 100, Rollins 83.

Jackson Signs With Dodgers; Evers in Fold

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (UP)—Randy Jackson, who had to be talked into playing professional baseball, figures he'll have to go all out to beat Jackie Robinson for the third base job at Brooklyn, but his bosses insist the job already is his.

Jackson, who signed his first Brooklyn contract yesterday, came to the Dodgers in December as part of a deal that sent Don Hoak, Walt Moryn and Russ Meyer to the Chicago Cubs in exchange.

The long-ball hitting infielder replaced Bill Serena at third base for the Cubs in 1951, but replacing Robinson figures to be a lot tougher job, especially since Jackie has indicated the job is his and Randy will have to beat him out to get it.

"We didn't get Jackson for bench duty," Vice President Buzzy Bavasi said when the club acquired Jackson. "He's going to be our third baseman and ought to hit real good in Brooklyn."

Jack Meyer, young right-hander who appeared in 50 games for the Phillies last season, came to terms for 1956 and while his salary was not disclosed, it is believed he got a raise. Despite a 6-11 won-lost record, Meyer had a fine earned run average of 3.44 and struck out 97 batters in 111 innings.

Veteran Outfielder Walter (Hoot) Evers, who came to Cleveland from the Baltimore Orioles last July, signed his contract with the Indians along with three rookie pitchers. Evers will be making his fifteenth trek to a major league camp.

Infielder Curt Roberts and Pitcher Joe Trimble, teammates on the Hollywood club last year, signed their 1956 contracts with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Roberts played the 1954 season with the Pirates and batted .321 in the Coast League last season. Thimble, who turned in an 11-4 record in 1955, currently is leading the Puerto Rican winter league in strikeouts with 106.

The Giants announced the signing of Outfielder Bob Lennon, who has hit 95 home runs in the past two seasons in the minors, first baseman Gail Harris and Catcher Wilburn Jenkins. Harris batted .232 in 1955 but hit 12 homers in 79 games, Jenkins, up from Sioux City, Ia., batted .293 last season.

The Yankees also corralled three players—Infielder Bobby Richardson, and Outfielders Dorrell (Whitey) Herzog and Jack Ladra. Richardson had a short stay with the Yankees last year and batted .296 at Denver. Herzog also is up from Denver, while Ladra was discovered by Manager Casey Stengel in the club's Oriental tour. He's from Honolulu and has been signed for Quincy, Ill.

Other signings: Pitcher Jack Crimian (19-6 at Toronto last year), Pitcher Carl Duser and handyman Bob Williams by the Athletics; Pitcher Bob Harrison by the Orioles, and Outfielder John (Junie) Wyatt, an 18-year-old slugger who was graduated from a Washington high school Monday, by the Senators.

Stewart Back With Mizzou Basket Squad

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 2 — Norman Stewart's back is still a "little sore," but he expects to return to competition as the Missouri Tiger basketball team ends a two-week examination time layoff by playing Oklahoma at Norman Saturday. The Tigers meet Kansas at Lawrence 48 hours later.

Stewart played in two losing games and was bedfast for the third-in-a-row loss of the Tigers, earlier considered a championship contender but currently locked in seventh place with a 1-3 conference record.

Coach Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup hasn't given the final word, but believes that none of his squadmen failed to meet eligibility standards. In fact, he gained an experienced player as Truman Blackman of Jackson, ineligible last semester, rejoined the squad.

With Stewart's return, the Tigers hope to become a factor in the championship race, but must do it the hard way by winning on the road if they are to overtake Kansas State (4-1), Colorado and Kansas (3-1) and Iowa State (3-2).

Jensen Denies Report He and Red Sox Are Far Apart on Salary

Jensen admitted he had returned his contract unsigned twice, but he added that he and the club were "very close" to agreement and "there is absolutely no trouble between us."

"Our correspondence has been very cordial and I expect to reach an agreement soon with (General Manager) Joe Cronin," he said.

Jensen said he hasn't asked for any specific salary this year, but asked for an increase on the basis of the 116 runs he batted in last season.

MOSCOW, Feb. 2 (AP)—In a move to spur lagging crop production, the Soviet government has hiked by 70 per cent the price it pays for vegetables which collective, state and individual farms are required to turn to the state.

Premier Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev signed the 2000-word decree which also introduced a system of bonuses to speed production and delivery of the vegetables.

The produce is sold in state stores at fixed prices. There was no indication whether the consumer would have to absorb the price increases.

The decree criticized the ministries of agriculture, state farms, party members and state governments for failing to boost crop production as called for in earlier edicts.

CASKETS RETURNED; MAY BE THOSE OF BUDDHIST CHIEFS

The New York Times News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 2—Three caskets of charred bones, believed to be the relics of Buddhist apostles, were returned to the governments of India and Ceylon yesterday from the British museum where they have been stored for nearly 100 years.

The fragments were said to have been collected from the funeral pyres of the apostles about 2000 years ago. In 1851 they were taken from a Buddhist monument at Sanchi in central India by Sir Alexander Cunningham, an antiquarian who presented them to the British museum.

SOME OF BRINK'S LOOT OF $1,219,000 RECOVERED

BOSTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — Assistant District Attorney Edward M. Sullivan disclosed in Suffolk county superior court today that some of the $1,219,000 Brink's loot has been recovered. He declined to tell reporters how much of the money, stolen Jan. 17, 1950, is in official custody.

Sullivan's disclosure, first official word that any of the money had been found, came as he argued against a petition for a writ of habeas corpus brought by four Brink's defendants who seek a reduction in their $200,000 bail.

6000 TRIBESMEN GIVE PAGEANT FOR ELIZABETH

More than 6000 persons, in the gaudiest attire, participated at Kaduna race course in the singing, primitive music and horsemanship. All through the night drums had boomed and trumpets wailed in last minute practice for the great durbar.

The Queen wore a tiara and evening dress of blue gray embroidered brocade as she watched from a pavilion. At the start she drove slowly around the course in the warm sun. Several times in front of native crowds she stood in her open car.

The durbar was a display by 12 Nigerian tribes, each led by a chief on horseback. The chief of the Bornu tribe rode straight at the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh brandishing a spear. But he stopped abruptly, jabbed the spear into the turf and bowed.

WILSON REBUKES CRITICS FOR 'WORM'S EYE VIEW'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (UP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson rebuked congressional critics yesterday for implying that the Pentagon is full of "non - co-operative brass, bunglers and bureaucrats."

In a press conference questioning on a wide range of recent congressional criticisms, Wilson said he was sympathetic with the problems of Congressmen and respected their need for defense information.

HAVANA, Feb. 2 (AP) — The Cuban tanker Telco foundered yesterday off the port of Baracoa but its nine-man crew was rescued. The vessel was carrying a cargo of kerosene to Santiago de Cuba when it sank under the buffeting of strong winds and high seas near Cuba's eastern tip.

92,000 KILLED BY ACCIDENTS IN '55; 38,300 IN TRAFFIC

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP) — Traffic accidents killed 38,300 Americans in 1955—one of the heaviest tolls in history, the National Safety Council reported today.

Accidents of all types brought death to 92,000 persons, injured 9,200,000 and resulted in $10,300,000,000 in financial setbacks — such as equipment, property damage, lost wages and medical expenses.

Traffic accidents alone caused 1,350,000 non-fatal injuries and cost $4,700,000,000.

Last year's motor vehicle death total tied with the 1953 toll for the third highest on record of 39,969 in 1941 and approached closer to the 39,643 registered in 1937, the runner-up year.

The 1955 traffic toll showed an 8 per cent gain over the 35,586 total of 1954.

St. Louis had the best safety record among cities of between 750,000 and 1,000,000 population, with three traffic fatalities for each 10,000 registered vehicles. Cleveland was second with 3.1.

GIANT GLOBAL CARRIER UNVEILED

First of the giant C-133A turboprop cargo planes to be built for the Air Force being rolled out of its hangar at the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant in Long Beach, Calif., yesterday. The massive aircraft, believed to be the largest air freighter ever built, has twice the payload capacity of the largest military air transport now in service, and is expected to set new standards of performance as a global carrier of air cargo. Its fuselage is 148 feet long and its wing span almost 180 feet. The plane's huge tail towers 48 feet above the ground, about the height of a four-story building.

KEEPING TRACK OF TRUMAN

As former President Harry S. Truman steps out on one of his brisk morning walks, United Press Movietone cameraman Eugene Broda skates backwards on roller skates to film the event in New York yesterday. Broda, who in the past has had trouble keeping up with Mr. Truman, borrowed skates from his young daughter for the occasion. Truman, long known among newsmen as a hard man to keep pace with on his early morning walks, chuckled when he first spotted Broda and remarked: "Enterprise like that ought to get you a raise."

FISHERMEN'S LUCK

Two Coast Guard skiffs pulling for the shore yesterday after rescuing 15 fishermen from a large sheet of ice which broke loose from an ice field in Lake Erie, about 30 miles west of Buffalo, N. Y. Coast Guard went into action when a shift in the wind separated the section of ice from the main ice body, marooning the fishermen about half a mile offshore. All were safely removed.

PROTEST IN ALGIERS

Helmeted police stand firmly in the path of French army veterans marching in Algiers in demonstration Sunday against the nomination of Gen. Georges Catroux as French minister in Algeria. A crowd of 100,000 Frenchmen cheered retiring Governor General Jacques Soustelle in Algiers today and condemned policies of the new Paris government headed by Premier Guy Mollet, who yesterday called for a freely-elected Algerian assembly whose leaders could negotiate a new "unbreakable" relationship with France.

Tuning In Godfrey on a Little Pink Cloud

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.

THIS is my first brush with a hospital, short of bringing somebody else flowers in one, and I may be forgiven for being naive about it. Did you know the beds roll up in back? And front? The nurses bring you breakfast in bed and everything. Brother, it's the greatest. I may never leave.

JOHN CROSBY

And when did they invent this stuff, morphine, anyhow? I must have been away.

For years I have heard what radio and television does for the shut-ins. And now, at long last, I am a shut-in—at least some of the time. I've had a distressing habit lately of floating out the window and the nurses have to shout at me to float back in time for lunch.

IN THE FEW MOMENTS when they do manage to shut me in, radio and television are an enormous comfort. I don't know how many of you have ever looked at Red Skelton while hopped to the ears on morphine. In more rational moments, Red Skelton has always struck me as more than slightly lunatic. It's only now I see how wrong I was.

He was on this ship, see, hiding in a lifeboat. Then the purser was chasing him around the deck while a couple of titled Englishmen bet on the winner. Later, at the country home of one of the Englishmen, he shot a skunk and then he fell to pouring punch all over the girls' dresses. As I say, you haven't really lived until you've seen this sort of thing under the influence of morphine. It takes on what the ad men would call an extra added dimension. What I mean is that some of the punch splattered over the foot of my bed and I could smell the skunk. If David Sarnoff ever gets around to introducing the feelies that Aldous Huxley predicted for us in "Brave New World," I may just leave town.

★ ★ ★

I'M TOLD that morphine can still the pain even of a brain tumor which ranks high among the more painful experiences of mankind. But there's one thing morphine can't still, Arthur Godfrey. I've got Arthur Godfrey addicts (who are, I should say, hooked much worse than us dope junkies) on the right of me and Arthur Godfrey addicts on the left of me.

And that "heh heh heh" of Godfrey's cuts through everything—morphine, closed doors, anything. I even tried drifting out the window on my little pink cloud and, by George, the man on the next pink cloud had Arthur Godfrey tuned in.

The shut-in racket is perfectly wonderful most of the time but it has its liabilities. I remember a man who told me about driving across the country from Los Angeles to New York and never once getting out of range of Arthur Godfrey's voice. I must remember to tell him that even the upper atmosphere isn't safe any more.

★ ★ ★

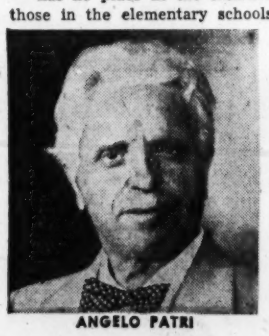

JUST THE SAME, with that slight reservation, morphine is a miracle drug all right. I gave it the supreme test the other night. I floated over to the set and tuned in Igor Cassini's "Million Dollar Show Case." And you know what? Gigi looked like a million dollars. Never in medical history has a narcotic passed a test like that one. No pain. No discomfort. Watched the whole show, too!

The Deliberate Child

By Angelo Patri

STUDY has found that speed has little relation to the mastery of knowledge, nor to basic intelligence, so it has no place in the instruction of children, especially those in the elementary schools.

ANGELO PATRI

Children live, learn and act on the rhythm of their characteristic personalities. One moves rapidly and learns quickly, and is likely to be known as more intelligent than his classmate who moves with deliberation mentally and physically. This can be a mistake that causes trouble for both sorts of children. Each must be valued according to his achievement regardless of time limits.

★ ★ ★

THE SLOW-MOVING child, the one who seems to take time out to draw his breath before he even starts to speak, can be very annoying to the parent or teacher who is under pressure of things yet to be done. But even they must respect the characteristic expression of the individual child, and not penalize him for the pattern of his nature.

There are still classrooms, even schools, where emphasis is placed on speed. So many seconds allowed for the response to a flash card used for drill; so many words read per minute, and the like. This sort of thing does no good. It does not speed the recall of the child who is characteristically deliberate, but it does disturb and confuse him and establish a dislike in the child for the subject and for the teacher who tries to do the speeding. But it does not teach accuracy of response or accurate memory, nor does it heighten intelligence. It just has no place in the elementary schools where children are learning the rudiments of the basic subjects.

THERE IS A FLOOD of harsh criticism about the teaching of reading in the schools, much of it uncalled for, and one of the criticisms is the lack of speed in reading that the students of secondary schools show. Why should they have such speed? They have just barely had time to master the technique of reading. They need to be taught to select the most important paragraph on the page, the most important sentence in it, and so get the heart of the matter. This to help them save time in studying. But they must be taught this technique without hurry. They are still learners, not efficient readers and students, as are their teachers. Secondary-school students must still be taught how to read and if they can do so fairly well, be allowed to proceed at their own rate of speed.

The people who need to read swiftly are professionals like the reviewers of books, postgraduate students, professors whose fields are encompassed by books—not school children. Do give them time to learn and to reflect on that learning.

'Handy Dish' Is Fine—With Variations

For Instance, Try Using Asparagus Instead of Noodles in Tuna Casserole

By Hoyt Alden

THE women's magazines are always touting some kind of casserole or something which they refer to as a "handy dish." I, for one, view the handy dish with a very jaundiced eye. It's been my experience that it isn't long until the handy dish becomes the culinary cliche.

An excellent example of the kind of dish which falls readily into the definition of the handy dish is the tuna fish and noodle casserole. It's handy as all get-out. It's easy to prepare, and it's pleasant enough to eat. Occasionally.

There's the rub. A woman never knows when to let up. Give her a handy dish like the tuna fish and noodle casserole, and in no time at all her family will be in a tuna and noodle rut. It'll appear every Friday night with such regularity they can make book on it.

Finally some member of the family rebels and up-ends a steaming casserole of tuna and noodles on the Little Woman's head. She is both hurt and surprised. But she can take a hint, so she quits making tuna and noodle casseroles and starts looking around for another "handy dish." Which is where we came in.

WELL, maybe the solution lies in having a wide repertoire of handy dishes, and that way they don't come around too often. To start the ball rolling, here's an asparagus and tuna casserole which, while it's in the tuna tradition, is a splendid variation.

Cook a package of frozen asparagus until it's tender and then spread it out on the bottom of a buttered baking plate. Cover the asparagus with four sliced hard boiled eggs. Mix a can of cream of mushroom soup with two small cans of tuna fish and two tablespoons of sliced pimento. Warm it and stir it and pour it over the sliced eggs. Then crush enough potato chips to fill a cup, and sprinkle that on. Bake it at 350 degrees for 20 minutes, then another 10 minutes uncovered. If you want to double the recipe put it in a deeper casserole, make two layers of all ingredients and bake it 30 minutes covered and 10 minutes uncovered.

IT'LL APPEAR EVERY FRIDAY NIGHT WITH SUCH REGULARITY THE FAMILY CAN MAKE BOOK ON IT.

IF the Little Woman insists on bringing home those little prefabricated packages of fish which may be labeled filet of this or filet of that, but which taste like filet of breaded blotter the way she serves them, snatch them from her hand before she gets started, and cook them yourself. With a little skill, which is acquired by following carefully the following directions, they can be turned into something quite apolaustic.

Here's how: Slice a big onion thin, and saute it in a couple of tablespoons of butter until lightly browned. Now add a package of frozen chopped spinach (which has been defrosted, of course) and season it with half a teaspoon of salt and an eighth of a teaspoon of pepper and an eighth of a teaspoon of thyme. Let this cook together in a covered pan for seven or eight minutes, then pour it in a well buttered flat baking dish.

Now wash a pound of filets in lukewarm salt water and dry them well. Mix a third of a cup of flour with a teaspoon each of salt and paprika. Put it in a paper bag and then put the filets in the bag and shake them up. Then saute the filets in a fourth of a cup of hot butter until they are golden brown all around. Now place them carefully on top of the spinach.

Make a sauce Mornay with a fourth of a cup of butter, a tablespoon of finely minced onion, and a fourth of a cup of flour. Mix it until it's smooth, and as it cooks stir in a cup and a half of warm milk. When it begins to thicken add half a cup of grated Swiss cheese. Also salt and pepper to taste. Let the sauce cook until it begins to simmer. Pour it all over the fish and spinach. Sprinkle a little paprika on top for color and bake it in a 450-degree oven for 10 minutes, and then under the broiler long enough for the top to brown a little and you've got an excellent fish dish.

A MUCH neglected part of the animal is that which is named the oxtail, a hangover from the days when the tail of the ox actually was a prime source of soup. It's really the tail of the beef, and although it's quite bony, it has a lot of meat on it which, when served in a good ragout, has a wonderful flavor.

There are a number of recipes for oxtail ragout. Here's one of the best. Have three oxtails cut into pieces and soak them in water for an hour, changing the water after 30 minutes. Drain them and wipe them and roll them in flour seasoned with salt and pepper.

Melt a fourth of a cup of ham or bacon grease in a big kettle on a low fire. Put in a cup of chopped onion, a cup of chopped celery, a fourth of a cup of chopped parsley and a clove of mashed garlic, and cook it until everything is soft.

Now take them out of the pot and put in the meat and brown it all over. Add some grease if you need it. When it's well browned, stir the cooked vegetables in again, along with two cups of tomato juice and a cup of red wine. Then add a teaspoon of salt, a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and a fourth of a teaspoon of pepper.

Cover it and let it simmer for at least an hour and a half. Then put in a cup of baby lima beans, a cup and a half of diced carrots, a cup and a half of diced turnips, and a small can of canned mushrooms along with the juice.

Let it simmer another half hour, or until the vegetables are all tender. Add more water if you have to, but bear in mind that the gravy should remain thick and rich.

It's a dish which should be in any man's collection.

Applying Lacquer.

IN the past the Chinese were great inventors. They invented wallpaper, the compass, ceramic tile and even gunpowder. Personally, we wish they would go back to inventing things and stop doing whatever they are doing at present. Anyway, one of their great inventions was lacquer and they were able to do things with lacquer that no one else has been able to match.

Lacquer makes a pretty fine finish for furniture and things like that but it's sort of tricky to handle. Unless you have spray equipment you should use the brush lacquer which dries somewhat slower than the spray lacquer. Before lacquer is applied the wood surface must be sanded down and then given a coat of lacquer sealer.

You can't apply lacquer over paint, varnish or enamel because the lacquer will soften up the undercoat. After the lacquer sealer is dry, sand it down with wet sandpaper and a little water and then wipe the surface dry.

Lacquer should be applied with a fine quality varnish brush. Work the bristles over your hand to remove any loose ones before you dip the brush in the lacquer. Lacquer should be applied with a moderately full brush and should be applied with one even stroke. Allow the strokes to overlap each other enough to prevent any bare areas but don't make the overlap wider than is necessary.

Lacquer dries very quickly. In most cases the work will be dry enbugh for handling in less than two hours. For this reason any sags or runs due to too much lacquer at any point must be removed at once for in just a minute or so they will be dry and impossible to remove without damage to the surrounding finish.

Work-Saving Idea

It's a lot easier and less work to hang heavy objects such as cabinets, shelves and mirrors to a wall if you first build a rough base that will stand on the floor and hold the object at the correct height against the wall. This will free your hands for final positioning and attaching.

Secrets of Charm

Wings for Your Feet

A STEP THAT IS LIGHT AND SURE.

SUPPOSE you are about to make a descent to an admiring audience—perhaps to the strains of Lohengrin. Can you find the wings for your feet? Not if plodding upstairs and down again is a habit.

A light, effortless step doesn't just happen, even on a great occasion. When the knees are used as jacks, bending and straightening the legs abruptly, the result is jerky action and a heavy tread. You must use your knees as levers instead, and keep them slightly bent to create a smooth, continuing flow of action all the way.

Put the responsibility on your thigh joints and keep your knee hinges relaxed. This takes practice, and the best way to begin is with the correct way of ascending the stairs. Stand tall before the bottom step, knees flexed and with your weight centered on the ball of your left foot. Lift your right leg from the thigh joint and place your foot firmly but noiselessly on the first step, your whole foot, not just the toe. Don't leave the heel suspended over the tread.

Now transfer your weight to the ball of your right foot, and with a gentle assist from the left toe, lift your body upward without fully straightening the right knee. At the instant when your right thigh is near parallel to the tread, place the left foot on the next step.

Continue this action and up you go—more easily than any other way, and wonderfully lightly and gracefully if your hips are tucked in and restrained in their action, your head is up and your knees are really free from the mechanical stiffness that spoils the whole effect.

Float down the stairs by the same method in reverse, erect and with your head held high.

Achieve grace of the highest degree—make yours the posture ideal—improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes. Read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "Your Posture." Racy Hamburgers

Ingredients: Two small onions, three-quarters teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon dry mustard, pepper, one pound ground chuck beef, two tablespoons butter or margarine.

Method: Peel onions; on waxed paper, grate onions fine; there should be about three tablespoons pulp and juice. Add salt, mustard and pepper to taste to onion; mix well. Work onion mixture into ground beef with fork or fingers; shape into four patties. Melt butter in nine-inch skillet until it begins to hiss. Add hamburgers and brown each side over high heat. If meat is liked pink inside or well-done, turn heat low and finish cooking to desired doneness, turning to cook evenly. Makes four servings.

Overambition

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

OVERAMBITION may be called a bad-good habit. But it often deserves more than the name habit; in reality, it may become an obsession. It is natural to want to succeed, but unnatural to think success is so important that nothing else matters. You see—if you will look around—many examples of successful failures in your neighborhood or community. Observe how, in passing, they have littered the road with unhappy wives and children; with enemies who hate the ground they walk on; with "yes" men who respect them less than they realize.

DR. STEINCROHN

Ambition, in normal amounts, is essential fodder for the human ego. Man either is or isn't. He is when he moves—especially, toward a higher goal. He isn't when he stagnates; when he allows potential greatness in himself to die of inanition and lack of desire for self-improvement.

★ ★ ★

SOMEWHERE BETWEEN the beachcomber (whose ego is close to zero on the scale) and the driven man (who sits atop the heap) is the normal desire to make good. I would be the last to suggest that you give up your ambitions; but I would be the first to remind you to realize your limitations.

See yourself "in whole," "not in part." It is necessary that man knows where he wants to go; then assess his probabilities for arriving. Having these answers, he must also ask himself how he expects to achieve his ambition, and when. We can make mistakes all along the line.

Some men work hard without knowing their destination. Others, knowing what they want, overassess their capabilities. Again, others know their destinations and fairly estimate their innate capabilities for their work, yet become successful failures because they underestimate the time it takes to succeed. They are the impatient ones who often, within reach of their goal turn off in another direction. Thus they throw away the accumulated accomplishment of years of hard work.

TO ME, the extremely ambitious person who is unsuited for his calling, is the saddest of all. To work all one's life thinking you are going in one direction and to find that you have only been marking time—or, worse still, have been going in an opposite direction: that is tragedy.

Intense ambition that is doomed to wreckage on the rocks because of inherent weakness in the ship is an awful thing to watch. But suppose you are fit for your work. Your destination is well lit up. You see it clearly. You know your itinerary and how to use it. You may succeed—yet fail—because you are not content to cruise slowly along the well traveled route. You are bedevilled into taking short cuts, untried detours that wind you up into a maze of doubt, indecision and final defeat.

Or, you may too quickly reach your goal. You gather in much money, acquire power and respected stature in your community. When you do, balance your success against the price you had to pay in loss of health, friends and the happiness of your family.

Successful as you are, would you pay the price again? If not, there is still time. Try to recapture what you have lost on the way up.

Experimenting With Artificial Arteries

Work, Along With Processing of Frozen Human Arteries, Is Supported by Heart Association

By Clarissa Start

AT THE tissue bank at City Hospital, Mrs. Jane Fleming, pretty technician, unpacks a shipment. The merchandise consists of white tubes which have a corrugated, elasticized appearance. They come in various lengths, bend flexibly at strategic places. At a casual glance, they resemble those odds and ends of wiring insulation which the electrician left around the wall plugs when you had the new outlets put in.

Mrs. Fleming consults with Dr. Falls B. Hershey, director of the tissue bank, as to whether the new shipment is of the right size and type. For these tubes may serve a life and death mission. They are among the artificial arteries, made of nylon and plastic, now being used in experimental work, a part of a program — along with the processing of frozen human arteries—which is supported by the Heart Association.

"There's nothing new about the idea of artificial arteries," says Dr. Hershey, who is young, informal, and wonderfully kind to reporters unfamiliar with medical terminology. "For as long as man has known about the working parts of the body, the thought of using 'spare parts' has become a familiar one.

"The use of artificial arteries is an obvious idea because the arteries, after all, are only pipes which carry blood through the body. In the past they've experimented with rigid glass and metal tubes to reroute the blood past a blockage or stoppage in the artery. It's only in recent years, however, that we've been using pliable materials such as nylon, orlon, and plastics."

Use of plastics, which do not provoke inflammation or set up allergic reactions inside the body, has become common in such things as hip joints and skull plates and for stitches. Before you frivolously decide to rush out and have all your arteries replaced with modern, washable nylon ones, however, you should be advised that even miracle fabrics have their limitations.

At present, the replacement of diseased arteries in human beings is being done with other human arteries, which are kept, deep frozen, at the tissue bank. Artificial arteries are still in the experimental stage although they have been used successfully on animals and may prove practical for human artery replacements in the future.

"These plastic arteries were developed by Chemstrand, a textile division of Monsanto Chemical Co., in Alabama," Dr. Hershey explains. "They have limitations because at present the nylon tubes are not elastic. Tremendous elasticity is a characteristic of the human artery. When the heart pumps blood and thrusts it into the artery, the artery expands and the recoil helps propel the blood. Plastics can serve as a rigid pipe and, provided the distance is not too long and the size is not too small, they will function satisfactorily. For small arteries or for longer replacements, they are not elastic enough. We still use human arteries whenever they are available."

Dr. Hershey has used a nylon artery in one human operation because the artery bank was depleted of its supply. The patient was a man with a blockage in the thigh artery which had cut off circulation, causing gangrene in his foot and making amputation a possibility. The artificial artery was used to bypass the blocked area much as a road detour would go around a washed-out bridge. As it happened, another blockage beyond the detour developed, and when the second operation was performed and a longer "bypass" used, a human artery was available and was used.

Among the "patients" on whom artificial arteries have been used with success are several dogs at Washington University which have been using their artificial arteries for a year and a half.

ONE of the future possibilities, Dr. Hershey explains, could be the development of a more elastic plastic. Recent photographs made with a powerful electronic microscope have revealed for the first time in the most minute detail how human tissue is elastic. Magnified 100,000 times, each elastic fiber of the human artery is made like a coiled spring which can increase in length and stretch in diameter. If plastic, which is not spun like cotton but extruded through a tube, could be extruded in a coil or helix, these elastic coiled threads might be braided in coiled tubes to emulate the elastic artery. From a practical point of view, Dr. Hershey admits, the investment of expensive machinery and research processes might not be justified by the limited return that could be made selling artificial arteries to hospitals.

Other artificial materials which have been used include polyvinyl sponge. In the case of the Y-shaped bifurcation where the main abdominal artery is diverted to each thigh, and where blockage often occurs, only a similarly Y-shaped artery can be used. In some instances artificial arteries have been made of sponge cut into strips, wrapped around a Y-mold and heated until they take on the shape of the mold which they then retain when cool.

"The same idea was used in do-it-yourself Christmas tree ornaments this year," Dr. Hershey smiles.

Other types of material used in the past, glass and metal, have not been successful because the pounding pulse of the human artery against the rigid pipe always broke it loose.

"Our biggest advance," says Dr. Hershey, "is that we now have artificial materials which do not excite inflammation or allergy, and which will stretch enough so that although they are rigid compared to the human artery, they are still pliable. In addition, the nylon, orlon, or sponge are mesh-like so that the body's own tissues eventually will grow through them."

★ ★ ★

ANOTHER advance which has been made at the tissue bank, where human arteries are processed and stored is a new sterilization service being done by Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass. When the artery bank first started out, only arteries from disease-free persons could be used which meant, actually, only arteries from persons who had died accidental deaths, and fortunately, these are rare.

"Now," Dr. Hershey explains, "we can use arteries from persons who die of cancer, leukemia, or other diseases in which the arteries remained undamaged, by having them sterilized at M.I.T. by radiation from their 5,000,000 cathode ray machine."

Each week, Mrs. Fleming and Dr. Hershey solemnly pack a soft drink container with frozen arteries in dry ice. These are taken to the airport in the afternoon, arrive in Cambridge the next morning, are radiated while frozen, packed in dry ice and returned to City Hospital the next day.

Funds for the activities of the artery bank as well as for the research in plastic arteries are supplied by the Heart Association, which is holding its annual fund drive during the month of February. The City Hospital Institute for Medical Research supports the other activities of the tissue bank. Not only has the artery bank been highly successful so far—with approximately 160 arteries used by doctors and hospitals in the St. Louis area in its first year and a half of existence—but indications are that it may save many a life in the future. Arteries are supplied for emergencies in any St. Louis hospital. Deposits by these hospitals are processed and returned to them.

"Blockage of the arteries is now easily diagnosed by X-ray," Dr. Hershey says, "and although artery failure sometimes occurs without warning, causing death, frequently a weakness of the artery can be detected. It sometimes shows a pulsating mass, a blister-like bulge, like a lump on a tire or a spot on a balloon. If it can be detected, it can be replaced with a human artery, perhaps in the future with artificial ones, or by modified desensitized animal arteries."

Human arteries will continue to be used even though nylon and other plastics are improved, Dr. Hershey believes, because they are superior. One more note of superiority—and on this needlewomen will sympathize with Dr. Hershey — nylon is more difficult to sew.

It is true North's leap to four clubs posed something of a problem for East, but with West putting in a vulnerable overcall against both the club opening and the heart response, it did not require great optimism or courage for East to bid four spades, either directly over the four-club call or when South's four-heart rebid came around. There was no good reason for East to feel that four hearts could be beaten, and so the four-spade bid had obvious virtue as a sacrifice, at worst. It will be noticed that in actual fact it would have been much better than that—four spades would have been ironclad.

However, questionable as East's tactics were in the bidding, it was West who deserved the greater blame, for his defensive play. Perhaps he could not be blamed too much for opening his singleton club (though this is not an indorsement of that selection), but he soon made a really ghastly blunder.

South took the first trick with his own 10 of clubs and let the queen of hearts ride for a finesse. East won and laid down the spade ace, and it was at this point that West sabotaged his own interests: he played the spade deuce on East's ace. That fixed East. Apparently, West lacked either the spade king or the diamond ace; if East continued spades, the defenders would apparently take only three tricks. So, trying to follow his partner's strongly implied instructions, East returned a club, hoping to build a trump trick for West. Declarer, however, ruffed high, led a trump to the ace, discarded two spades on the clubs and ruffed a club (overruffing East's six), then led a diamond toward the king. Four hearts, bid and made.

HOW did Barnum and his lesser-known partner, Bailey, first meet? Well, one of many stories has it that Bailey found a great drawing card for his 1880 tour when one of his elephants, named Hebe, became a mother. Advertising the baby elephant as "the first pachyderm ever born in captivity," Bailey attracted such business that Barnum offered $100,000 for the two animals. Bailey not only said "nothing doing" but reproduced Barnum's offer on huge posters in every town on his itinerary.

"That's a man I want on my side," declared the appreciative Barnum—and in 1881, Barnum and Bailey's first combined "Greatest Show on Earth" made its tour.

3. IS IT POSSIBLE TO HAVE A COMMUNITY WITHOUT MENTAL SICKNESS, DELINQUINCY AND CRIME? YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 1.

TRUE. Dr. Ann Morgan Barron says in Los Lngeles Mirror News. They tend to become "perfectionists" and are unwilling to adapt themselves to younger workers or new ways of doing business. Also, they often develop "old voices"—high-pitched or harsh—which get on the nerves of both supervisors and younger people. She urges they try to cultivate softer, "younger" voices.

Answer to Question 2.

How tall his wife is. Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, motion economy expert, told me working surfaces in a home should, wherever possible, be made to fit the wife's height. Most surfaces—kitchen sinks, etc.—are 33 to 36 inches, which compels tall women to bend down and the short women to reach up. Much bending, just one or two inches, causes fatigue and often back pains.

Answer to Question 3.

In his wonderful book, "Ways and Power of Love," sociologist Pitirim Sorokin says: "In this age of psychoneuroses, the Hutterites and Mennonites, religious communities in the United States, have the lowest quota of delinquents, criminals and mentally sick persons because they practice and live the Sermon on the Mount. . . . No one is deprived of love. Love is the intensest vital force, the core of life itself." Why don't we all live this way?

Add orange juice to mincemeat and heat. Serve over cottage pudding or white or yellow cake squares.

Late Winter Holidays For Several St. Louisans

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

JAMAICA will be the destination of a St. Louis foursome who will fly to the island about Feb. 25. The travelers are Mr. and Mrs. David R. Calhoun, 58 Kingsbury place, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Allen Thomas, 609 South Warson road, Ladue. They will spend the ensuing two weeks at Round Hill Club near Montego Bay.

-c-

A 500-mile sea voyage in their own boat has just been concluded by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dean Woolsey, 11 Schultz road, Kirkwood, who returned here Saturday. They bought the boat, a 45-foot motor sailor which they christened the Sea Gull, in Florida, and sailed to Bimini, a small island 80 miles east of Miami, to ports in the Bahamas including Nassau, and finally back to Palm Beach, Fla., where they visited.

In Bimini, where they spent two weeks, Dr. and Mrs. Woolsey met Mrs. James H. Davis, the former Miss Peggy Porter of St. Louis, whose husband was sailing with a group of men.

A world cruise, to extend perhaps six months, will be enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Montgomery See, 410 North Newstead avenue, beginning in March. They will leave St. Louis March 13 for San Francisco where they will embark March 25 aboard the S.S. President Cleveland for Japan. From there they will fly to Hongkong and spend three weeks in the Far East, traveling through Indochina and India. Their next stop, by plane, will be Luxor, Egypt, after which they will journey on to Turkey.

Mr. and Mrs. See's later plans include a Mediterranean cruise. Leaving Turkey they will sail to Spain by way of many Mediterranean islands, including Crete, Sicily and the Balearic Islands, Minorca and Majorca. Afterward they will tour Spain, France and Italy, and later go to Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. See returned about a week ago from Florida where they were guests at the Hollywood Beach Hotel in Hollywood Beach for two weeks. While in Florida they also went to Sanibel Island, off the West Coast near Fort Myers, for a brief stay, as they do this time every year. With the Sees at Hollywood Beach were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. Russell Fette, 7923 Delmar boulevard, University City. The Fettes later went to Jamaica and were guests at the Myrtle Bank Hotel in Kingston for nearly two weeks, stopping briefly en route in Cuba. Mr. and Mrs. Fette will return home this week.

New Officers for St. Louis Bachelor Club.

OFFICERS of the St. Louis Bachelor Club for 1956 were elected last night at the annual meeting and smoker given at Ed Fergol's Sportsman Inn. Festus John Wade III is the new president, elected to succeed Edward Simmons Hock. William E. Flynn is vice president; James Lee Johnson Jr., secretary; Otto F. Krebs, treasurer, and Loren E. Egley Jr., assistant treasurer.

Out-going officers, in addition to Mr. Hock, are John Turner Clarkson Jr., vice president; William W. Sant II, treasurer; Joseph D. Dubuque, secretary, and F. Lee Zingale, assistant treasurer.

The Bachelor Club, with a membership of 400, including sustaining (married) men, is largely in the business of entertaining the debutantes at a ball, at the end of each social season, to express the appreciation of the members for parties to which they have been invited.

The ball this year, sixteenth in the series, will be given Friday night, June 29.

St. Louisans who have made winter trips to Florida include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Griesedieck, 9851 Litzsinger road, Ladue. Mrs. Griesedieck and her father, James E. Powers Jr., 4 North Kingshighway, went to Palm Beach and stayed at the Breakers for the first two weeks in January after which Mrs. Griesedieck was met by her husband in Naples for two more weeks. They returned to St. Louis Friday. Mr. Powers, who returned to St. Louis briefly in mid-January, has gone back to Palm Beach for a longer stay. Next month the Griesediecks will accompany a group of friends to Aspen, Colo., for a few weeks of skiing.

OF INTEREST HERE is the forthcoming marriage of Miss Carmen Barberan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Genaro Barberan of Manila, to William Talbot van Ravenswaay, son of Mrs. Cornelius H. van Ravenswaay of Boonville, Mo., and the late Dr. van Ravenswaay. Member of an old Missouri family, the bridegroom-elect is a brother of Charles van Ravenswaay, director of the Missouri Historical Society, who lives at the University Club. My Day

Position on School Aid

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

NOT long ago a member of Congress asked me my position on the school construction bill and the amendment making it explicit that no money should go to any segregated schools.

It would seem to me, in the light of the Supreme Court decision, that no Federal Government money could go to a school that practiced discrimination, because it has been decided that under the Constitution segregation is discrimination.

Therefore, an amendment should be unnecessary, but I can understand the desire to make doubly sure. It seems to me, as an individual not running for office and not having any responsibility except to make clear what the principles are that I believe in, that I would approve the inclusion of this amendment. I would want to make it perfectly clear that the Federal Government must, as long as the Supreme Court decision has been made, live up to it in the distribution of money for school buildings or for school maintenance.

★ ★ ★

I CAN UNDERSTAND the position of people, however, who feel that the school construction bill is so important for all the children of the country that they do not want it held up by an amendment that would bring about a filibuster on the part of southern Democrats in Congress. And this would, of course, be encouraged by the Republicans because it would prevent much legislation, which should be passed, from getting through.

This undoubtedly would be welcomed, as the Republicans would feel that the Democrats (the southern Democrats) were taking the responsibility for creating a Congress in which other needed legislation was neglected—and that would be bad for the Democratic party, as well as for the country as a whole.

★ ★ ★

LIKE SO MANY things, this is not a simple question and one wonders if it might be possible to meet it in any other way. But I have decided that in the long run it is more important to us as a nation to show the world that we believe in equality of opportunity, that we realize that any kind of segregation is discrimination whether it comes about because of race, color, or creed, and that we are determined to show the world that we believe in the things we preach.

★ ★ ★

AS IS MY CUSTOM, I went to Hyde Park very early Monday morning, Jan. 30, which is my husband's birthday.

President Eisenhower had asked the superintendent of West Point Military Academy, Lt. Gen. B. M. Bryan, to lay a wreath on my husband's grave.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis sent up its wreath, which was put in place by two children—the polio child on crutches and the first child to be inoculated with the Salk vaccine. Then the Hyde Park Home Club laid its wreath, one of the oldest members, Moses Smith, officiating with our rector, Gordon Kidd, saying a prayer.

The weather was kind and though the ground was wet it did not rain hard during the ceremony. We managed to have 14 for lunch and then I dashed back to New York to attend an executive committee meeting for the American Association for the United Nations.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

I HAVE two friends I am quite fond of but each of them have an annoying habit and I am afraid the friendships will end soon as a result. One constantly refers to age no matter what we are talking about. We are both in our early 30s. I am married and have three children and she is single. Every time I see her if we refer to the past, present or future she will unfailingly say, "My, you're getting old," or "That was a long time ago; you're old now." My husband thinks I should ignore it but I am so sick of hearing it that some day I will blurt out something and be sorry. The other friend is very, very nice but she is always saying she is going to do this or buy that, and she never gets anything new. I'll meet her for lunch and she will take me through one department store after another showing me different things she intends to buy, but she never does. Should I suffer in silence or set the two of them straight and let the chips fall where they may?

PERPLEXED.

I have long contended that if everyone stopped talking about getting old, getting fat and having too little time, a great silence would fall on the earth. You don't have to sit around and listen to your friend talking constantly about age, but neither do you have to make a fuss about it. Simply tell her you'd rather not think about age, then change the subject. The more people talk about growing old, the older they feel, so don't let yourself be the victim. As to the other friend, why let her day-dreaming bother you? Everyone likes to window shop for the future, so why not enjoy seeing the articles she points out and perhaps you'll see something you want to buy and can advise her as to a wise purchase she might make.

Dear Martha:

MY STORY is about two young men from different homes who are now married and have children. Both are nice young men. Each is an only child. One came from a home where the parents fought constantly. The other boy's mother is now contemplating divorce from her third husband. Now I ask you, what do these boys owe their families? I realize the parents are getting old and are trying to find pleasure with their children and grandchildren. But the one daughter-in-law says the boy's mother starts in the minute she enters the house telling her what to do. The other mother-in-law is always criticizing her son's wife. I blame the older women. Why can't they see they won't be welcome in these new homes? These two mothers would never let anyone tell them what to do so why should they dictate to their daughters-in-law? What is your opinion? Or maybe you're like me and don't want to interfere.

No, unless they ask for help be careful not to take sides or criticize one to the other. Don't even listen to criticism. I grant you that the young people should have the right to lead their own lives. However, I don't think they should turn their backs on their families. You ask what they "owe." That's a frequently asked question, but I think we should try to give more love and loyalty to those around us without worrying about whether we "owe" it—or if we're getting the same amount of love and loyalty in exchange. The husbands should protect their wives from criticism but by the same token, the wives should try to understand the normal interest of the parents in their children and grandchildren and do what they can to keep the relationship harmonious and happy.

IN ANSWER TO H.P.: I am sorry but the question regarding money from your former husband involves a legal matter which I cannot discuss. If you do not have a lawyer to whom you can turn, the Legal Aid Bureau or the Lawyers' Reference Service, both located in the Civil Courts building, will be able to advise you.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflet, "Let's Plan a Party," which gives suggestions for party games, refreshments and decorations for younger children. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-address envelope with your request.

What to Wear

By Louise Trescott

IT has long been known that confidence in one's appearance is of deep significance. The knowledge that she is dressed correctly gives any woman a feeling of security, no matter what the situation. Mrs. P. expresses it very well:

LOUISE TRESCOTT

"The help you have been to others in wardrobe planning has been an inspiration to me. It has been so long since I have added to my wardrobe, the fact that I now can, scares me a little. I want so to buy the right things and be very proud of what I wear. I am 24, weigh 124 and am 5-foot-6½. My hair is light brown, eyes gray-blue and complexion is fair. I am large boned and have difficulty in getting shoes for my size 11 quad feet.

"Since I must start almost from scratch, suggestion of color and style will be appreciated. I have a mouton coat, a black basic wool dress, and an attractive blue orlon sweater, trimmed in tiny rhinestones. I would love to buy a suit and I need a spring coat as well as a winter cloth coat.

★ ★ ★

YOUR SLIM HEIGHT and your youth score heavily in your favor. Since you are no doubt making good use of the mouton coat right now, I'll suggest a wardrobe to go with that—and also with a new winter coat. Let's get color of the new coat settled first. I suggest a rich medium blue—lively but not as brash as royal blue. I hope it blends with your orlon sweater. And I hope you find this new coat in a beautiful fleece.

Now, with your black dress, you have these colors to work with—black, the blues of sweater and coat and the beige of fur coat. First supplement your street wardrobe with the new suit (a blurred weave of blues and beiges); a blue blouse, a beige blouse; another basic dress in solid blue. Accessorize this group with black hat, beige gloves, black bag and shoes; scarfs in beiges, blues and pure red; tailored jewelry in gold and a few pieces in red enamel.

★ ★ ★

FOR HOME WEAR use washable dresses for housework and interchangeable separates for afternoon and evenings.

I have two suggestions to round out your wardrobe. One is a beige knitted dress which fits into any occasion except strictly formal depending on the way you accessorize it. The other is my pet jacket dress. For you I suggest it in teal brocade, the kind of teal that blends with the rich blue of your coat.

Come spring, select a coat in pale beige, but edge away from other beiges. Substitute greens instead. Do not hesitate to combine greens with your blues. And all pastels are yours for summer.

Children Enjoy Time For Jokes

By Amy Vanderbilt

ONE of the things a parent learns very early is that wild play just before bedtime spells trouble for young children. There is no better way to prepare youngsters for a good night's sleep than to give them time for leisurely warm baths, quiet suppers, storytime (very important still, despite TV), prayers. In our household we often add another important ingredient—especially if tensions have led to inordinate teasing of the younger ones by the older ones—joke time.

After the last story has been read and just before prayers each child, even the youngest, tells a joke. With the youngest the joke may not seem to have too much point except to himself, but he gets to tell it without interruption and everyone laughs appreciatively. Often the same joke is told over and over again, sometimes dramatized by the teller, always meeting with great success.

DO YOU THINK young children don't enjoy jokes? Here is one; I don't know where it came from, but my children tell it with shouts of laughter several times a week and never tire of it. A Boy Scout's father said to him, "Did you do your good deed today, son?" "Sure," replied the boy. "What was it?" asked the father. "I carried an old lady across the street," the son said. "That was nice of you," remarked the father, "did she thank you?" "No," said the boy, "she didn't." "Why not?" asked the father. "Well," answered the boy, "it seems she didn't want to cross the street."

Even a four-year-old doubles up over that one and the more often it is told, the funnier it becomes. Well, after everyone is nicely relaxed by the joke or two, then come the prayers. The saddest thing to me is to see a modern, tense, overworked parent skip these important, lovely preliminaries to a child's bedtime, ending with a goodnight kiss. There is no substitute for such parental love and care and the children who have it without stint are nearly always the emotionally secure ones whose behavior problems are minor, indeed.

Designing Woman

How to Avoid Mistakes

By Elizabeth Hillyer

DISTURBING PATTERNS

"I LIKE patterned wallpaper in bedrooms," writes Mrs. J. V., "but I'm always choosing the wrong one. Sometimes they're jumpy, or I can see faces that aren't supposed to be there, if I look long enough. Must I settle for the textured kinds, or can I learn how to find what I want?"

Three types of pattern turn out to be less pleasing on the wall than they were in the store, Mrs. V.

One is the spotty pattern, in which some shapes contrast so much with the rest of the design that they do seem to jump out at you. Another disturbing pattern is the kind that makes faces, and another is the pattern that never stands still but looks as though it were moving endlessly across the wall.

Avoid these disturbing influences by careful study of patterns before making a choice. Look at them up close and then farther away, turn your eyes to something else and then come back to them, look at the pattern another day when it may appeal to you differently than it did at first sight.

For a clue as to how a pattern can be good or bad depending on color contrast, compare the jumpy upper left pattern with its calmer version at lower right.

MRS. R. N. S. "The windows in the living room of our former home were wider than those in the house we have just moved into. The lined draperies we have could be used except that they are about a foot too wide at each side. Narrowing them would be quite an undertaking, and I am wondering if I should do this or repleat the tops to make them fuller."

Have you thought of using them as they are on rods that extend onto the wall beyond the window frame edges? Extender rods or plates make this possible and the windows will then look wider than they are.

The Dean Speaks Up

Tragedies of Our Juggernaut of Speed

By Adele Starbird

SUCH a pretty girl was lying on a stretcher in the corridor as I was wheeled in for physical therapy. Her eyes had the same look one sees in the eyes of a wounded animal, at once patient and apprehensive. They said her pelvis was fractured—the car was doing a hundred. Now they are trying to straighten out her leg, which is drawn up against her body—a process that causes her exquisite torture. I felt a sort of rage that soft young bodies should be battered and broken.

Dean Starbird

And I thought once more of Raquel, the orphaned daughter of a Chilean diplomat. She fell in love with a young American who went to Chile on an engineering project. After three months of marriage he died in an epidemic. Raquel brought her husband's body all the way to Illinois where his parents lived. In order to be near them, she signed up for some courses at Washington University, and took up residence in McMillan Hall. She called on me at once and I came to know her rather well. Her only relative was a younger brother, a naval cadet in Chile.

★ ★ ★

I KNEW that she spoke several languages, and had lived with her father in various European capitals. It was only after she left that I learned she had been the first woman aviator in Chile and that she was acquainted with the British royal family. No name-dropper was Raquel.

She looked like a miniature of a woman, tiny, fragile and elegant. She was dark and serious with enormous eyes that seemed to devour her small face. High-spirited and impulsive, she could be quickly stirred to indignation, but never about anything personal.

One morning she flung herself into her car, and started recklessly for Illinois. We never knew what had disturbed her.

She was across the river when the accident occurred. Her injuries were serious but she survived and was brought back to a St. Louis hospital.

★ ★ ★

IT WAS A SUMMER of great and continuous heat. Partly because she had no family, and partly because we had come to love her, some one of us went every day to see her.

I don't think that any doctor could have saved her life, even under the best conditions. And knowing her fiery spirit, I was reconciled to her death, as more merciful than life in a mutilated body. But I was never reconciled—I am not now—to the way she was treated. However, this is not the place to detail the grisly horror of that summer.

One afternoon as she watched me approaching her bed in the ward, her wide dark gaze, usually so welcoming, was stern. "You," she said accusingly, "registered a complaint in the office about that nurse."

"Yes, I did, Raquel."

"That poor girl — she was crying this morning! Now I want you to go down to the office and tell them that I am perfectly satisfied, perfectly satisfied, do you understand? Right now, please!"

I knew then what a great lady Raquel was. All through her ordeal there had been no word of complaint or self-pity from this alien girl, alone at the center of her pool of pain; now there was not the slightest rancor for deliberate and gross neglect.

Meekly I marched down to the office and reported that the patient was satisfied with her nursing care. "But I am not," I added.

★ ★ ★

IT WAS a matter of a few weeks. The day before she died she was already in another world. "Everything is so beautiful, so beautiful," she exclaimed in ecstasy over and over again. She gazed with delight at the coarse white curtains about her bed, at the tiny electric fan, and then she turned to me, "Do you see how beautiful it all is?"

"Yes, Raquel, it is beautiful."

They moved her then out of the ward to the top floor of the hospital, where we were all alone. The stertorous breathing had started. My brother came in the evening to sit with me. It was eerie but strangely serene up there overlooking the city. As the hours went by, the air grew cool. Around two o'clock, the breathing stopped. The spirit of Raquel had fluttered free.

More and more of these young bodies will be crushed by our juggernaut of speed, all in the name of civilization.

Some Hints On Proper Nail Styling

By Josephine Lowman

WE ALWAYS are reading and thinking about hair styling. Have you realized that there is such a thing as nail styling? This depends on the manner in which you apply your polish.

If your nails are naturally long and narrow, leave polish off the tips or the half moon. If they are short and wide, apply polish over the entire nail. Also do not take the polish all the way to the sides of the nails. Leave a hairline of uncovered nail at the sides.

If you do not have beautifully tapered, slender fingers, console yourself with the knowledge that the hands of many of the artistically famous folk are short and sometimes even stubby.

★ ★ ★

If the cuticle about your nails is at all dry, massage cuticle oil or cream into the skin about the nails every night. This is a good thing to do anyway during winter months.

Keep your hands soft by using a hand lotion several times a day, and always after they have been in water. Also use the lotion on your elbows frequently. It is a good idea to sleep in cotton gloves once a week, after massaging a hand cream into the skin.

Hot water makes the nails soft. Never file them immediately after a bath or when they are wet or damp.

Use a pencil to dial telephone numbers and learn to use the cushion of your fingers when opening a bobby pin or turning on a light.

Use lemon juice or polish remover or peroxide to remove stains.

Keep the tops of your nail polish bottles clean. This will prevent thickening and evaporation.

Child Behavior

Feeding Problem

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.

Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development.

"IS there any potential harm in giving a 14-month-old a toy to play with while he is being fed?" a mother asks. "My son is just beginning to learn to handle a spoon, but since he cannot get it into his mouth right side up yet, he gets upset at the whole business after three or four tries and throws the spoon on the floor. He will then refuse to let me feed him unless he has something to divert him. If I do give him something to play with, he eats a good meal and willingly.

"I have read so much lately about feeding problems and the effect of eating on a child's personality, that I hesitate to do anything the least bit imaginative at mealtime for fear of dire consequences. I do try to make his breakfasts and suppers of such a nature that he can eat most of those meals by himself with his fingers, which process seems to satisfy him. But dinner is, of necessity, a 'spoon' meal, and that is when this problem occurs."

★ ★ ★

NO, THERE ISN'T, as far as we know, any potential harm in giving a 14-monther a toy to play with while he is being fed. Particularly if, as apparently is the present case, you have tried it and it works.

Around a year of age many children eat better if allowed to stand while they are being fed. This does no harm and soon drops out. A little later, as you have found out, they eat better if their hands are being occupied. A little later this drops out—and then they start using their own spoon, more or less effectively.

★ ★ ★

YOU MUSTN'T BE AFRAID to use your imagination, or to vary your feeding techniques from time to time.

True, it isn't a good idea to get into the habit of putting on a regular circus to entertain a child at mealtime; but any reasonable variations or ingenuities do little harm. A young child changes so rapidly from month to month, that there is really less danger of getting into bad "habits" than many people fear.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE had a strong desire to explore unknown parts of Africa. His home was in a fairly pleasant location, but he wanted to see other portions of the continent.

At length he decided to send his family to safety while he went into an area which white men never had entered. He took his wife and children to Cape Town, and saw them aboard a vessel bound for Great Britain.

With a group of 27 natives he traveled from southern Africa to Angola, a Portuguese colony on the Atlantic coast. The natives carried several tusks of elephants, and these were traded to the Portuguese for muskets, gunpowder, beads and calico cloth.

* * *

TURNING EASTWARD, the party went through land never trodden before by anyone from Europe. At one point a native chief ordered his men to block the way, but Livingstone pointed his "six-barreled revolver" at the chief. The chief shouted that he would be friendly, and the strangers were allowed to go on with their trip.

After months of traveling, they reached the Zambesi valley, and followed the river downstream. At length they came to one of the natural wonders of the world—the mightiest falls to be seen anywhere.

LIVINGSTON NAMED THE FALLS FOR QUEEN VICTORIA.

Natives of the Makololo tribe (who were with Livingstone) called the falls by a name meaning "Noisy Smoke." They mistook the mist for smoke. All large waterfalls cause mist to rise at their base.

* * *

TO HONOR Victoria, the queen who then held the British throne, Livingstone called the tumbling waters the "Falls of Victoria." The common name for them later was changed to Victoria Falls.

Victoria Falls are more than twice as high as Niagara Falls. During the rainy season, the volume of water going over the brink is far larger than that of Niagara.

Love Is Eternal

By Irving Stone

Mary Todd and Abraham Lincoln have planned to marry, and Mary looks confidently to a future that will take Abraham to the White House; then an election defeat has plunged him into a state of melancholy that has almost caused their separation.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE evening before Christmas Elizabeth and Ninian were out, and Mary Todd had invited Lincoln for supper. Afterward they sat before the fire, quiet and content.

"Molly, I've hurt you sometimes and I haven't meant to. When my spirits flag down and leave me miserable I guess I just make everyone else miserable around me."

"I understand."

"I know how much stock you Bluegrass people take in engagements . . . would you like for us to be engaged?"

"Yes, my darling, I would like that very much."

"When would you want to announce it?"

"Elizabeth and Ninian are having a big family dinner on New Year's day. When we are toasting each other for the New Year, that would be a wonderful time. . . ."

"We'll announce it then."

Suddenly Mary saw in his eyes a pain that was unlike any she had seen there before. He tried several times to speak, but could not give breath to the words. What was wrong? "Abraham, you look as though something is festering . . . deep inside you. . . ."

"There is!" The words came like an explosion. "If we are to be engaged you have a right to know beforehand . . . from me."

His eyes went to hers: "My mother . . . was a natural child. She was born in Virginia. Her mother, Lucy Hanks, brought Nancy to Kentucky when she was two . . . without a father's name. Everybody knew. . . ."

Mary studied the face of the man she loved and knew that no words from her could mean anything unless they contained an avowal as great as his own.

"Abraham, why do we have to wait? Why can't we start our life together on New Year's day?"

He raised his head, love and gratitude in his eyes. Then, as quickly as they had come, they were gone, and another emotion had replaced them. Anxiety? Fear? She could not tell.

"And what will we have in a year or two that we haven't got now: more youth, hope, courage?"

"Money . . . security."

"Is there security in money? It comes and goes so fast. Isn't our love our only security?"

"Then, darling, please let us marry now."

He sat in silence, no longer opposing her. She put her cheek on his.

"Thank you, Abraham. You'll never regret it, I promise."

* * *

NEW YEAR'S day was clear and cold. Mary came down a little before 1, dressed in a new rose-colored painted muslin. Soon the family began to arrive: the Todds, the Wallaces, the Hardins, the Edwardses, all with their children.

Elizabeth, the only one to whom she had confided her plans, sought her eye. It was half past 1. She nodded to Elizabeth. By the time the champagne was opened and poured, the trays brought into the living room, Abraham would be there.

But there were no footsteps on the porch, no sound of the frontdoor knocker. When everyone had been served, the clock said a quarter to 2.

The family members cried, "Hear! Hear!" and drank their champagne. To Mary the champagne tasted like vinegar. The clock in the hall struck 2. Mary told Elizabeth to start dinner.

She made a show of talking, but when Elizabeth went to the kitchen to remove the wedding ornaments and decorations from the cakes she excused herself, went upstairs to her bedroom, locked the door and flung herself face down on the pillow. Tears flooded her eyes.

She had tried to lead him into something she had thought would be good for him, and had only forced him into an act that was contrary to his whole nature: to fail another human being. It would be a long, painful road back . . . if there were a road back.

The days and nights that followed were interminable. Lincoln was apparently following his routine, for the newspapers reported his activities in the Legislature. Then the Legislature adjourned. President Harrison died, throwing Springfield into gloom. Mary's cousin Stephen T. Logan announced that he was taking Lincoln into partnership in his law office.

Spring came early and still there was no word from Abraham. The feeling of being on edge seemed to be with her always; she had a constant struggle not to be sharp of tongue or bitter of mood.

* * *

WITH a start she realized that New Year's day again was approaching, and a presentiment grew within her: After everyone had gone home and the house was quiet there would be a knock on the door and when she opened it he would be standing there. She would say, "Mr. Lincoln! Last but not least" and he would reply, "This is my first visit today, not my last."

Dozens of the Edwardses' friends came to pay their respects on New Year's day. Mr. Lincoln was not one of them.

In the spring she learned from the papers that Mr. Lincoln was "off the track" for the Legislature. She had no way of finding out whether he had refused to run again, or whether he simply was not being nominated by the Whig convention.

Summer came again. Then early one August morning she received a note from Eliza Francis asking her to come to supper. When she arrived, Eliza led her into the parlor. In the center of the room stood Abraham Lincoln.

He was thin, but his eyes were clear, the set of his mouth and chin forceful. They said nothing, yet silence was not there. They stood quietly for a long time and then she found herself in his arms.

"I'm sorry for the trouble I caused you," he said, and tightened his grip on her shoulders. "More than anything else in the world Molly, I want us to be together. I wanted it that New Year's day, but I didn't have the strength. . . . You must find some way to forgive me."

"I pressed you, Abraham; we have only to forgive each other. Isn't that what love means?"

In all things Abraham now appeared more consistently resolute. At the beginning of October he announced, "I have to start traveling circuit in a couple of days, and I'll be gone almost the entire month. I'm not looking forward to the separation. When I return around the first of November, I'm going to ask you to marry me."

He was back on Nov. 1, having handled a large number of cases in Clinton, Urbana and Charleston.

"Will you marry me, Miss Todd, tomorrow?"

"Is it safe for me to accept?" she asked with mock severity.

"You name the place, and I'll be there. In a brand-new suit, with my boots blacked."

She gazed down at his dusty and worn boots, then threw back her head in laughter. "Well, now I have had a real assurance!"

When she broke the news to her sister the following morning, Elizabeth persuaded her to put the wedding off for 24 hours so she might at least have time to arrange for refreshments.

The next day Mary dressed in a white swiss muslin she had made earlier in the summer. She were a pearl necklace. At 5 o'clock in the presence of Mary's relatives and a few close friends, the Rev. Dresser began the ring-and-book ceremony.

They had supper, with two beautiful wedding cakes. A small orchestra came, they danced, there was friendship and joyousness, and much of Ninian's excellent champagne. Shortly before midnight Mary and Abraham slipped out the front door, where there was a carriage waiting for them. They drove to the Globe tavern.

He remained downstairs to sign the desk register. She went up to the room. She slipped the plain gold band off her finger, walked over to the lamp to gaze at it. It was inscribed: Love Is Eternal.

She must always remember that: love ebbed and flowed, now rich and shining, now shabby and disconsolate. One must survive the bad in order to realize the good. Therein lay the miracle of love, that it could eternally recreate itself.

She heard his long rangy steps coming down the hallway. His hand was on the door. She turned, her face suffused with love.

Colder Weather, Snow Due Here

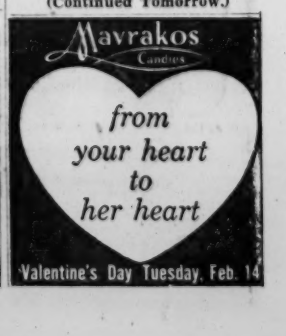

St. Louis's precipitation in the 24 hours ended this morning measured .79 of an inch, bringing the total for the year to 1.52 inches or .94 below normal. More snow tonight and tomorrow with colder weather through Saturday was predicted by Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren.

Wahlgren said the mercury is expected to drop by tomorrow morning to a low of 10 and rise to an afternoon high in the low 20s. In Missouri early today, low readings varied from 10 at Butler to 35 at Malden, and over the nation from 35 below zero at Big Piney, Wyo., to 71 at Key West, Fla. Yesterday's high was 80 at Brownsville, Tex., Key West, and Fort Meyers, Fla.

Heavy rain fell in southeastern Missouri, measuring as much as 2.58 inches at West Plains. Snow was heavy in the northern and central sections. Nine inches fell at Butler. Heaviest snowfalls of the season were reported in many areas of the Midwest and east. A belt of freezing rain and sleet from Oklahoma to the Tennessee valley and Carolina mountains shifted northward during the night.

Beside Wyomin, below zero temperatures prevailed this morning in western Kansas, southern Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Nevada. The mercury dropped sharply in parts of Texas also. Temperatures fell from a high of 61 yesterday to 15 today at El Paso.
